Rioting Teenagers Cause $1,600 Damage at School

Teenagers, armed with baseball bats, sticks, rocks and other weapons, started to rumble Friday following the Pikes Peak League baseketball tournament and ended up inflicting a total of $1,600 damage to the Cheyenne Mountain High School.

One youth crashed his car thru a locked gate at the high school football field while others broke a total of eight plate glass windows.

Seventeen teenagers, including six girls, have been listed by the sheriff's office as taking part in the free for all.

Deputies Albert H. Moore and Lee Quien said their department first received word of the rumble about 10 p.m.

Reports said students who had attended the basketball tournament which saw Cheyenne Mountain down Manitou Springs by a score of 55-44, were gathering at the Howdy Pard Drive-in at 403 S. 8th St.

When deputies arrived, some of the teenagers drove off. Others were standing around while teachers from various schools tried to get them to go home, the deputies said.

Moore and Quien began circulating, telling the teenagers to go home. They said they saw students with baseball bats and other weapons. The deputies reported that some of these gathered there said they would go to the Garden of the Gods.

At 11 p.m., the sheriff's office received a call from Fred Till,

Springs Man Dies After Auto Crash

A 37 - year old Colorado Springs man, injured Friday in a one - car accident on U.S. 85 - 87, died early Saturday in Penrose Hospital.

Francis R. Kenney, 1224 E. Monument St., was pronounced dead by hospital officials at 2:50 a.m. County Coroner Dr. Raoul Urich said death was attributed to multiple skull fractures.

Kenney was alone in the car when he lost control of the vehicle at 8:25 p.m. Friday about seven miles north of Colorado Springs.

State Patrolman Fred Henderson said Kenney apparently lost control of his car after passing another car. Henderson said Kenny almost ran into the rear of a semi - truck and veered to avoid collision.

Kenney, a popular bartender in Colorado Springs, was thrown from the rolling car. He was found 29 feet from the upturned vehicle.

A resident of Colorado Springs for the past 6½ years, Kenney was a native of Lowell, Mass.

In the past he has worked at the Elks Club, the Acacia Hotel and more recently at the Cameo Restaurant. He was not employed at the time of the accident. He was not married.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kenney are on their way here to take care of funeral arrangements. Other survivors include a sister, Mrs. Mary Kinman of Denver.

The body was taken to the Swan Funeral Home where arrangements are incomplete pending the arrival of the victim's parents.

Youth's Suicide In Jail Linked To Drug Probe

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — The parents of a 14-year-old Pueblo boy who hanged himself in a jail cell last month charged here that the police department had been "pushing" him to be an informer in an investigation of reported marijuana in a junior high school.

Jose Madrid and Mrs. Bessie Madrid, the divorced parents of William T. Madrid, made the charge at a coroner's inquest into young Madrid's death in the Pueblo County Jail Feb. 27.

Police Chief Roy Harper said the boy had willingly agreed to assist in the marijuana investigation at Corwin Junior High School, where the boy was a student. But Harper said the boy later refused to cooperate.

Harper said young Madrid was arrested on a traffic offense Feb. 21 and fined $60. When his parents could not pay the fine, he was jailed. Harper said he was released shortly afterward after agreeing to help officers Thomas Strilich and Tony Spinuzzi in the marijuana investigation.

Widefield School District Sees Finance Delay

Supt. James Taylor of the Widefield School District told the district's board of directors Saturday that he was unable to submit a report on next year's financial plans for the school because the state legislature has not yet passed its school bill.

Taylor made the statement at the March meeting of the board.

Taylor pointed out that more than one bill has been introduced into the state legislature but that he did not know how much money the state will eventually give to each school district.

He said that on the day in the future when any school bill comes from a legislative committee to the floor of one of the houses that he and other county school superintendents will meet with the assembly delegation from this county to discuss the bill.

That meeting already has been set up, he said. School board members were also urged to attend the meeting which will be in Denver, Taylor added.

Taylor also reported to the board that it probably can ask for bids on the new junior high school on March 25. If plans progress as rapidly as hoped, that new school will be ready for operation next November, he said.

This will mean that half-day school sessions will have to be held in the other junior high school thru October, Taylor reported.

The board set its April meeting for the night of Wednesday, April 10, because of the Easter vacation that includes the following Friday

School Aid Bill Estimate Difficult, State Solons Say

Two members of the El Paso County delegation to the state assembly agreed Saturday that it is difficult to estimate what kind of a school aid bill will be adopted by the state legislature.

The two were State Sen. Vernon A. Cheever and State Rep. James Braden, both interviewed while they were attending the El Paso County Republican Central Committee meeting in the courthouse.

Braden, said that he believed the bill introduced by Rep. Palmer Burch of Denver would get onto the floor of the house this week from the committee.

Braden pointed out that it does not include a base on the realty recording act. (That act has been state law, and is supposed to equalize property assessments in the state for tax purposes.)

The house earlier in the session passed a bill to repeal the realty recording act, Braden explained.

Cheever said that "We have three or four bills for financing education in the senate and we are trying to get the number reduced to at least two."

He pointed out that at least two of the senate bills are not based on realty valuations.

Cheever added that he did not

Castro Could Smash Any Uprising, Diplomats Say

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI)—The Soviet Union has armed and trained Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's forces to the point where they could smash any internal uprising, even if all Soviet troops on the island are withdrawn, Western diplomatic sources reported Saturday.

The informants, who have just arrived here from Cuba, confirmed Washington's estimates that Soviet combat units brought in just before last October's missile crisis were being phased out.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin said in Washington Friday that Russia will keep its promise to withdraw several thousand troops from Cuba by next Friday. The administration says there are about 17,000 Soviet troops on the island.

But the diplomats questioned the belief voiced by Cuban exiles that the chances of toppling Castro by an internal uprising would increase materially after the removal of the troops.

Nearly two years after the Soviet Union's large-scale military assistance program began, Cuba has built a formidable fighting

U.S. Denies Poison Gas Use in War

DENVER (UPI)— Col. Charles H. McNary, commander of the Rocky Mountain arsenal northeast of here, denied today a charge by the Soviet Union that Denver-produced nerve gas had been used against civilians in South Viet Nam.

"To my knowledge, we haven't used the gas on any humans," McNary said. "We've only used it for laboratory tests."

He said the gas, called GB, is not produced at the arsenal but is stored there.

The Soviet Newspaper Red Star said Saturday hundreds of persons had perished from the poison gas in the Southeast Asian country. Red Star said the gas, which it called GB, was manufactured at a factory near Denver.

The Defense Department denied the charge.

Mountain Area May Escape Flu Outbreak

DENVER (AP) — A Colorado Health Department official said today the chances are good that the Rocky Mountain region will escape the outbreak of Asian flu which has spread across 35 states and the District of Columbia.

"If we don't get a case in the next two weeks, then I think we can call it quits as far as this Asian flu is concerned," said Dr. C. S. Mollohan, chief of epidemiology.

He said not a single case of the illness had been reported in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Utah.

"Even if one or two cases are reported now," he added, "we're certainly not going to have anything even approaching an epidemic."

Dr. Mollohan attributed the lack of cases in the Rockies to a widespread immunization program which started shortly after the 1960 outbreak in which 21,606 cases and 61 deaths were reported in Colorado.

'Lobster War' Over Between France, Brazil

French lobster boats which had been fishing in the disputed waters off Brazil's northeast coast received an order from their owners to leave for other waters, the owners said.

One of the trawlers from Brittany ports sailed from the disputed area off Brazil two days ago. The other five trawlers received the order to leave Friday night.

Two boats set off toward French Guiana, while the rest are sailing toward Dakar, the owners said.

A diplomatic crisis arose between France and Brazil over the right of French boats to take lobsters from the continental shelf off Brazil.

Brazil maintained that she has the exclusive right to take the lobsters from the continental shelf. France disputed the claim, arguing the fishing grounds are in international waters.

Solar Radiation Satellite Brought Back to Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—Space scientists have successfully brought a solar radiation satellite back to life after 22 months of silent orbiting around the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday that the Navy-developed satellite is once again transmitting information about solar flares. It shows no signs of deterioration, proving the satellite has successfully withstood high radiation bombardments," a NASA official said.

The 42-pound satellite was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in June 1960 and transmitted data on solar flares until April 1961, when it was turned off by radio signal from the earth because magnetic drag had reduced its rotation rate. On Feb. 25 NASA trackers turned the satellite's transmitters on again.

Death Penalty Proposed For State Dope Peddlers

DENVER (UPI)—Colorado narcotics pushers could be sentenced to death for second offense convictions under a bill which passed the Colorado House of Representatives on a preliminary reading Friday.

The bill will receive final consideration Monday, and be sent to the Senate for action.

The measure provides for life imprisonment on the first offense of giving or selling narcotics to persons 25 years old or younger. On the second offense, the penalty would be either life in prison or death.

Several bills were introduced, including one which would set up an area redevelopment finance administration to promote and assist private industrial development in depressed areas. It was sponsored by Reps. Clarence Quinlan, R-Antonito and Philip Massari, D-Trinidad.

It carries a $300,000 appropriation.

Another bill called for continuation of a legislative council study of children's laws and child welfare.

Rep. Frank A. Kemp Jr., R-Denver, submitted a resolution calling on Congress to give consideration to two bills now pending in the U.S. Senate and House "to afford tax relief to parents and students who must bear a portion of the burden of the costs of higher education."

One would provide tax credit of 30 per cent or less for educational expenses paid to universities and the other calls for a deduction from gross income for education expenses.

Manitou Chamber Expands Tourist Season Planning

The Manitou Springs Chamber of Commerce began cranking up its tourist apparatus Saturday night at the annual spring membership dinner meeting held in the Cliff House.

Soon the apparatus will be hitting smoothly and easily on all eight cylinders as it takes care of the early flow of tourists and warms up for a full - throttle operation that will begin when the great mass of tourists hits here later in the spring.

Bob Young, president of the chamber, reported to the membership that the new four - color, fan - fold brochure now is being distributed across the country to help boost the tourist business this summer.

This is the first year that the Manitou Chamber has had a color brochure. A total of 52,000 of the brochures were printed at a cost of $2,500.

Miss Ardis Velasquez, secretary-treasurer of the chamber, said that inquiries from high school senior groups are coming in at an increasing rate and that the first groups of touring high school students are expected to begin arriving the last of this month.

The shows were at San Francisco, Kansas City, Wichita, Des

Three Top Reds Are Executed by New Iraq Rulers

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Three top executives of the Iraqi Communist party have been executed on charges of killing civilians and soldiers and inciting the masses against the government, Gov. Gen. Rashid Muslih announced Saturday.

The military governor said all three—among thousands of Communists arrested after the Feb. 8 revolution that overthrew dictator Abdel Karim Kassem—were court-martialed Tuesday and put to death Thursday.

Chief of the group was Hassan Radhawi, secretary-general of the Iraqi Communist party. The others were identified as Mohammed Hussein Abdel Eis, a central committeeman, and Hassan Awaineh, party liaison officer.

These were the first executions announced since military leaders slew Kassem and installed an anti-Communist government last month.

An undetermined number of Communists remain under arrest. These arrests and the slaying of various Red agitators by troops in street fighting last month have been denounced by Soviet-bloc propagandists as bloody repression.

Baghdad observed quietly the fouth anniversary of the abortive uprising in 1959 against Kassem in Mosul, which Communist street mobs supporting the dictator turned into a blood bath.

2,500 Physicians Want To Leave Castro Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — More than 2,500 Cuban physicians have applied for permission to leave their country, reports one who escaped by boat.

"Ninety-five per cent of the doctors would leave if they could," said Dr. Gumerdino Garay, 43, former sanitation director of the city of Cruces, Las Villas Province.

The Fidel Castro government does not let physicians leave the country because they are needed, Garay said Saturday in an interview.

"Medical men are a necessary evil for the Communist tyranny," he said.

"They tolerate us because we are indispensable, but they watch us and place obstacles in our path. If we don't work in government-owned clinics we are not permitted to practice privately. All clinics have been taken over by the government."

Garay reported an acute shortage of medicines in Cuba.

He said at the time he fled to Miami last week in a small boat with a party of six, pharmaceuticals sent to Cuba from the United States in payment for freed prisoners had not been made available.

Tarter Reelected Chairman of GOP In El Paso County

Weldon Tarter as chairman, Mrs. Ethna Burgess as vice chairwoman and Ed Strand as secretary were elected on white ballots with a minimum of time and effort expended.

Two years ago there was a short fight, and if it wasn't a hot fight, at least it was a mighty warm one, when the Republicans met to name their county officers.

At that time, Attorney Tarter locked horns with another attorney of about his age who was making his first move for party office — a man named John A. Love.

Tarter won and Love retired smiling.

Last fall, Love, in his first move for public office, was elected governor of Colorado.

Apparently Love was satisfied with the man he couldn't beat for county chairman for there were not moves made at

Tarter Challenges Bennett on County Reapportionment

The Republican chairman of El Paso County flung a challenge at his Democratic counterpart Saturday at the Republican Central Committee meeting held in the county courthouse.

Tarter delivered a short talk on reapportionment to the delegates and during his talk, took on John Bennett, Democratic chairman.

Said Tarter, "The chairman of another party in the county has stated that the reapportionment of El Paso County has not been fair.

"I don't think he has backed up his charge of unfair redistricting and I challenge Mr. Bennett to point where the redistricting is unfair."

The reapportionment bill that Tarter was referring to was the one passed by the state assembly earlier this year and signed into law by Gov. John A. Love.

Tarter said that he and other members of a committee worked hard to draw up a proposed re-

Russian Artists Told by Nikita Art Is Weapon

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has bluntly told Soviet writers and artists their works are weapons of the class struggle and that there is no place in the Soviet Union for Western abstract art.

Socialist realism, he said, cannot peacefully coexist with such "bourgeois perversions."

Khrushchev also thrust a jetty into the swelling tide of anti-Stalinist works. "Those years—under Stalin—were not a period of stagnation in the development of Soviet society," he declared.

His speech, delivered Friday to a brass-tacks meeting of Soviet artists, writers and Communist party leaders, was released by the news agency Tass early Sunday.

The crackdown on liberal trends among artists and writers was seen as an admission of the might of the pen and the artist's canvas in the Soviet Union and the growing influence here of Western art.

The thrust at anti-Stalin outbursts that Khrushchev himself triggered in 1961 was believed to be an attempt to ward off boomerang effects that might hit other areas of Soviet communism.

Khrushchev joined in the criticism of veteran Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg, a Jew, as a defender of modern art. The premier tried to head off any impression that the attack on Ehrenburg was anti-Semitic, stating: "There is no Jewish question in the Soviet Union, and those who invent it echo alien voices. Since the day of the October revolution in our country the Jews have had equal rights with all other peoples of the Soviet Union."

She began teaching in 1939 at North Junior High School and took a year off teaching to serve as a nursing instructor for the Red Cross. She later taught nursing classes in high schools here until her retirement in 1959.

Miss Jones was a member of the Retired Teachers Association, the American Public Health Association, was elected to the British Royal Society of Health and was a life member of Delta Kappa Gamma sorority.

Largest Dynamite Factory in World Shaken by Blasts

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The world's largest dynamite factory blew up Saturday with four mighty blasts. It tumbled a brick wall 11 miles away, killing a woman. Casualties at the factory were reported low.

A company announcement said the explosions at Modderfontein, 16 miles from here, killed one white worker and left four or five Africans missing. It said 27 persons were injured. The cause was unknown. Police ruled out sabotage.

The South African Press Association said the force of the blasts caused a brick wall to fall in on a sleeping African servant in the the Kensington suburb, 11 miles from the factory.

Smoke and flame filled the sky above Modderfontein. The blasts were heard in Johannesburg.

Two Scientists to Ride New 'Stargazer Balloon'

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (UPI)— Two men will ride another "Stargazer" balloon 80,000 feet above the earth March 18 on a 24-hour mission to study the stars, the Air Force announced here.

The flight, similar to one last December, will conclude a basic research program in space environments by the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories at Hanscom Field, Mass.

Making their second such trip will be Capt. Joseph W. Kittinger of Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, and civilian astronomer William C. White of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif.

They will take along a 12.5 inch telescope with a gyro-stabilizations system to track celestial bodies automatically.

The "Stargazer" program is aimed at observing the heavens through a telescope at a height above 90 per cent of the earth's atmosphere. Scientists say one of astronomy's greatest barriers to accurate observation of celestial bodies is the maze of light waves in the atmosphere that confront telescopes on the surface of the earth.

Widefield School District Sees Finance Delay

Supt. James Taylor of the Widefield School District told the district's board of directors Saturday that he was unable to submit a report on next year's financial plans for the school because the state legislature has not yet passed its school bill.

Taylor made the statement at the March meeting of the board.

Taylor pointed out that more than one bill has been introduced into the state legislature but that he did not know how much money the state will eventually give to each school district.

He said that on the day in the future when any school bill comes from a legislative committee to the floor of one of the houses that he and other county school superintendents will meet with the assembly delegation from this county to discuss the bill.

That meeting already has been set up, he said. School board members were also urged to attend the meeting which will be in Denver, Taylor added.

Taylor also reported to the board that it probably can ask for bids on the new junior high school on March 25. If plans progress as rapidly as hoped, that new school will be ready for operation next November, he said.

This will mean that half-day school sessions will have to be held in the other junior high school thru October, Taylor reported.

The board set its April meeting for the night of Wednesday, April 10, because of the Easter vacation that includes the following Friday

School Aid Bill Estimate Difficult, State Solons Say

Two members of the El Paso County delegation to the state assembly agreed Saturday that it is difficult to estimate what kind of a school aid bill will be adopted by the state legislature.

The two were State Sen. Vernon A. Cheever and State Rep. James Braden, both interviewed while they were attending the El Paso County Republican Central Committee meeting in the courthouse.

Braden, said that he believed the bill introduced by Rep. Palmer Burch of Denver would get onto the floor of the house this week from the committee.

Braden pointed out that it does not include a base on the realty recording act. (That act has been state law, and is supposed to equalize property assessments in the state for tax purposes.)

The house earlier in the session passed a bill to repeal the realty recording act, Braden explained.

Cheever said that "We have three or four bills for financing education in the senate and we are trying to get the number reduced to at least two."

He pointed out that at least two of the senate bills are not based on realty valuations.

Cheever added that he did not

Solar Radiation Satellite Brought Back to Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—Space scientists have successfully brought a solar radiation satellite back to life after 22 months of silent orbiting around the earth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday that the Navy-developed satellite is once again transmitting information about solar flares. It shows no signs of deterioration," proving the satellite has successfully withstood high radiation bombardments," a NASA official said.

The 42-pound satellite was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in June 1960 and transmitted data on solar flares until April 1961, when it was turned off by radio signal from the earth because magnetic drag had reduced its rotation rate. On Feb. 25 NASA trackers turned the satellite's transmitters on again.

Castro Could Smash Any Uprising, Diplomats Say

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI)—The Soviet Union has armed and trained Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's forces to the point where they could smash any internal uprising, even if all Soviet troops on the island are withdrawn, Western diplomatic sources reported Saturday.

The informants, who have just arrived here from Cuba, confirmed Washington's estimates that Soviet combat units brought in just before last October's missile crisis were being phased out.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin said in Washington Friday that Russia will keep its promise to withdraw several thousand troops from Cuba by next Friday. The administration says there are about 17,000 Soviet troops on the island.

But the diplomats questioned the belief voiced by Cuban exiles that the chances of toppling Castro by an internal uprising would increase materially after the removal of the troops.

Nearly two years after the Soviet Union's large-scale military assistance program began, Cuba has built a formidable fighting

U.S. Denies Poison Gas Use in War

DENVER (UPI)— Col. Charles H. McNary, commander of the Rocky Mountain arsenal northeast of here, denied today a charge by the Soviet Union that Denver-produced nerve gas had been used against civilians in South Viet Nam.

"To my knowledge, we haven't used the gas on any humans," McNary said. "We've only used it for laboratory tests."

He said the gas, called GB, is not produced at the arsenal but is stored there.

The Soviet Newspaper Red Star said Saturday hundreds of persons had perished from the poison gas in the Southeast Asian country. Red Star said the gas, which it called GB, was manufactured at a factory near Denver.

The Defense Department denied the charge.

Mountain Area May Escape Flu Outbreak

DENVER (AP) — A Colorado Health Department official said today the chances are good that the Rocky Mountain region will escape the outbreak of Asian flu which has spread across 35 states and the District of Columbia.

"If we don't get a case in the next two weeks, then I think we can call it quits as far as this Asian flu is concerned," said Dr. C. S. Mollohan, chief of epidemiology.

He said not a single case of the illness had been reported in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Utah.

"Even if one or two cases are reported now," he added, "we're certainly not going to have anything even approaching an epidemic."

Dr. Mollohan attributed the lack of cases in the Rockies to a widespread immunization program which started shortly after the 1960 outbreak in which 21,606 cases and 61 deaths were reported in Colorado.

'Lobster War' Over Between France, Brazil

French lobster boats which had been fishing in the disputed waters off Brazil's northeast coast received an order from their owners to leave for other waters, the owners said.

One of the trawlers from Brittany ports sailed from the disputed area off Brazil two days ago. The other five trawlers received the order to leave Friday night.

Two boats set off toward French Guiana, while the rest are sailing toward Dakar, the owners said.

Brazil maintained that she has the exclusive right to take the lobsters from the continental shelf. France disputed the claim, arguing the fishing grounds are in international waters.

2,500 Physicians Want To Leave Castro Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — More than 2,500 Cuban physicians have applied for permission to leave their country, reports one who escaped by boat.

"Ninety-five per cent of the doctors would leave if they could," said Dr. Gumerdino Garay, 43, former sanitation director of the city of Cruces, Las Villas Province.

The Fidel Castro government does not let physicians leave the country because they are needed, Garay said Saturday in an interview.

"Medical men are a necessary evil for the Communist tyranny," he said.

"They tolerate us because we are indispensable, but they watch us and place obstacles in our path. If we don't work in government-owned clinics we are not permitted to practice privately. All clinics have been taken over by the government."

Garay reported an acute shortage of medicines in Cuba.

He said at the time he fled to Miami last week in a small boat with a party of six, pharmaceuticals sent to Cuba from the United States in payment for freed prisoners had not been made available.

Death Penalty Proposed For State Dope Peddlers

DENVER (UPI)—Colorado narcotics pushers could be sentenced to death for second offense convictions under a bill which passed the Colorado House of Representatives on a preliminary reading Friday.

The bill will receive final consideration Monday, and be sent to the Senate for action.

The measure provides for life imprisonment on the first offense of giving or selling narcotics to persons 25 years old or younger. On the second offense, the penalty would be either life in prison or death.

Several bills were introduced, including one which would set up an area redevelopment finance administration to promote and assist private industrial development in depressed areas. It was sponsored by Reps. Clarence Quinlan, R-Antonito and Philip Massari, D-Trinidad.

It carries a $300,000 appropriation.

Another bill called for continuation of a legislative council study of children's laws and child welfare.

Rep. Frank A. Kemp Jr., R-Denver, submitted a resolution calling on Congress to give consideration to two bills now pending in the U.S. Senate and House "to afford tax relief to parents and students who must bear a portion of the burden of the costs of higher education."

One would provide tax credit of 30 per cent or less for educational expenses paid to universities and the other calls for a deduction from gross income for education expenses.

Manitou Chamber Expands Tourist Season Planning

The Manitou Springs Chamber of Commerce began cranking up its tourist apparatus Saturday night at the annual spring membership dinner meeting held in the Cliff House.

Soon the apparatus will be hitting smoothly and easily on all eight cylinders as it takes care of the early flow of tourists and warms up for a full - throttle operation that will begin when the great mass of tourists hits here later in the spring.

Bob Young, president of the chamber, reported to the membership that the new four - color, fan - fold brochure now is being distributed across the country to help boost the tourist business this summer.

This is the first year that the Manitou Chamber has had a color brochure. A total of 52,000 of the brochures were printed at a cost of $2,500.

Miss Ardis Velasquez, secretary-treasurer of the chamber, said that inquiries from high school senior groups are coming in at an increasing rate and that the first groups of touring high school students are expected to begin arriving the last of this month.

The shows were at San Francisco, Kansas City, Wichita, Des

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Three top executives of the Iraqi Communist party have been executed on charges of killing civilians and soldiers and inciting the masses against the government, Gov. Gen. Rashid Muslih announced Saturday.

The military governor said all three—among thousands of Communists arrested after the Feb. 8 revolution that overthrew dictator Abdel Karim Kassem—were court-martialed Tuesday and put to death Thursday.

Chief of the group was Hassan Radhawi, secretary-general of the Iraqi Communist party. The others were identified as Mohammed Hussein Abdel Eis, a central committeeman, and Hassan Awaineh, party liaison officer.

These were the first executions announced since military leaders slew Kassem and installed an anti-Communist government last month.

An undetermined number of Communists remain under arrest. These arrests and the slaying of various Red agitators by troops in street fighting last month have been denounced by Soviet-bloc propagandists as bloody repression.

Baghdad observed quietly the fouth anniversary of the abortive uprising in 1959 against Kassem in Mosul, which Communist street mobs supporting the dictator turned into a blood bath.

Tarter Reelected Chairman of GOP In El Paso County

El Paso County Republicans, obviously happy with themselves for the rewards they collected last fall, reelected their top officers Saturday in a quiet meeting of the Republican Central Committee held in the county courthouse.

Weldon Tarter as chairman, Mrs. Ethna Burgess as vice chairwoman and Ed Strand as secretary were elected on white ballots with a minimum of time and effort expended.

Two years ago there was a short fight, and if it wasn't a hot fight, at least it was a mighty warm one, when the Republicans met to name their county officers.

At that time, Attorney Tarter locked horns with another attorney of about his age who was making his first move for party office — a man named John A. Love.

Tarter won and Love retired smiling.

Last fall, Love, in his first move for public office, was elected governor of Colorado.

Apparently Love was satisfied with the man he couldn't beat for county chairman for there were not moves made at

Tarter Challenges Bennett on County Reapportionment

The Republican chairman of El Paso County flung a challenge at his Democratic counterpart Saturday at the Republican Central Committee meeting held in the county courthouse.

Tarter delivered a short talk on reapportionment to the delegates and during his talk, took on John Bennett, Democratic chairman.

Said Tarter, "The chairman of another party in the county has stated that the reapportionment of El Paso County has not been fair.

"I don't think he has backed up his charge of unfair redistricting and I challenge Mr. Bennett to point where the redistricting is unfair."

The reapportionment bill that Tarter was referring to was the one passed by the state assembly earlier this year and signed into law by Gov. John A. Love.

Tarter said that he and other members of a committee worked hard to draw up a proposed re-

16 Workers Die In Explosion At Ruhr Plant

ARNSBERG, Germany (AP)—A violent explosion Saturday in a drop forging plant at the Ruhr Valley town of Belecke near here killed at least 16 workers and injured 40.

Most of the victims were buried when the roof of a large factory hall came down following the explosion, police said.

The blast, assumed by police to have been caused by a bursting compressed air pipe, damaged five other halls at the sprawling Stepmann works and shook the town of 3,000.

Russian Artists Told by Nikita Art Is Weapon

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has bluntly told Soviet writers and artists their works are weapons of the class struggle and that there is no place in the Soviet Union for Western abstract art.

Socialist realism, he said, cannot peacefully coexist with such "bourgeois perversions."

Khrushchev also thrust a jetty into the swelling tide of anti-Stalinist works. "Those years—under Stalin—were not a period of stagnation in the development of Soviet society," he declared.

His speech, delivered Friday to a brass-tacks meeting of Soviet artists, writers and Communist party leaders, was released by the news agency Tass early Sunday.

The crackdown on liberal trends among artists and writers was seen as an admission of the might of the pen and the artist's canvas in the Soviet Union and the growing influence here of Western art.

The thrust at anti-Stalin outbursts that Khrushchev himself triggered in 1961 was believed to be an attempt to ward off boomerang effects that might hit other areas of Soviet communism.

Khrushchev joined in the criticism of veteran Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg, a Jew, as a defender of modern art. The premier tried to head off any impression that the attack on Ehrenburg was anti-Semitic, stating: "There is no Jewish question in the Soviet Union, and those who invent it echo alien voices. Since the day of the October revolution in our country the Jews have had equal rights with all other peoples of the Soviet Union."

Largest Dynamite Factory in World Shaken by Blasts

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The world's largest dynamite factory blew up Saturday with four mighty blasts. It tumbled a brick wall 11 miles away, killing a woman. Casualties at the factory were reported low.

A company announcement said the explosions at Modderfontein, 16 miles from here, killed one white worker and left four or five Africans missing. It said 27 persons were injured. The cause was unknown. Police ruled out sabotage.

The South African Press Association said the force of the blasts caused a brick wall to fall in on a sleeping African servant in the the Kensington suburb, 11 miles from the factory.

Smoke and flame filled the sky above Modderfontein. The blasts were heard in Johannesburg.

Two Scientists to Ride New 'Stargazer Balloon'

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (UPI)— Two men will ride another "Stargazer" balloon 80,000 feet above the earth March 18 on a 24-hour mission to study the stars, the Air Force announced here.

The flight, similar to one last December, will conclude a basic research program in space environments by the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories at Hanscom Field, Mass.

Making their second such trip will be Capt. Joseph W. Kittinger of Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, and civilian astronomer William

C. White of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif.

They will take along a 12.5 inch telescope with a gyro-stabilizations system to track celestial bodies automatically.

The "Stargazer" program is aimed at observing the heavens through a telescope at a height above 90 per cent of the earth's atmosphere. Scientists say one of astronomy's greatest barriers to accurate observation of celestial bodies is the maze of light waves in the atmosphere that confront telescopes on the surface of the earth.

WITHHOLDING AND SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES: Employers liable for income tax withheld and social security taxes in excess of $100 for the month of February must deposit such taxes in a depositary by the deadline of March 15, using Form 450 for this purpose. Deposits may be made in local authorized banks, or Federal Reserve Banks. Employers without a copy of Circular E, "Employers Tax Guide," may obtain one from our local IRS office, Room 206 U.S. Post Office Bldg. This publication contains a full discussion of employment taxes as well as tables and percentage methods for computing such taxes.

CORPORATION FILING DATE MARCH 15TH: March 15 is the deadline for filing corporation federal income tax returns reporting on a calendar-year basis. Corporations must file on 1962 income tax return, Form 1120, or an application for extension, Form 7004, and they must pay at least 50 per cent of the balance of the tax due. Taxpayers and their tax advisers are urged to use extra care this year to assure that these returns are filled out completely and accurately. It is especially important that summary data from attached schedules be carried forward to the appropriate lines on the face of the returns. This is necessary for effective operation of electronic computer maintenance of taxpayer accounts. Be sure that the corporate name and the Employer Identification Number are entered correctly. Corporations which have elected not to be taxed as corporations must file on Form 1120S.

INFORMATION RETURNS: Annual information returns from all businesses had to be filed by February 28, 1963 covering 1962 payments of salaries, wages, fees, commissions, and other personal service compensation totaling $600 or more to the extent not reported on Form W-2. Dividends of $10 or more should be listed on the information return. Also include payments of interest, rents, royalties, annuities, pensions and other fixed or determinable income totaling $600 or more. These returns should have been filed on Forms 1096 and 1099, and should have been addressed and mailed to any of the Internal Revenue Service Centers shown on Form 1099.

TAX BOOKLETS: Additional supply has been received of the booklet "Your Federal Income Tax" available for 40 cents at our local IRS office. I highly recommend this booklet. It will provide a quick answer to 90 percent of your tax questions, get a copy tomorrow.

Barbara Price has been elected acting chairman of the newly formed Drama Club. Meg Blaine was named vice president and Cheryl Rodgers secretary-treasurer.

The Girls Athletic Assn. has been swimming in the new Cheyenne pool on Mondays after school. Those who do not enjoy swimming are given a chance to play table tennis. The GAA will sponsor the annual Sadie Hawkins Dance, at which the girls invite the boys. During the dance a "barnyard queen" will be elected and prizes will be given for the most original coursages which must be made from vegetables.

Le Circle Francais, Cheyenne's French Club, traveled to Boulder Saturday, March 2, to see the matinee performance of "Ophee and L'apollon De Bellac." These are two pieces of threatre magic presented by the "Le Treteau do Paris" on its fifth coast to coast college and university tour. The productions are under the auspices of the Government of the French Republec.

The Cheyenne Mountain High School Band is selling candy in order to raise money for five of the band members who will tour Europe with the School Band of America in the summer. Four members of the band have been chosen to play in the Colorado State Band. They are Evie O'kane, Judy Purcell, Betty Bishop and Don Neilson.

Student Council is in the process of setting up an assembly schedule. It is hoped that an assembly will be held every other week. These assemblies will be either educational, entertaining or discussions concerning school activities. Two assemblies have been held. A humorous, but educational assembly was sponsored by the Student Council Feb. 15. Simmon Fourie, Cheyenne's foreign exchange student, was the principal speaker.

New week an assembly will be held to explain the purpose of Boys' and Girls' State which are held during the first part of the summer. Butch Atkinson and Martha Gates will be the speakers.

HOTEL INDUSTRY

Indications are that the nation's hotel industry had a "poor" year in 1962 with the room occupancy falling to the lowest level in 24 years. The industry's accounting firm of Horwath & Horwath said, however, that a slowdown in hotel building and rehabilitation of older hotels could bring some improvement this year.

Federal Tax Tips

WITHHOLDING AND SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES: Employers liable for income tax withheld and social security taxes in excess of $100 for the month of February must deposit such taxes in a depositary by the deadline of March 15, using Form 450 for this purpose. Deposits may be made in local authorized banks, or Federal Reserve Banks. Employers without a copy of Circular E, "Employers Tax Guide," may obtain one from our local IRS office, Room 206 U.S. Post Office Bldg. This publication contains a full discussion of employment taxes as well as tables and percentage methods for computing such taxes.

CORPORATION FILING DATE MARCH 15TH: March 15 is the deadline for filing corporation federal income tax returns reporting on a calendar-year basis. Corporations must file on 1962 income tax return, Form 1120, or an application for extension, Form 7004, and they must pay at least 50 per cent of the balance of the tax due. Taxpayers and their tax advisers are urged to use extra care this year to assure that these returns are filled out completely and accurately. It is especially important that summary data from attached schedules be carried forward to the appropriate lines on the face of the returns. This is necessary for effective operation of electronic computer maintenance of taxpayer accounts. Be sure that the corporate name and the Employer Identification Number are entered correctly. Corporations which have elected not to be taxed as corporations must file on Form 1120S.

INFORMATION RETURNS: Annual information returns from all businesses had to be filed by February 28, 1963 covering 1962 payments of salaries, wages, fees, commissions, and other personal service compensation totaling $600 or more to the extent not reported on Form W-2. Dividends of $10 or more should be listed on the information return. Also include payments of interest, rents, royalties, annuities, pensions and other fixed or determinable income totaling $600 or more. These returns should have been filed on Forms 1096 and 1099, and should have been addressed and mailed to any of the Internal Revenue Service Centers shown on Form 1096.

TAX BOOKLETS: Additional supply has been received of the booklet "Your Federal Income Tax" available for 40 cents at our local IRS office. I highly recommend this booklet. It will provide a quick answer to 90 percent of your tax questions, get a copy tomorrow.

Game and Fish Director Named Audubon Advisor

Con D. Tolman, veteran director of information and education for the Colorado Game and Fish Department, will serve part time as consultant and western field representative for the Nature Centers Division of the National Audubon Society, it has been announced here, in Denver.

Tolman's new work will be conducted from his residence at 6050 Depew St. in Arvada. The arrangement was agreed on by the State Game and Fish Department and Audubon officials in New York City.

The Society's Nature Centers Division encourages the establishment of community areas—called by some "lands for learning"—where children and adult groups can receive professional instruction in natural science and conservation.

Many such centers are in operation in or near Eastern cities and one, called the "Plains Conservation Center," is now taking shape on the outskirts of Denver on land owned by the West Arapahoe Soil Conservation District.

Mr. Tolman will be available to give technical advice and planning help to private groups and public agencies interested in establishing such educational centers in the Intermountain States.

If you've been stoking a bird feeder for the feathered freeloaders this winter, now is no time to stop, according to the National Audubon Society. The most serious bird losses due to freezing and starvation generally occur in March or April when late winter storms strike and natural foods are hardest to find. Moreover, birds grown accustomed to handouts are less able than others to fend for themselves during hard times, Audubon experts say.

The Society recommends that winter bird feeding be continued until spring really arrives and insects become available. This usually occurs about April 1 in states along the Mason - Dixon line and about April 15 or May 1 in more northern states.

METEORITE PUNCTURE DETECTOR — John P. Dunn, a Martin-Denver design specialist, is shown with a drawing of a simple but effective system he has invented for the detection of meteorite puncture in space craft. Such detection will be required for quick location of damage should a puncture occur in the vacuum conditions of deep space.

Inventor Designs Space Craft Meteorite Detector

A simple system to detect and locate meteorite punctures on manned space vehicles has been invented by John P. Dunn, a Martin - Denver design specialist.

Most space station designs today incorporate double - wall construction, with the outer wall a sort of bumper which would either turn meteorites away or dissipate their energy so that the inner hull stops them.

Studies show that on rare occasions meterites could penetrate both the bumper and the pressurized interior of the spaceship, creating a dangerous situation.

The system devised by Dunn would fill the space between the bumper and the pressurized hull with vinyl bags about five feet square. Insulating materials could be enclosed within the bags.

Each bag would be punctured to allow expanding gases to escape on leaving the earth's atmosphere.

Pressure - sensitive transducers would be installed in each bag. If air pressure were introduced into the bag, alarm lights indicating location of the activated transducer would flash immediately.

Thus, if a meteorite penetrated only the bumper and the vinyl bag, the alarm system would pay no heed. But if the meteorite also penetrated the main hull, the slightest leak would release air pressure into the vinyl bag and stimulate the transducer. Immediately, crew members would know the existence of trouble and the approximate location of the puncture.

Thus, repairs could be effected quickly to the inside wall of the cabin. The system also would give a positive indication of the effectiveness of repairs, for the alarm would continue as long as air continued to escape.

Dunn says the vinyl bag would outlast the life expectancy of most spaceships. It could be punctured repeatedly and still function effectively.

A working model, two feet square and two inches wide, first was built and tested on November 3, 1961. The vinly bag was filled with insulation and functioned exactly as planned.

The transducer was activated each time air pressure was introduced into the bag even tho the bag was punctured numerous times.

Since that time Dunn has incorporated a number of improvements in the design.

Finnish Footracer To Visit Home Land

Dr. Arne L. Suominen of Delray Beach, Fla., whose challenge to a smoker to race him, a nonsmoker, to the summit of Pikes Peak resulted in the annual Pikes Peak Marathon, has written that on June 15 he will fly with a group of 113 persons to Finland, to return Aug. 10. He is a famous Finnish foot-racer.

He encloses a letter written Feb 4 by him to the editor of the Miami Herald in which he says:

"In my report on physical fitness to President Kennedy I did not suggest 50-mile hikes, merely mentioned how the Marine endurance champion, Pfc. Dennis Frandsen, a smoker, was completely outclassed when he tried hiking up Pikes Peak with nonsmokers."

Scientists To Hear Warren Speak Wednesday

Air Force Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren will be featured speaker at a meeting of leading U. S. aeronautical engineers and aerospace propulsion scientists Wednesday.

Gen. Warren will speak on "The Air Force Academy: Its Purposes, Plans, and Procedures" at a luncheon meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics at the Broadmoor.

AIAA members will also tour the Academy following the noon program.

Among other featured speakers will be Nobel Prize winner Dr. Willard Libbey, now a commissioner on the Atomic Energy Commission.

The AIAA, now the foremost U. S. agency in aeronautics and astronautics, was formed recently thru a merger of two of the oldest technical groups in the country. Its members include leading engineers and scientists in both fields.

Crime for Kicks Swiftly Outnumbering Pros' Work

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

A new type of criminal, who commits crimes for kicks and is reckless and unskilled, is swiftly outnumbering crimes committed by the old resourceful, master criminal of the past, according to Dr. Lewis Yablonsky, sociologist at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The scientist points out that the business of the crafty criminal of the past, a dying breed, was to make money, and to make money took skill, planning, daring and shrewdness. Burglary, robbery, hi - jacking, forgery, counterfeiting and other professional skills of the criminal sub - culture, became highly developed in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Specialists in such crimes not only knew how to pull a "caper," but how to do it in the cleanest way possible. Assault and violence were used as a secondary necessity to an end, not an end in themselves. This implied knowledge of law, of court proceedings, of police methods, and many other aspects of the "caper."

Today's criminal is more apt to be involved with kicks or thrills, and less with the material profit of his crime. His crimes are violent and often senseless. He has served no apprenticeship, as the old criminal had, and thus had developed little skill.

The old criminal codes of honor among thieves and "Thou shalt not squeal" are fast becoming criminal slogans of the past. The new criminal is likely to turn on his partners in crime, cheat on them and make technical errors in crime. He is also much younger and more likely to be some type of addict. Rise in the use of narcotics, and lesser methods of gaining a physical kick such as smelling glue, releases what inhibitions the untrained criminal has and goads him into senseless criminal assault, "for no reason except to do it."

Downfall of the old criminal culture of the past is partially related to improved police methods. In the big cities police methods, through scientific crime laboratories, are beginning to win a technological supremacy over the professional criminal and forcing them out of business.

High delinquency areas of the past had a stable population, and control. A criminal heirarchy could develop, through which the young trainee could progress upward. There was room at the top for an enterprising hood if he trained with older criminals and had vision, coolness and brains. There is no criminal ladder to climb in a shifting slum population. Shift from a stable slum condition of the past to a disorganized slum, where no forceful character achieves mastery over all other criminals, appears to be a significant factor in the development of the new hoodlum.

During recent weeks we have been talking with other sociologists, police officials, court guardians and probation officers. All agree that the increase in crime rates, particularly among those violators under 21 is caused by the desire for kicks.

In 1962 the total violent crime rate rose 7 per cent in spite of the fact that murder was down four per cent. Auto thefts increased 6 per cent; assault increased 9 per cent. There were a total of 1,926,090 arrests for violent crimes in 1962; a percentage of four crimes per minute throughout the year. As a group persons under 18 represented 43 percent of all arrests for the more serious crices; of these young males outnumbered young females better than six-to-one.

Burglary, auto thefts and criminal assault are many of the crimes included in the 43 per cent, nevertheless, police officials report to us that these crimes are more often than not committed for kicks, on the spur of the moment, or under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Young people, driven by some sense of lack in their lives, stimulated by a viciousness carry out these crimes with no finesse or skill.

In this manner the major problem today is coping with the crime for kicks, not the minor problem of the old-school criminal. Thus, in the minds of those to whom we talked, the only solution lies in the sociological patterns of our age.

Changes Urged for Fair Cardiac Compensation

The cost of compensation for "arteriosclerotic age," even in the presence of demonstrable cardiac disability borne by industry can be "greatly reduced" but not by keeping heart patients off the payrolls, Dr. Louis H. Sigler, Brooklyn, N.Y., said today.

"I believe that some corrections in our laws and in our mode of thinking are essential," Dr. Sigler said in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Instead of devising methods of eliminating cardiacs and so-called potential cardiacs, he said, industry should aim at detecting and preventing heart attacks among its employees and in rehabilitating and encouraging claimants to continue their work.

"In a great many individuals in the 'arteriosclerotic age' there may be absolutely no physical or laboratory findings to indicate the presence of coronary disease shortly before the acute attack, and it is often impossible to predict who will suffer an attack and to what extent," he said. "The theory of eliminating cardiacs from industry is therefore hypothetical in many cases."

Dr. Sigler said there have been many instances in which heart trouble occurred at home and no careful medical examination was made before the worker was allowed to return to his job. In many of these cases, he said, proper management of the patient and rest would have prevented a later attack occurring at work for which the employer was held responsible.

"This is a major factor which contributes greatly to loss of money and life in cardiac disease," he said.

The relatively safety of heart patients returning to work after recovery from an attack and the infrequency of total disability and early death should be demonstrated to industry and patients, Dr. Sigler said.

"Most individuals who sustain an acute cardiac injury and recover are able to pursue their occupations, in some cases for many years," he said. "In my experience, upward of 75 per cent to 85 per cent of patients who recover from acute infarction belong in that category.

"A realization of this fact by industry would allay the fear of employing individuals of the 'arteriosclerotic age,' even in the presence of demonstrable cardiac disease. It should also eliminate costly litigation in fighting every case, even those in which there is unmistakable casual relation-ship."

In addition, he said, some allowance should be made for the chronic underlying disease which participates in the development of the acute process. Altho the award ordinarily given for a disability is much smaller than the wage of the injured person, and may be considered as such an allowance, the difference is not sufficient to relieve the employer, he said.

Therefore, Dr. Sigler said, payment for the disability should be continued only up to the ordinary retirement age of the individual at which time Social Security and other benefits should take over.

"I believe that the savings to the employer or the insurance carrier by eliminating payments beyond the retirement age will greatly reduce the average cost of compensation and remove some of the fear in industry to employ these individuals," he said.

Finally, he said, for proper administration of compensation law in cardiac disability, it is essential that evaluation of each case be made by an impartial, well qualified physician elected and paid by the state. Under this arangement he said, a great many cases would be settled without the unnecessary expense of a trial.

Dr. Sigler is consulting cardiologist, Coney Island Hospital, Peninsula General Hospital, and Menorrah Home and Hospital for the Aged.

Scientists To Hear Warren Speak Wednesday

Air Force Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren will be featured speaker at a meeting of leading U. S. aeronautical engineers and aerospace propulsion scientists Wednesday.

Gen. Warren will speak on "The Air Force Academy: Its Purposes, Plans, and Procedures" at a luncheon meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics at the Broadmoor.

AIAA members will also tour the Academy following the noon program.

Among other featured speakers will be Nobel Prize winner Dr. Willard Libbey, now a commissioner on the Atomic Energy Commission.

The AIAA, now the foremost U. S. agency in aeronautics and astronautics, was formed recently thru a merger of two of the oldest technical groups in the country. Its members include leading engineers and scientists in both fields.

Crime for Kicks Swiftly Outnumbering Pros' Work

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

A new type of criminal, who commits crimes for kicks and is reckless and unskilled, is swiftly outnumbering crimes committed by the old resourceful, master criminal of the past, according to Dr. Lewis Yablonsky, sociologist at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The scientist points out that the business of the crafty criminal of the past, a dying breed, was to make money, and to make money took skill, planning, daring and shrewdness. Burglary, robbery, hi - jacking, forgery, counterfeiting and other professional skills of the criminal sub - culture, became highly developed in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Specialists in such crimes not only knew how to pull a "caper," but how to do it in the cleanest way possible. Assault and violence were used as a secondary necessity to an end, not an end in themselves. This implied knowledge of law, of court proceedings, of police methods, and many other aspects of the "caper."

Today's criminal is more apt to be involved with kicks or thrills, and less with the material profit of his crime. His crimes are violent and often senseless. He has served no apprenticeship, as the old criminal had, and thus had developed little skill.

The old criminal codes of honor among thieves and "Thou shalt not squeal" are fast becoming criminal slogans of the past. The new criminal is likely to turn on his partners in crime, cheat on them and make technical errors in crime. He is also much younger and more likely to be some type of addict. Rise in the use of narcotics, and lesser methods of gaining a physical kick such as smelling glue, releases what inhibitions the untrained criminal has and goads him into senseless criminal assault, "for no reason except to do it."

Downfall of the old criminal culture of the past is partially related to improved police methods. In the big cities police methods, through scientific crime laboratories, are beginning to win a technological supremacy over the professional criminal and forcing them out of business.

High delinquency areas of the past had a stable population, and control. A criminal heirarchy could develop, through which the young trainee could progress upward. There was room at the top for an enterprising hood if he trained with older criminals and had vision, coolness and brains. There is no criminal ladder to climb in a shifting slum population. Shift from a stable slum condition of the past to a disorganized slum, where no forceful character achieves mastery over all other criminals, appears to be a significant factor in the development of the new hoodlum.

During recent weeks we have been talking with other sociologists, police officials, court guardians and probation officers. All agree that the increase in crime rates, particularly among those violators under 21 is caused by the desire for kicks.

In 1962 the total violent crime rate rose 7 per cent in spite of the fact that murder was down four per cent. Auto thefts increased 6 per cent; assault increased 9 per cent. There were a total of 1,926,090 arrests for violent crimes in 1962, a percentage of four crimes per minute throughout the year. As a group persons under 18 represented 43 percent of all arrests for the more serious crices; of these young males outnumbered young females better than six-to-one.

Burglary, auto thefts and criminal assault are many of the crimes included in the 43 per cent, nevertheless, police officials report to us that these crimes are more often than not committed for kicks, on the spur of the moment, or under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Young people, driven by some sense of lack in their lives, stimulated by a viciousness carry out these crimes with no finesse or skill.

In this manner the major problem today is coping with the crime for kicks, not the minor problem of the old-school criminal. Thus, in the minds of those to whom we talked, the only solution lies in the sociological patterns of our age.

Aerospace Colonel Wiener, Veteran Antarctic Explorer

By S. SGT. C. COLLINSWORTH
9th Aerospace Defense Division

There is a special breed of man who will challenge nature's worst elements for the thrill of discovery.

He has often met the worst that nature has to offer while traveling the trails marked by Shackleton, Amundsen, Scott, and Byrd.

A veteran of five expeditions to the Antarctic and several to the Arctic, Wiener is a quiet, retiring man whose career has spanned more than a quarter of a century of battling the elements in earth's coldest regions.

He made his first sortie into a polar region in 1937 as a member of the McGregor Arctic Expedition to Northwest Greenland. He describes this trip as "adventure pure and simple". He was 21 years old when he signed on as assistant physicist in charge of auroral observations and chief photographer for the ten - man party.

"This was a self - supported trip," he recalls, "and we were illequipped, even for those days. We had to scrounge everything from money to fuel and the 109 foot three - masted schooner we used had seen much better days."

The food for the expedition was not plentiful. The main supply consisted of a few barrels of salt pork and canned meat, most of which spoiled during the trip.

"This was principally," says the colonel, "a lesson in how not to run a popular expedition." But it proved to be invaluable experience for his later trips.

In 1939 he journeyed to the other end of the earth with the United States Antarctic Expedition to Little America under the command of the late Adm. Richard E. Byrd.

His duties on the famed, two-year exploration ranged from experimental physicist in the study of Aurora Australis (the southern version of the Northern Lights,) it being one of a team of nine dog-sled drivers.

Wiener calls the Antarctic the "home of the blizzard" and says that the temperature drops to 120 degrees below zero during the coldest part of the year and rarely goes above 32 degrees in the summer.

Regarding Adm. Byrd, Wiener says, "He was a great American. There was nothing more important to this man than the nation's welfare. He had a marvelous sense of humor and was particularly considerate of people. He was also a perfectionist who left nothing to chance.

At no time would Adm. Byrd knowingly direct a man to do something that would endanger the man's life. He tried to anticipate every emergency and on all his expeditions to the South Pole not one life was lost.

"Byrd loved the Antarctic and it was due largely to his efforts that the Antarctic Treaty was signed. This treaty was signed in 1959 by 13 nations, including the United States and Russia, as a means of insuring that the Antarctic continent would always be used for peaceful purposes," the Colonel said.

Col. Wiener returned to the U. S. in 1941 and was one of 33 men stationed at Little America to recive a special Congressional Gold Medal for Scientific and Geographic Exploration in the Antarctic.

In May, 1943, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and spent the remaining war years in special Arctic operations in both the North Atlantic Area (Labrador, Newfoundland, and Greenland), and Alaska.

On this training expedition he served as emergency aircraft search and rescue advisor and environmental consultant. This second trip to the frozen south was somewhat easier, since the cold weather duties were shared by 4,000 men.

His third trip to the Antarctic was made in 1954 - 1955 aboard the U. S. Navy Icebreaker "Atka." He was the Air Force representative on this expedition to locate suitable base sites for the U. S. Scientific Program for the International Geophysical Year.

As part of the IGY program, the U. S. agreed to establish seven sites including one directly at the geographic South Pole in the center of the Antarctic Continent.

"This was a tremendous accomplishment," says Wiener, "and could not have been done without the aid of the USAF C-124 Douglas Globemaster aircraft.

In 1955 he was assigned as USAF representative to Adm. Byrd, then officer-in-charge of the U. S. Antarctic Programs, and was a member of the Admiral's personal staff. In this capacity, he acted as special advisor for matters pertaining to personal safety and environmental living in the Antarctic.

While with Adm. Byrd, he took part in Operation Deep Freeze I, to establish and man the Antarctic base camps from which U. S. scientific observations were made in connection with the IGY.

In 1956 he returned to the Antarctic for the third consecutive year as Adm. Byrd's personal field representative on Operation Deep Freeze II.

Before going on Deep Freeze I, Col. Wiener was presented with an Air Force pennant by Gen. Thomas White, then the USAF vice chief of staff, with instructions to "see that this flies over the South Pole."

Wiener was unable to get the pennant to its destination during that time, but it was finally planted there on Nov. 25, 1956. This was the first Air Force pennant to ever fly over the South Pole and, at Gen. White's direction, the colonel later presented it to the Air Force Academy where it's on permanent display.

Altho Wiener would like someday to go back to the South Pole, his desire isn't as strong as it used to be.

"It's a far cry from the early days," he says, "The spark of adventure that it once held went out with the advent of steam heat and automatic washing machines.

He feels that Antarctica was the last, great, unexplored frontier on earth and that man now looks to space for new areas to conquer.

The Colonel is looking to space in his present assignment as director of plans and policy for the 9th Aerospace Defense Division.

PENNANT RAISING—USAF Sergeant Richard J. Patton raises the first Air Force Pennant over the South Pole. At the direction of Lt. Colonel Murray A. Wiener, the pennant was parachuted in with the sergeant and unfurled on November 25, 1956.

SOUTH POLE PENNANT — Examining the first Air Force Pennant to fly over the South Pole are Lt. Colonel Murray Wiener and Academy Cadets Michael J. C. Roth and Thomas A. Fryer. The Pennant, which was raised over the South Pole on November 25, 1956, was presented to the Academy by Colonel Wiener in 1957 and is on permanent display at the Academy Visitor's Center.

Mouse Milk May Aid in Cancer Cure

From mouse milk costing $10,000-a-quart, Columbia University scientists have isolated what appears to be a virus, possibly the cause of breast cancer in both mice and women. J.D. Ratcliff describes the research in a March Reader's Digest article, "Facts About Breast Cancer."

Since a lactating mouse yields no more than 1-30th ounce of milk, a mouse-milking machine, a Lilliputian version of the devices used in dairy barns, had to be made to obtain the milk.

The tiny gadgets have been used on more than 20,000 mice and have yielded 30 quarts of mouse milk—"certainly the most expensive milk the world has seen" costing $10,000 a quart. Efforts are now under way to grow the virus in the laboratory..

"If this can be achieved," writes Ratcliff, "virus will become available in sufficient quantities for production of trial vaccines, which might prod the body to build protection against cancer. The result could be a research triumph of the greatest magnitude."

Another new development, he reports, is Thio-TEPA, an anti-cancer chemical. Breast cancer patients who had this as well as surgery have somewhat better rates of recovery than those receiving surgery alone.

If the knowledge now available were put to work under favorable circumstances, the Digest article says, the lives of 80 per cent of the 25,000 women who die of breast cancer each year might be saved.

Aerospace Colonel Wiener, Veteran Antarctic Explorer

By S. SGT. C. COLLINSWORTH
9th Aerospace Defense Division

There is a special breed of man who will challenge nature's worst elements for the thrill of discovery.

He has often met the worst that nature has to offer while traveling the trails marked by Shackleton, Amundsen, Scott, and Byrd.

A veteran of five expeditions to the Antarctic and several to the Arctic, Wiener is a quiet, retiring man whose career has spanned more than a quarter of a century of battling the elements in earth's coldest regions.

He made his first sortie into a polar region in 1937 as a member of the McGregor Arctic Expedition to Northwest Greenland. He describes this trip as "adventure pure and simple". He was 21 years old when he signed on as assistant physicist in charge of auroral observations and chief photographer for the ten - man party.

"This was a self - supported trip," he recalls, "and we were illequipped, even for those days. We had to scrounge everything from money to fuel and the 109 foot three - masted schooner we used had seen much better days."

The food for the expedition was not plentiful. The main supply consisted of a few barrels of salt pork and canned meat, most of which spoiled during the trip.

"This was principally," says the colonel, "a lesson in how not to run a popular expedition." But it proved to be invaluable experience for his later trips.

In 1939 he journeyed to the other end of the earth with the United States Antarctic Expedition to Little America under the command of the late Adm. Richard E. Byrd.

His duties on the famed, two-year exploration ranged from experimental physicist in the study of Aurora Australis (the southern version of the Northern Lights,) it being one of a team of nine dog-sled drivers.

Wiener calls the Antarctic the "home of the blizzard" and says that the temperature drops to 120 degrees below zero during the coldest part of the year and rarely goes above 32 degrees in the summer.

Regarding Adm. Byrd, Wiener says, "He was a great American. There was nothing more important to this man than the nation's welfare. He had a marvelous sense of humor and was particularly considerate of people. He was also a perfectionist who left nothing to chance.

At no time would Adm. Byrd knowingly direct a man to do something that would endanger the man's life. He tried to anticipate every emergency and on all his expeditions to the South Pole not one life was lost.

"Byrd loved the Antarctic and it was due largely to his efforts that the Antarctic Treaty was signed. This treaty was signed in 1959 by 13 nations, including the United States and Russia, as a means of insuring that the Antarctic continent would always be used for peaceful purposes," the Colonel said.

Col. Wiener returned to the U. S. in 1941 and was one of 33 men stationed at Little America to recive a special Congressional Gold Medal for Scientific and Geographic Exploration in the Antarctic.

In May, 1943, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and spent the remaining war years in special Arctic operations in both the North Atlantic Area (Labrador, Newfoundland, and Greenland), and Alaska.

On this training expedition he served as emergency aircraft search and rescue advisor and environmental consultant. This second trip to the frozen south was somewhat easier, since the cold weather duties were shared by 4,000 men.

His third trip to the Antarctic was made in 1954 - 1955 aboard the U. S. Navy Icebreaker "Atka." He was the Air Force representative on this expedition to locate suitable base sites for the U. S. Scientific Program for the International Geophysical Year.

As part of the IGY program, the U. S. agreed to establish seven sites including one directly at the geographic South Pole in the center of the Antarctic Continent.

"This was a tremendous accomplishment," says Wiener, "and could not have been done without the aid of the USAF C-124 Douglas Globemaster aircraft.

In 1955 he was assigned as USAF representative to Adm. Byrd, then officer-in-charge of the U. S. Antarctic Programs, and was a member of the Admiral's personal staff. In this capacity, he acted as special advisor for matters pertaining to personal safety and environmental living in the Antarctic.

While with Adm. Byrd, he took part in Operation Deep Freeze I, to establish and man the Antarctic base camps from which U. S. scientific observations were made in connection with the IGY.

In 1956 he returned to the Antarctic for the third consecutive year as Adm. Byrd's personal field representative on Operation Deep Freeze II.

Before going on Deep Freeze I, Col. Wiener was presented with an Air Force pennant by Gen. Thomas White, then the USAF vice chief of staff, with instructions to "see that this flies over the South Pole."

Wiener was unable to get the pennant to its destination during that time, but it was finally planted there on Nov. 25, 1956. This was the first Air Force pennant to ever fly over the South Pole and, at Gen. White's direction, the colonel later presented it to the Air Force Academy where it's on permanent display.

Altho Wiener would like someday to go back to the South Pole, his desire isn't as strong as it used to be.

"It's a far cry from the early days," he says, "The spark of adventure that it once held went out with the advent of steam heat and automatic washing machines.

He feels that Antarctica was the last, great, unexplored frontier on earth and that man now looks to space for new areas to conquer.

The Colonel is looking to space in his present assignment as director of plans and policy for the 9th Aerospace Defense Division.

PENNANT RAISING—USAF Sergeant Richard J. Patton raises the first Air Force Pennant over the South Pole. At the direction of Lt. Colonel Murray A. Wiener, the pennant was parachuted in with the sergeant and unfurled on November 25, 1956.

SOUTH POLE PENNANT — Examining the first Air Force Pennant to fly over the South Pole are Lt. Colonel Murray Wiener and Academy Cadets Michael J. C. Roth and Thomas A. Fryer. The Pennant, which was raised over the South Pole on November 25, 1956, was presented to the Academy by Colonel Wiener in 1957 and is on permanent display at the Academy Visitor's Center.

Mouse Milk May Aid in Cancer Cure

From mouse milk costing $10,000-a-quart, Columbia University scientists have isolated what appears to be a virus, possibly the cause of breast cancer in both mice and women. J.D. Ratcliff describes the research in a March Reader's Digest article, "Facts About Breast Cancer."

Since a lactating mouse yields no more than 1-30th ounce of milk, a mouse-milking machine, a Lilliputian version of the devices used in dairy barns, had to be made to obtain the milk.

The tiny gadgets have been used on more than 20,000 mice and have yielded 30 quarts of mouse milk—"certainly the most expensive milk the world has seen" costing $10,000 a quart. Efforts are now under way to grow the virus in the laboratory..

"If this can be achieved," writes Ratcliff, "virus will become available in sufficient quantities for production of trial vaccines, which might prod the body to build protection against cancer. The result could be a research triumph of the greatest magnitude."

Another new development, he reports, is Thio-TEPA, an anti-cancer chemical. Breast cancer patients who had this as well as surgery have somewhat better rates of recovery than those receiving surgery alone.

If the knowledge now available were put to work under favorable circumstances, the Digest article says, the lives of 80 per cent of the 25,000 women who die of breast cancer each year might be saved.

Rioting Youths Cause $1,600 School Damage

custodian at Cheyenne Mountain High School, who said that a group of teenagers were breaking windows at the school.

When they arrived, Moore and Quien said they found an axe and a baseball bat on the grounds. Windows were broken and the gate and fence damaged.

A short time later, the father of the boy who had driven thru the gate called the sheriff's office. The deputies went to the boy's house.

Outside they found the boy's car. The motor and radiator were steaming, they said. The front end was extensively damaged. A hood ornament found at the high school fitted the hood of the car.

The boy told Moore and Quien that he and some friends had gone to the Howdy Pard Drive-in after the game because they heard there was going to be a fight.

The teenager said that when they arrived, "the cops were there" so they picked up some other youths and went to the Garden of the Gods. The boy said that when they got there, no one was around so they headed back to the Drive-in and then went on to the high school thinking the fight would be held on the football field.

Moore and Quinn quoted the boy as saying that when they arrived, one of the passengers got out of the car and broke off the lock on the north gate of the field with an axe.

The boy said he drove onto the field and then heard glass breaking. He said he saw 15 to 20 boys racing up a bank toward the school and started to turn the car around.

However, another car was in the gate and he told deputies he became frightened and headed the car for the south gate, crashing thru it.

The deputies were able to trace three cars involved in the rumble. They said, however, that there were more cars involved but were unable to trace them.

The names of the youngsters involved will be turned over to proper authorities pending further action on the matter.

Russian Artists Told by Nikita Art Is Weapon

year-old Ehrenburg did not hear Khrushchev speak but left Thursday after he was criticized by Leonid Ilyichev, the party's chief official propagandist.

Ehrenburg was reported to have told a young writer as he departed, "I will never see the blooming of Soviet art, but you will see it, in 20 years."

Khrushchev told the gathering, "We stand on class positions in art and are emphatically against the peaceful coexistence of Socialist and bourgeois ideologies.

"Art belongs to the sphere of ideology. And those who think that both Socialist realism and formalistic, abstractionist trends can get along peacefully together in Soviet art inevitably backslide to alien positions of peaceful coexistence in ideology."

Castro Could Smash Any Uprising, Diplomats Say

force equipped with the latest weapons, including rockets and more than 100 jet aircraft.

This evaluation of Cuban strength was given United Press International by West European diplomats who have been stationed in Havana since Castro's rise to power in January, 1959.

They said that while discontent was widespread and often vocal, there is virtually no evidence of organized and effective anti-Castro underground movements.

The possibility of a massive popular uprising was also discounted.

A number of small anti-Castro bands in central Cuba were reported to have been rounded up in recent months by well-armed militia forces, estimated to number well over 150,000 throughout the country.

Most clandestine operations in the cities have been kept powerless by a far-ranging system of informers and a political police trained mainly by East German and Hungarian agents, the sources said.

The Soviet troops, on the other hand, have been deliberately confined to remote camps to make their presence on the island as inconspicuous as possible. Diplomats also felt that Soviet officers were anxious to keep out of the mercurial political situation developing within the Cuban leadership as a result of the Moscow-Peking split.

This matter is being left entirely to the political staff of the Soviet Embassy and to Communist Party officials, they said.

The diplomats agreed that if Moscow had ever planned to use the troops as a political weapon to control the internal situation in Cuba, it was more likely that they would be employed to buttress a specific pro-Moscow faction within the Castro government, rather than as a repressive force against any popular uprising similar to the Hungarian revolution of 1956.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

Precipitation was rather sparse over the country during the afternoon hours Saturday, being confined mainly to the north central and eastern sections.

Occasional light rain fell along a weakening cold front from Tennessee, northward thru Kentucky and southern Ohio, and turned to snow in northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

A few scattered thunderstorms erupted in central Florida during the late afternoon. Local moderate to heavy rainfall amounts were received in this area with Tampa recording 1.06 in six hours and Orlando measuring .85.

Precipitation amounts were generally light in other areas.

Elsewhere, scattered light snow showers spotted portions of the northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley and were expected to spread into the Great Lakes region during the night Saturday.

In the far west, a few snow flurries in the northern Rockies and scattered light showers over the interior mountains region of southern California and western Nevada marred an otherwise fair weather pattern over the vast region from the southern Plains and Rockies to the Pacific northwest.

With most of the nation enjoying mild spring - like temperatures, the northeastern corner still shivered in below freezing weather from North Dakota, eastward across the Great Lakes and into the northern New England.

The 50s and 60s were most common in other areas with 70s or higher reserved for the southern border states. A few 80s popped up in southern Florida and south Texas.

want to predict what the senate would do with the bill repealing the realty recording act.

Braden did not venture a guess on future senate action, but did believe that if the bill is passed, Gov. John A. Love would sign it.

Braden said he believed that the house might pass one bill and the senate another, and then the differences would have to be worked out by a joint house-senate committee.

He also pointed out that if the assembly can not agree on a bill, that the state will revert to the old financing bill to raise funds for schools.

Braden added that he did not think the assembly would finish its work much before the middle of April.

Medications Stolen From Doctor's Office

A quantity of vaccines and other medications were stolen sometime Friday night from the offices of Dr. Donald MacCorquodale, 503 N. Nevada Ave., city police said.

Also missing were a typewriter and a microscope, police reports said.

The 17 bottles of vaccine and medication, including some penicillin, had no narcotic value, police said. They were stolen from a laboratory in the building.

Desks and filing cabinets were riffled, but nothing of value was reported missing. Entrance was gained by breaking a window on the south side of the building.

Widefield School District Sees Finance Delay

and Monday, making a four-day weekend.

The resignation of Miss Linda Hadley, high school English teacher, was accepted. She resigned effective the end of this school year because she plans to marry.

The board discussed briefly the district policy regarding persons employed by the district who are called for jury duty. Board President Dr. Thomas Slack asked Taylor to determine what kind of policy District 11 has, and suggested that District 3 might use the same.

A $10 membership in the National School Board Association was approved. This provides for two personal memberships of members of the board. Three members thus will not become members of the association. The board did not specify which two members should be listed as belonging to the group.

High school principal Robert Poole made a report to the board on the proposed new salary schedule for school principals. He pointed out that the principals in the district have not had a pay increase for four years, but that the teachers have had a basic 10 per cent increase.

It was decided not to take any action on the proposal, since the district can not determine its finances for next year until the state legislature acts.

A four - man delegation from the Hayes Drive area near the South Security Grade School presented a petition to the board asking that a fence and barricade be removed from along the property line of the school. The petition said removal of the fence and barricade would increase safety of the school children.

Taylor, Slack and board member Roger Faye explained to the delegation that the fence and barricade had been put up to help keep drivers off school playground areas and that the board believed it was acting for the safety of the children by putting up the fence and barricade.

Action on the petition was delayed until next month, to give the school board members a chance to go to the site and look over the area the delegation referred to.

He reported that the properties affected were at 53, 57, 61, 65, 69, 73, 77, 81, and 85 Hayes Drive.

The board accepted deed for a piece of land from Sproul Homes that is involved in a three - way trade that next will see the land being traded to Widefield Homes, Inc., in exchange for some land that the district needs to straighten out a school lot boundary.

It was decided to put off any discussion on policy regarding names for new schools until the board members have had time to give the problem more thought.

Moines, Dallas, and Omaha, as well as Denver.

Other events and announcements during the meeting:

Dave Cowen, vice president of the Colorado Springs Transit Company, was publicly thanked as the man who kept bus service going this winter between Manitou Springs and Colorado Springs after it had temporarily appeared that the service might be severed.

Mike Edwards was thanked for the successful job he did last year with the annual buffalo barbecue.

Earl Pitcock, a member of the city council as well as being a businessman in Manitou Springs, accepted the thanks of the chamber for the $300 which the city gave to the chamber and the Manitou Chamber promptly gave to the Colorado Springs Chamber to help promote the travel shows.

Young announced a new membership drive is forthcoming.

The chamber now has more than 225 members and wants to add at least 25 new ones, he said.

Miss Velasquez reported that memberships cost $25. It also was reported that a drive to sell second memberships is planned for the future, although not all details are completed.

'Relief' Clients To Get Free Contraceptives

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Free contraceptives and birth control information become available April 1 for approximately 75,000 mothers on Illinois relief rolls.

The Illinois Public Aid Commission, plagued by money problems and controversy, voted 7-3 Friday against a move to delay the start of the statewide plan.

The effect of the vote was to direct the IPAC staff to start a program based on recommendations of an advisory committee of physicians.

When a physician announced a meeting would be held March 17 to plan additional details, State Auditor Michael J. Howlett asked in astonishment, "You mean you're going to make plans for birth control on St. Patrick's Day?"

Harold O. Swank, the commission's administrative officer, estimated earlier the cost of the program could run as high as $60 a year per mother. This includes the cost of visits to a doctor and contraceptive pills or other devices.

The plan approved by the IPAC guarantees privacy of the physician-patient relationship.

It also provides a complete pelvic examination and early cancer detection tests when indicated; a limit of two to four visits a year to a doctor; instructions in one of three birth control methods—rhythm, local appliances or oral medication, and development of a manual for physicians on the program.

The birth control plan was first approved by the commission, the state's welfare agency, last Dec. 3. Protestants and Jews mostly approved the controversial decision; Roman Catholics opposed it.

Car Hurtles Off Pass; Two Men Injured

Two men were injured at 6:15 p.m. Saturday, one of them seriously, when their car crashed thru guard railings on U.S. 24 at Ute Pass and bounced more than 120 feet into the bottom of a gully.

Nelson E. Gennari, 21, 4614th Support Group, Peterson Field, driver of the car, and James Sallee, 22 of Waterloo, Iowa, were still being treated in the Emergency Room at St. Francis Hospital at press time.

Gennari, suffered severe head injuries and contusions of the body in the accident and Sallee suffered a broken leg and other injuries, state patrol reports said.

Sgt. Jake Abendschan and Patrolman Gene Fisher of the state patrol said the car in which the two men were riding was apparently traveling at a high rate of speed when Gennari lost control of the vehicle.

The officers said the car skidded out of control for 80 feet before crashing thru the guard railings. They said the car bounced off a huge boulder, sheared the limbs from a tree at a height of approximately 30 feet and came to rest on its wheels in a creek.

Vandals Smear Inside of Local Residence

The sheriff's office is searching for vandals who broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Smith Friday night and dumped flower pots on the bed in addition to doing other damage.

Reports said that the vandals also poured a quart of syrup onto the kitchen floor, the refrigerator and stove and windows.

Two watches, which were on a shelf, were found in a jar of water and a number of old pennies were stolen from a box in the house, the sheriff's office said.

Car and Horse Collide; Local Couple Injured

A local couple was injured slightly Friday when their car was involved in a collision with a horse on U.S. 85-87 about one mile south of Colorado Springs.

Phillip R. Turner, 25, driver of the car, and his wife, Judy Lynn, 19, of 130 Amherst St., were treated at the scene for cuts and bruises and released.

The horse, a bay mare had to be destroyed because of injuries it suffered when it ran into the side of the car, state patrol reports said.

Damage to the car was estimated at $500. The accident happened at 11:15 p.m.

Profane Speech Leads to Mass Resignations

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Paul Baker, Baylor University's drama chairman, his wife and 11 drama staff members resigned here in a dispute over retention of profane language in a Eugene O'Neill play production.

The president of the Baptist school, Abner McCall, closed O'Neill's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "A Long Day's Journey Into Night," in mid-run Dec. 6 after Baker refused to do so at McCall's request. O'Neill's widow had stipulated the play could not be censored when she agreed to the Baylor production.

McCall said here the play violated long-standing university policy against productions containing "vulgar, profane or blasphemous language" or "which ridicule the Christian religion."

Trinity University, a Presbyterian school at San Antonio, immediately announced Baker will become head of its drama department. Trinity President James Laurie said his school has given Baker, a former Trinity student, no pledge of academic freedom, but will consider hiring any of the resigned Baylor faculty members who apply.

Baker and the 11 staff members will continue to operate the Dallas Theater Center, which Baker organized several years ago.

Baker, 51, twice has been president of the National Theater Conference and has headed regional theater associations.

He has a long record of producing original plays and of experimental productions of Shakespeare and other classic authors.

The drama department faculty members said their resignations are effective Sept. 1 or earlier if Baylor wishes to release them. A Baylor spokesman indicated that plans are to retain the group until fall.

U. S. Denies Poison Gas Use in War

United States was using poison gas against civilians in South Viet Nam and that hundreds of persons had perished.

"The world has become witness of another monstrous crime," wrote Krasnaya Evesda (Red Star, official organ of the Soviet defense ministry. "The American interventionists have again used poison substances in South Viet Nam. Hundreds of people perished, a great quantity of cattle was poisoned."

The newspaper said the United States manufactured a poison gas called "GB" at a factory near Denver from a formula captured from the Nazis, and loaded it into the warheads of rockets, bombs and missiles at the same spot.

"The cross - ocean strategists greedily grasped whatever the Hitlerite criminals didn't dare to use," Red Star added.

Tarter Challenges Bennett on County Reapportionment

districting of the county as requested. He also pointed out that the Democrats of the county had been asked to submit a plan for redistricting also, and had done so.

(The Republican plan for the county was the one accepted by the Republican legislature.)

Tarter said that the legislative council, which had asked for the plans, made one major change in the proposal submitted by the Republicans. It disagreed with the submitted idea of putting both the Air Force Academy and Ft. Carson into one state senatorial district, and so moved the Academy into the eastern district, leaving Ft. Carson in the western senatorial district of the county.

Tarter explained that in the study made by his party, it was determined that the population center of the county was found to be somewhere northeast of Colorado College near the western edge of Patty Jewett Golf Course.

Keeping that area as a focal point, the committee tried to establish balanced districts for the county representatives, Tarter reported.

custodian at Cheyenne Mountain High School, who said that a group of teenagers were breaking windows at the school.

When they arrived, Moore and Quien said they found an axe and a baseball bat on the grounds. Windows were broken and the gate and fence damaged.

A short time later, the father of the boy who had driven thru the gate called the sheriff's office. The deputies went to the boy's house.

Outside they found the boy's car. The motor and radiator were steaming, they said. The front end was extensively damaged. A hood ornament found at the high school fitted the hood of the car.

The boy told Moore and Quien that he and some friends had gone to the Howdy Pard Drive-in after the game because they heard there was going to be a fight.

The teenager said that when they arrived, "the cops were there" so they picked up some other youths and went to the Garden of the Gods. The boy said that when they got there, no one was around so they headed back to the Drive-in and then went on to the high school thinking the fight would be held on the football field.

Moore and Quinn quoted the boy as saying that when they arrived, one of the passengers got out of the car and broke off the lock on the north gate of the field with an axe.

The boy said he drove onto the field and then heard glass breaking. He said he saw 15 to 20 boys racing up a bank toward the school and started to turn the car around.

However, another car was in the gate and he told deputies he became frightened and headed the car for the south gate, crashing thru it.

The deputies were able to trace three cars involved in the rumble. They said, however, that there were more cars involved but were unable to trace them.

The names of the youngsters involved will be turned over to proper authorities pending further action on the matter.

and Monday, making a four-day weekend.

The resignation of Miss Linda Hadley, high school English teacher, was accepted. She resigned effective the end of this school year because she plans to marry.

The board discussed briefly the district policy regarding persons employed by the district who are called for jury duty. Board President Dr. Thomas Slack asked Taylor to determine what kind of policy District 11 has, and suggested that District 3 might use the same.

A $10 membership in the National School Board Association was approved. This provides for two personal memberships of members of the board. Three members thus will not become members of the association. The board did not specify which two members should be listed as belonging to the group.

High school principal Robert Poole made a report to the board on the proposed new salary schedule for school principals. He pointed out that the principals in the district have not had a pay increase for four years, but that the teachers have had a basic 10 per cent increase.

It was decided not to take any action on the proposal, since the district can not determine its finances for next year until the state legislature acts.

A four - man delegation from the Hayes Drive area near the South Security Grade School presented a petition to the board asking that a fence and barricade be removed from along the property line of the school. The petition said removal of the fence and barricade would increase safety of the school children.

Castro Could Smash Any Uprising, Diplomats Say

force equipped with the latest weapons, including rockets and more than 100 jet aircraft.

This evaluation of Cuban strength was given United Press International by West European diplomats who have been stationed in Havana since Castro's rise to power in January, 1959.

They said that while discontent was widespread and often vocal, there is virtually no evidence of organized and effective anti-Castro underground movements.

The possibility of a massive popular uprising was also discounted.

A number of small anti-Castro bands in central Cuba were reported to have been rounded up in recent months by well-armed militia forces, estimated to number well over 150,000 throughout the country.

Most clandestine operations in the cities have been kept powerless by a far-ranging system of informers and a political police trained mainly by East German and Hungarian agents, the sources said.

The Soviet troops, on the other hand, have been deliberately confined to remote camps to make their presence on the island as inconspicuous as possible. Diplomats also felt that Soviet officers were anxious to keep out of the mercurial political situation developing within the Cuban leadership as a result of the Moscow-Peking split.

This matter is being left entirely to the political staff of the Soviet Embassy and to Communist Party officials, they said.

The diplomats agreed that if Moscow had ever planned to use the troops as a political weapon to control the internal situation in Cuba, it was more likely that they would be employed to buttress a specific pro-Moscow faction within the Castro government, rather than as a repressive force against any popular uprising similar to the Hungarian revolution of 1956.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

Precipitation was rather sparse over the country during the afternoon hours Saturday, being confined mainly to the north central and eastern sections.

Occasional light rain fell along a weakening cold front from Tennessee, northward thru Kentucky and southern Ohio, and turned to snow in northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

A few scattered thunderstorms erupted in central Florida during the late afternoon. Local moderate to heavy rainfall amounts were received in this area with Tampa recording 1.06 in six hours and Orlando measuring .85.

Precipitation amounts were generally light in other areas.

Elsewhere, scattered light snow showers spotted portions of the northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley and were expected to spread into the Great Lakes region during the night Saturday.

In the far west, a few snow flurries in the northern Rockies and scattered light showers over the interior mountains region of southern California and western Nevada marred an otherwise fair weather pattern over the vast region from the southern Plains and Rockies to the Pacific northwest.

With most of the nation enjoying mild spring - like temperatures, the northeastern corner still shivered in below freezing weather from North Dakota, eastward across the Great Lakes and into the northern New England.

The 50s and 60s were most common in other areas with 70s or higher reserved for the southern border states. A few 80s popped up in southern Florida and south Texas.

Henderson was thrown from car on its second roll state patrol reports said, and suffered a possible back injury, cuts of the face and multiple abrasions of the body.

State patrol reports quoted Scott as saying he fell asleep at the wheel about 1:30 a.m. 1½ miles south of Colorado Springs.

The car veered to the right, running off the road for 174 feet before striking a guard rail and going over the embankment. The car came to rest on its top, reports said.

Braden did not venture a guess on future senate action, but did believe that if the bill is passed, Gov. John A. Love would sign it.

Braden said he believed that the house might pass one bill and the senate another, and then the differences would have to be worked out by a joint house-senate committee.

He also pointed out that if the assembly can not agree on a bill, that the state will revert to the old financing bill to raise funds for schools.

Braden added that he did not think the assembly would finish its work much before the middle of April.

'Relief' Clients To Get Free Contraceptives

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Free contraceptives and birth control information become available April 1 for approximately 75,600 mothers on Illinois relief rolls.

The Illinois Public Aid Commission, plagued by money problems and controversy, voted 7-3 Friday against a move to delay the start of the statewide plan.

The effect of the vote was to direct the IPAC staff to start a program based on recommendations of an advisory committee of physicians.

When a physician announced a meeting would be held March 17 to plan additional details, State Auditor Michael J. Howlett asked in astonishment, "You mean you're going to make plans for birth control on St. Patrick's Day?"

Harold O. Swank, the commission's administrative officer, estimated earlier the cost of the program could run as high as $60 a year per mother. This includes the cost of visits to a doctor and contraceptive pills or other devices.

The plan approved by the IPAC guarantees privacy of the physician-patient relationship.

It also provides a complete pelvic examination and early cancer detection tests when indicated; a limit of two to four visits a year to a doctor; instructions in one of three birth control methods—rhythm, local appliances or oral medication, and development of a manual for physicians on the program.

The birth control plan was first approved by the commission, the state's welfare agency, last Dec. 3. Protestants and Jews mostly approved the controversial decision; Roman Catholics opposed it.

Two men were injured at 6:15 p.m. Saturday, one of them seriously, when their car crashed thru guard railings on U.S. 24 at Ute Pass and bounced more than 120 feet into the bottom of a gully.

Nelson E. Gennari, 21, 4614th Support Group, Peterson Field, driver of the car, and James Sallee, 22 of Waterloo, Iowa, were still being treated in the Emergency Room at St. Francis Hospital at press time.

Gennari, suffered severe head injuries and contusions of the body in the accident and Sallee suffered a broken leg and other injuries, state patrol reports said.

Sgt. Jake Abendschan and Patrolman Gene Fisher of the state patrol said the car in which the two men were riding was apparently traveling at a high rate of speed when Gennari lost control of the vehicle.

The officers said the car skidded out of control for 80 feet before crashing thru the guard railings. They said the car bounced off a huge boulder, sheared the limbs from a tree at a height of approximately 30 feet and came to rest on its wheels in a creek.

Vandals Smear Inside of Local Residence

The sheriff's office is searching for vandals who broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Smith Friday night and dumped flower pots on the bed in addition to doing other damage.

Reports said that the vandals also poured a quart of syrup onto the kitchen floor, the refrigerator and stove and windows.

Two watches, which were on a shelf, were found in a jar of water and a number of old pennies were stolen from a box in the house, the sheriff's office said.

Car and Horse Collide; Local Couple Injured

A local couple was injured slightly Friday when their car was involved in a collision with a horse on U.S. 85-87 about one mile south of Colorado Springs.

Phillip R. Turner, 25, driver of the car, and his wife, Judy Lynn, 19, of 130 Amherst St., were treated at the scene for cuts and bruises and released.

The horse, a bay mare had to be destroyed because of injuries it suffered when it ran into the side of the car, state patrol reports said.

Damage to the car was estimated at $500. The accident happened at 11:15 p.m.

Profane Speech Leads to Mass Resignations

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Paul Baker, Baylor University's drama chairman, his wife and 11 drama staff members resigned here in a dispute over retention of profane language in a Eugene O'Neill play production.

The president of the Baptist school, Abner McCall, closed O'Neill's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "A Long Day's Journey Into Night," in mid-run Dec. 6 after Baker refused to do so at McCall's request. O'Neill's widow had stipulated the play could not be censored when she agreed to the Baylor production.

McCall said here the play violated long-standing university policy against productions containing "vulgar, profane or blasphemous language" or "which ridicule the Christian religion."

Trinity University, a Presbyterian school at San Antonio, immediately announced Baker will become head of its drama department. Trinity President James Laurie said his school has given Baker, a former Trinity student, no pledge of academic freedom, but will consider hiring any of the resigned Baylor faculty members who apply.

Baker and the 11 staff members will continue to operate the Dallas Theater Center, which Baker organized several years ago.

Baker, 51, twice has been president of the National Theater Conference and has headed regional theater associations.

He has a long record of producing original plays and of experimental productions of Shakespeare and other classic authors.

The drama department faculty members said their resignations are effective Sept. 1 or earlier if Baylor wishes to release them. A Baylor spokesman indicated that plans are to retain the group until fall.

U. S. Denies Poison Gas Use in War

United States was using poison gas against civilians in South Viet Nam and that hundreds of persons had perished.

"The world has become witness of another monstrous crime," wrote Krasnaya Evesda (Red Star, official organ of the Soviet defense ministry. "The American interventionists have again used poison substances in South Viet Nam. Hundreds of people perished, a great quantity of cattle was poisoned."

The newspaper said the United States manufactured a poison gas called "GB" at a factory near Denver from a formula captured from the Nazis, and loaded it into the warheads of rockets, bombs and missiles at the same spot.

"The cross - ocean strategists greedily grasped whatever the Hitlerite criminals didn't dare to use," Red Star added.

Tarter Challenges Bennett on County Reapportionment

districting of the county as requested. He also pointed out that the Democrats of the county had been asked to submit a plan for redistricting also, and had done so.

(The Republican plan for the county was the one accepted by the Republican legislature.)

Tarter said that the legislative council, which had asked for the plans, made one major change in the proposal submitted by the Republicans. It disagreed with the submitted idea of putting both the Air Force Academy and Ft. Carson into one state senatorial district, and so moved the Academy into the eastern district, leaving Ft. Carson in the western senatorial district of the county.

Tarter explained that in the study made by his party, it was determined that the population center of the county was found to be somewhere northeast of Colorado College near the western edge of Patty Jewett Golf Course.

Keeping that area as a focal point, the committee tried to establish balanced districts for the county representatives, Tarter reported.

year-old Ehrenburg did not hear Khrushchev speak but left Thursday after he was criticized by Leonid Ilyichev, the party's chief official propagandist.

Ehrenburg was reported to have told a young writer as he departed, "I will never see the blooming of Soviet art, but you will see it, in 20 years."

Khrushchev told the gathering, "We stand on class positions in art and are emphatically against the peaceful coexistence of Socialist and bourgeois ideologies.

"Art belongs to the sphere of ideology. And those who think that both Socialist realism and formalistic, abstractionist trends can get along peacefully together in Soviet art inevitably backslide to alien positions of peaceful coexistence in ideology."

Teenagers Hurt As Car Rolls Twice

One teenager was hospitalized and two others injured in a one-car accident Friday on W. Moreno Street.

John S. Crissman, 16, 208 Cheyenne Blvd., was listed in satisfactory condition at Penrose Hospital where he is being treated for a broken rib.

Treated and released at Penrose were John Sloan, 16, 417 Ridgewood Ave., who received bruise and abrasions in the accident, and Dwight Love, 16, 603 W. Cheyenne Road, who was treated for abrasions of the body.

Sloan and Love were passengers in a car driven by Crissman which veered out of control on a curve and rolled over twice coming to rest on its top, the state patrol said.

Cars Tangle; Damage Set at $400

Damage was estimated at a total of $400 to cars involved in an accident Friday on N. Nevada Avenue about two miles north of Colorado Springs.

William Turner, 25, 323 E. Columbia Ave., driver of one of the cars involved, was treated for a cut head at the scene and released.

State Patrol reports said the driver of the other car was Donald E. Larson, 20, Denver. Reports said both cars were traveling north at the time.

Motion Sickness Is Traced to Mind

CHICAGO (UPI) — A traveler's state of mind can help bring on motion sickness, reports the American Medical Association (AMA).

Because of this, the AMA recommends a nap or reading a newspaper or magazine once aboard a plane or train.

Other suggestions included:

—Eat lightly before your departure.

—Avoid excessive alcoholic intake.

If you are reasonably healthy, motion sickness, unless prolonged on a long voyage, probably won't do any real damage, the AMA said, and recovery is rapid once the trip ends.

The AMA said many commercial products may help forestall motion sickness and that most are available without a prescription.

Explosion May Be Coming in Haiti Politics

By RICHARD MASSOCK

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) —An explosion is building up und Haitian President Francois Duvalier, voodooistic dictator of this land of grinding poverty. If anti-Communist Haitians don't bring him down, diplomats believe the Communists eventually will take over.

Outwardly, the bespectacled Duvalier, 58, a medical doctor, appears to rule firmly in defiance of his enemies and the United States' official disapproval of his government.

But under the tense calm of graveyard peace visitors feel the pulse of growing discontent that threatens to make Haiti, only 50 miles across the Windward Passage from Fidel Castro's Cuba, the next storm center of the Caribbean.

Some residents say Duvalier may fall within a few months. They talk of May 15-22 as a crucial week. His first presidential term expires May 15 under the constitution. His opponents don't recognize a rigged election in 1961 that extended his time in office until 1967.

Leaflets of the underground National Democratic Union declare its aim is to overthrow Duvalier in 1963. Foreign observers have not succeeded in tracing UDN's ramifications, but they suspect it is organized and financed by Haitian exiles.

Dread of Duvalier's "bogeymen," his private militia, makes Haitians fearful of talking. These armed partisans are called "Tonton Macoutes," after the bogeyman of Haitian folklore who is supposed to go about the countryside at night putting bad children in a sack on his back.

Duvalier's presidential guard, his denim-overalled militia and the Tonton Macoutes are estimated at 7,500, outnumbering the regular army of 5,000 men.

Washington has shown its disfavor toward Duvalier by cutting off $8 million in aid of Haiti's $28-million budget yearly. The United States is helping to build a jet airport and maintains an anti-malaria program, but the end of other aid is expected to be a sharp blow to Haiti's threadbare economy, based on coffee exports to Europe. Tourist business from the United States is about 30 per cent under last year's.

Haiti is perhaps the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere. Most of its 4.8 million inhabitants live in hunger on peasant farms.

All Haitian opposition leaders have been driven into exile. Chief among them are veteran politicians Louis Dejoie and Daniel Fignole. Duvalier defeated Dejoie in the 1957 election.

"I believe the stiffening of the U.S. attitude toward Duvalier will bring about his downfall," Dejoie said recently in Santo Domingo. "If something is not done quickly I fear an invasion from Cuba."

Discontent in the army could lead to an eventual clash that could topple Duvalier.

Diplomats here share the fear of an eventual Communist takeover, perhaps within a year or two unless Duvalier is overthrown earlier. These diplomats believe that Communists in the underground are satisfied to keep the Duvalier regime as a target for subversion until a force emerges that the Reds can use for their own ends.

Duvalier once showed a leftist tinge. But people willing to talk to a foreigner in fear-gripped Haiti say he now is bereft of ideology or thought of raising the standards of his hungry people. They say he practices a sort of personal mysticism, with voodoo leanings, trappings of a cynical strong man bent on keeping power.

Humorist Inspects New House Office Building

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising like a medieval fortress from the foot of Capitol Hill, and stretching almost to the summit, is the new $82.9 million Rayburn House Office Building and playpen.

High walls of granite command its western approaches, including the botanic gardens and other nearby hotbeds.

Based on my experience as a non-commissioned non-combatant in World War II, I would estimate that its ramparts could be defended by a single cannon, provided it were Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee.

I mention these military potentials only to show that the premises are secure from siege by hostile taxpayers. There is nothing spartan about the building itself.

When construction is completed next year, its appointments will match those of the new Senate Office Building, which has been described, to choose one of the milder adjectives, as "a marble palace."

Until this week, my acquaintance with the Rayburn building —named in honor of the late Speaker Sam Rayburn, who deserved a better fate—was limited to external appraisal.

On Wednesday, however, arrangements were made to give newsmen a peek at a couple of the 169 three-room suites contained therein.

Newsmen being notoriously nosy our inspection party was provided with an escort who restricted our movements to the exhibit suites.

I am therefore unable to file a progress report on the gymnasium, swimming pool and other off-limit areas.

Contrary to what you might expect for $82.9 million the suites are not outfitted in Oriental splendor. Any congressman who might want to live like a sultan will have to supply his own dancing girls.

Nevertheless, I feel certain that even the most delicate lawgivers will be able to make themselves comfy.

The basic decor is what I would classify as "Madison Avenue Renaissance." Each suite has a kitchenette with built-in refrigerator, a clock with signal lights linked to the House chamber, two lavatories, about 75 built-in file drawers and a built-in safe.

Some have picture windows overlooking a freeway. On a clear day, you can see a traffic jam. They also have several skeleton-size closets and a large lobby. I did not, however, see any built-in lobbyists.

Regardless of how little influence he may have, no lawgiver occupying the new building need fear a power shortage. Every suite has 61 electric wall plugs.

Seeing that made me wish I had a few built-in shares of utilities stock.

Apology Is Sent By Ed Kennedy To Newsman

CHELSEA, Vt. (AP)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the President's youngest brother, has apologized for a "misunderstanding" at a Vermont ski resort last month in which a press photographer's camera allegedly was damaged.

Former Vermont Gov. F. Ray Keyser announced Friday that the 30-year-old Massachusetts Democrat had written him, saying, "My wife and I are truly sorry about last month's misunderstanding and hope that this letter will serve as a sincere apology, and for any difficulty it may have caused."

The Kennedy brothers refused, but Lawson took a photo and the senator allegedly grabbed the camera and exposed the film.

Lawson said the camera was damaged and his publisher, William Loeb of Manchester, N.H., demanded an apology. Keyser is attorney for both the newspaper and Lawson.

Mrs. Gromyko Likes Colors, Misses Art

"I like the colors," she told the art show manager. "They are just beautiful, but the pictures as a whole—I don't see any meaning to them. It's all very decorative, but I don't see where art comes in."

Audits to Cost More, Gov. Love Announces

DENVER (AP) — It will cost $75,000 above regular appropriations to bring Colorado's state audits up to date, Gov. John A. Love said here.

Love said the figures was reported by State Auditor John Proctor in a meeting attended by certified public accountants, members of the Joint Budget Committee, attorney general's office and Civil Service Commission.

Love said the estimate is based on a cost of $7.50 an hour for 10,000 hours of work by private accountants.

The governor indicated he will request funds for the work from the legislature but didn't specify exactly the amount he will ask.

Gov. Love Favors Holding of Tax Level in State

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Republican Gov. John A. Love says he hopes to hold Colorado state taxes at about their present level through 1967-68.

Ths means that state collections would be about $8 million yearly less than the amount under rates set up by the tax program of 1959 sponsored by Democratic Gov. Steve McNichols. Love said flatly it does not mean the 15 per cent reduction granted on personal income taxes for 1962 will continue unchanged.

The governor said he believes the tax level can be held unless the state embarks on major new programs.

Love expressed the views at a news conference following a caucus with Republican legislators at which State Budget Director Con Shea presented long range forecasts based upon present trends.

The governor said Shea's forecast show the operating budgets for the state will have to be "quite tight" to preserve the lax level.

"It doesn't leave much leeway for capital construction," Love commented.

He emphasized that Shea's figures show a doubling in the state's income between 1957-58 and 1967-68 and show expenditures for state operations trebling during the period.

Love emphasized that Shea's projection is based upon present trends and doesn't take into account policy decisions which could make alterations in spending levels.

"I have, I believe, some long range answers," the governor said, adding that he first must know the definite plans for colleges and universities and also must get an accurate forecast of costs of medical and hospital care for the aged.

If studies are set up in both fields, as he has suggested, he may not get these figures until the end of the year.

Gov. Love said there also are variables in the state Js institutional programs but believes they can be forecast more easily than those in the college and medical fields.

He implied that little more building at institutions is projected in the immediate future when present programs are completed and staffs are set up. He emphasized the state will stress prevention and rehabilitation in the field.

Love said he doesn't necessarily put his stamp of approval on Shea's estimates on school aid because the possibility of policy changes.

The governor said he has hopes the study of local governmental problems which he plans can lead to a reallocation of school taxes as well as working out a relationship between various types of governmental agencies.

Love indicated he plans to present the message in person to the lawmakers in requesting the local government study.

His proposal, he said, will include financing the study but he hopes some foundation interested in taxation may provide some staff or financial assistance.

The governor indicated his message on air polution may be sent to the legislature Friday but said he does not plan to deliver it in person.

An attempt of the Joint Budget Committee to trim the $135 million operating budget he has recommended for the year starting July 1 meets with his approval, the governor said.

"It fits my philosophy if it (the budget) can be cut," he said, "but I want to be consulted on any cuts they make."

Student Unrest Laid to Non-Reds

An obviously authorized Bulgarian news agency statement said officials have information that certain missions had an interest in worsening relations between Bulgaria and the African countries. The missions were not named.

Trial by Jury For Okinawans

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Trial by jury has been okayed for defendants in U.S. criminal courts here. The announcement capped a long struggle by lawyers here and in Washington.

The attorneys claimed U.S. citizens in Okinawa were deprived of their constitutional rights under trials by judge. Ryukyu Islands officials had held jury trials would not be feasible because of administrative problems.

Now Ryukyuan, U. S. and foreign nationals may choose trial by jury in U.S. criminal cases. Ryukyuans and U.S. civilians will do jury duty.

Adenauer Approves Nuclear Force Idea

The proposed force would give West Germany its first voice in the use of nuclear weapons, but the United States still would maintain a veto. Bonn's agreement, however reluctant, was considered vital.

Contrary to what you might expect for $82.9 million the suites are not outfitted in Oriental splendor. Any congressman who might want to live like a sultan will have to supply his own dancing girls.

Nevertheless, I feel certain that even the most delicate lawgivers will be able to make themselves comfy.

The basic decor is what I would classify as "Madison Avenue Renaissance." Each suite has a kitchenette with built-in refrigerator, a clock with signal lights linked to the House chamber, two lavatories, about 75 built-in file drawers and a built-in safe.

Some have picture windows overlooking a freeway. On a clear day, you can see a traffic jam. They also have several skeleton-size closets and a large lobby. I did not, howver, see any built-in lobbyists.

Regardless of how little influence he may have, no lawgiver occupying the new building need fear a power shortage. Every suite has 61 electric wall plugs.

Seeing that made me wish I had a few built-in shares of utilities stock.

Apology Is Sent By Ed Kennedy To Newsman

CHELSEA, Vt. (AP)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the President's youngest brother, has apologized for a "misunderstanding" at a Vermont ski resort last month in which a press photographer's camera allegedly was damaged.

Former Vermont Gov. F. Ray Keyser announced Friday that the 30-year-old Massachusetts Democrat had written him, saying, "My wife and I are truly sorry about last month's misunderstanding and hope that this letter will serve as a sincere apology, and for any difficulty it may have caused."

The Kennedy brothers refused, but Lawson took a photo and the senator allegedly grabbed the camera and exposed the film.

Lawson said the camera was damaged and his publisher, William Loeb of Manchester, N.H., demanded an apology. Keyser is attorney for both the newspaper and Lawson.

Mrs. Gromyko Likes Colors, Misses Art

"I like the colors," she told the art show manager. "They are just beautiful, but the pictures as a whole—I don't see any meaning to them. It's all very decorative, but I don't see where art comes in."

Audits to Cost More, Gov. Love Announces

DENVER (AP) — It will cost $75,000 above regular appropriations to bring Colorado's state audits up to date, Gov. John A. Love said here.

Love said the figures was reported by State Auditor John Proctor in a meeting attended by certified public accountants, members of the Joint Budget Committee, attorney general's office and Civil Service Commission.

Love said the estimate is based on a cost of $7.50 an hour for 10,000 hours of work by private accountants.

The governor indicated he will request funds for the work from the legislature but didn't specify exactly the amount he will ask.

Gov. Love Favors Holding of Tax Level in State

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Republican Gov. John A. Love says he hopes to hold Colorado state taxes at about their present level through 1967-68.

Ths means that state collections would be about $8 million yearly less than the amount under rates set up by the tax program of 1959 sponsored by Democratic Gov. Steve McNichols. Love said flatly it does not mean the 15 per cent reduction granted on personal income taxes for 1962 will continue unchanged.

The governor said he believes the tax level can be held unless the state embarks on major new programs.

Love expressed the views at a news conference following a caucus with Republican legislators at which State Budget Director Con Shea presented long range forecasts based upon present trends.

The governor said Shea's forecast show the operating budgets for the state will have to be "quite tight" to preserve the lax level.

"It doesn't leave much leeway for capital construction," Love commented.

He emphasized that Shea's figures show a doubling in the state's income between 1957-58 and 1967-68 and show expenditures for state operations trebling during the period.

Love emphasized that Shea's projection is based upon present trends and doesn't take into account policy decisions which could make alterations in spending levels.

"I have, I believe, some long range answers," the governor said, adding that he first must know the definite plans for colleges and universities and also must get an accurate forecast of costs of medical and hospital care for the aged.

If studies are set up in both fields, as he has suggested, he may not get these figures until the end of the year.

Gov. Love said there also are variables in the state Js institutional programs but believes they can be forecast more easily than those in the college and medical fields.

He implied that little more building at institutions is projected in the immediate future when present programs are completed and staffs are set up. He emphasized the state will stress prevention and rehabilitation in the field.

Love said he doesn't necessarily put his stamp of approval on Shea's estimates on school aid because the possibility of policy changes.

The governor said he has hopes the study of local governmental problems which he plans can lead to a reallocation of school taxes as well as working out a relationship between various types of governmental agencies.

Love indicated he plans to present the message in person to the lawmakers in requesting the local government study.

His proposal, he said, will include financing the study but he hopes some foundation interested in taxation may provide some staff or financial assistance.

The governor indicated his message on air polution may be sent to the legislature Friday but said he does not plan to deliver it in person.

An attempt of the Joint Budget Committee to trim the $135 million operating budget he has recommended for the year starting July 1 meets with his approval, the governor said.

"It fits my philosophy if it (the budget) can be cut," he said, "but I want to be consulted on any cuts they make."

Student Unrest Laid to Non-Reds

An obviously authorized Bulgarian news agency statement said officials have information that certain missions had an interest in worsening relations between Bulgaria and the African countries. The missions were not named.

Trial by Jury For Okinawans

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Trial by jury has been okayed for defendants in U.S. criminal courts here. The announcement capped a long struggle by lawyers here and in Washington.

The attorneys claimed U.S. citizens in Okinawa were deprived of their constitutional rights under trials by judge. Ryukyu Islands officials had held jury trials would not be feasible because of administrative problems.

Now Ryukyuan, U. S. and foreign nationals may choose trial by jury in U.S. criminal cases. Ryukyuans and U.S. civilians will do jury duty.

Adenauer Approves Nuclear Force Idea

The proposed force would give West Germany its first voice in the use of nuclear weapons, but the United States still would maintain a veto. Bonn's agreement, however reluctant, was considered vital.

CU Alpine Lab Ready for Use This Summer

The University of Colorado Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research will move into a new $102,000 alpine laboratory near the Continental Divide 25 miles west of Boulder this summer.

The laboratory was completed this winter to replace a 40-year-old log structure as year - around institute headquarters at CU's Science Lodge Mountain Research Station.

Equipment will be installed this spring and the laboratory probably will be dedicated in June, according to Dr. John W. Marr, institute director. Funds for the building were provided jointly by the National Science Foundation and the University.

Science Lodge is the only field station in the United States devoted to year - around alpine field research. Trips have been made weekly for nearly 12 years to a station at 12,300 feet elevation.

Most of the buildings are at 9,500 feet, the highest level at which most humans rest well and the lowest level for achieving high - altitude acclimatization.

The CU Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research, founded in 1951, provides research facilities and experience in mountain living for students, faculty members and visiting scientists. Some of its work is done in mountain areas in Alaska and Greenland and in other parts of Colorado.

"We are under great pressure to acquire knowledge of mountains rapidly," Marr said. "Our use of the high country is inhibited by lack of knowledge. Yet we are forced to mountains by pressure for space to develop, for natural resources, for recreation—and simply for a place to be alone.

"In addition, water resources development in the West rests largely on — maximum utilization and management of all highlands.

"Historically, man has brougjt disaster to lands when his uses have gotten ahead of his knowledge, but he has not been inclined to wait for knowledge to be acquired when need is great.

Creation of the institute and development of the Science Lodge station are part of the University's effort to foster study of importance to the future of mankind," Marr said.

The new building, with 5,400 feet of floor space, will house laboratory work in arctic and alpine ecology—the relationships between living organisms and a cold, high - altitude environment.

It also will contain offices, fireproof storage of records, a library and biology and geology collections. Funds were provided jointly by the National Science Foundation and the university.

Previous laboratory facilities were in a crude, three - room frame building, condemned 25 years ago, Marr said. It is not winterized and has no special equipment except what has been moved in each summer.

Other buildings at the mountain station date back to the 1920's when the 200 - acre area was used for recreational purposes. The central lodge is winterized and will continue to be used as a mess hall. Only one of 35 cabins is winterized. Other structures include a washroom building, a small building used for study and meetings, and a warehouse and shop.

There also are the Tundra Laboratory, a 12 by 14 steel building at 12,300 feet elevation, and two small shelters on the tundra access route, one at 11,700 feet and the other at 11,000 feet. There are four year - around weather measurement stations which have been operated for 11 years as well as others used for shorter periods of time.

The institute maintains roads and vehicles for travel to all parts of the research area in nearly all weather.

Five main climate regions are represented in the 25 - mile radius between Boulder, at 5,800 feet, and the highest point—13,000 feet—in the mountain research area.

Institute programs include environmental measurements and study of experimental plantings at four different altitudes, study of natural radiation effects and high-altitude radioactive fallout, charting and study of freeze - thaw effects on rock and soil, and study of water relations in alpine watersheds.

Other institute studies are concerned with human damage to tundra areas such as nearby Rocky Mountain National Park, feeding habits of small animals on the tundra, development of timberline trees and alpine seedlings, heat transfer between plants and their environment, and alpine plant chromosomes.

Nearly 125 scientists from other states and 20 foreign countries have visited institute headquarters to observe or do research in the last decade.

Robert Wade Honored by DU's Yearbook

The honor is accorded to eight juniors selected by a committee composed of members of the faculty and administration on the basis of scholarship, leadership and service to the university.

Wade also is the recipient of a national honor conveyed by his fraternity, Kappa Sigma. The fraternity has awarded him a certificate of merit in recognition of his outstanding qualities of scholarship and leadership as embodied in his exemplary accomplishments thruout his undergraduate years." Orientation Course Set for AF Academy

The whys, wherefores (and sometimes woes) of Air Force life will be the subject of the annual Family Services orientation course which will run Monday thru Friday at the Air Force Academy Community Center Service Club.

Open to all military personnel and dependents at both the academy and Ent AFB, the course is designed to help military dependents "know the Air Force and the Air Force Academy better."

This year, two sessions will be held each day to take care of "students" not able to attend the usual morning meetings. Classes will run from 9 to 11:30 a.m., and 6:15 to 8:45 p. m.

Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren will open the program at 9 a.m., Monday, and will speak again that evening. Mrs. Warren will present certificates of completion to "graduates."

The orientation course is designed to give dependents the low - down on the family service program, academy facilities, chaplain services, the Air Force Aid Society, budgeting, grade identification, personal affairs records, the Red Cross, life insurance, casualty services and survivor benefits, estate planning, the Academy Credit Union, youth activities, commercial transportation in the area, overseas travel, base housing, retirement benefits, legal assistance, medical care, and many other subjects.

Representatives from various academy departments will give briefings on their operations and then answer questions from class members.

Patricia Arnold Listed On KU Honor Roll

Patricia Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold, 1708 Palmer Park Blvd., is among 71 students on the fall semester honor roll at the University of Kansas School of Fine Arts, Dean Thomas Gorton has announced.

Miss Arnold is a freshman student. The honor roll represents the upper 10 per cent of students in fine arts.

Tuberculosis Death Rate Now At All Time Low

Tuberculosis has in recent years been cut down to a small fraction of its once widespread proportions through the use of modern drugs and treatment.

The death rate is at an all time low. But, still, tuberculosis remains one of America's greatest killers among contagious diseases.

The real tragedy of tuberculosis is that it is now possible to stamp it out completely. This could happen if every family assumed the responsibility of regular physical examinations and sought prompt treatment when symptoms are found.

There is a simple skin test for tuberculosis. Many states now routinely use this test on school children, but others do not. The test is simple, quick and almost painless. It is inexpensive and highly reliable.

A positive test does not necessarily mean active TB because those who have inactive or healed TB usually react positively. But a positive test is a quick signal of the need for further examination. A negative test is a very good indication that all is well.

Simple skin tests at regular intervals and early treatment can prevent many deaths and also can stop the spread of the disease to others.

In many communities the mobile chest X-ray units of the tuberculosis societies make regular visits to each neighborhood. A quick visit to the X-ray unit, or an X-ray arranged thru your physician, also is a good means of checking for tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is particularly dangerous to babies and young children. Often they are infected by a parent or grandparent, who has the disease and doesn't know it. In fact, it is quite common to have tuberculosis and not know it until too late for treatment to be fully effective.

Treatment today is not the long, expensive and confining process that it once was. The new drugs are relatively inexpensive, easy to take, and work quickly.

Facilities still are available for those with advanced TB who require more extensive therapy. Light cases often can be treated at home without going to a hospital at all.

Avoid needless tuberculosis by making certain that you and your family have regular examinations.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI)—Men and women students will share a dormitory at the University of Miami this summer, but they'll live on different floors with one empty level between.

The university said Friday it will house men students on the bottom three floors of a new air conditioned dormitory and coeds on the top three decks with the fourth floor as a buffer zone.

CU Alpine Lab Ready for Use This Summer

The University of Colorado Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research will move into a new $102,000 alpine laboratory near the Continental Divide 25 miles west of Boulder this summer.

The laboratory was completed this winter to replace a 40-year-old log structure as year - around institute headquarters at CU's Science Lodge Mountain Research Station.

Equipment will be installed this spring and the laboratory probably will be dedicated in June, according to Dr. John W. Marr, institute director. Funds for the building were provided jointly by the National Science Foundation and the University.

Science Lodge is the only field station in the United States devoted to year - around alpine field research. Trips have been made weekly for nearly 12 years to a station at 12,300 feet elevation.

Most of the buildings are at 9,500 feet, the highest level at which most humans rest well and the lowest level for achieving high - altitude acclimatization.

The CU Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research, founded in 1951, provides research facilities and experience in mountain living for students, faculty members and visiting scientists. Some of its work is done in mountain areas in Alaska and Greenland and in other parts of Colorado.

"We are under great pressure to acquire knowledge of mountains rapidly," Marr said. "Our use of the high country is inhibited by lack of knowledge. Yet we are forced to mountains by pressure for space to develop, for natural resources, for recreation—and simply for a place to be alone.

"In addition, water resources development in the West rests largely on — maximum utilization and management of all highlands.

"Historically, man has brought disaster to lands when his uses have gotten ahead of his knowledge, but he has not been inclined to wait for knowledge to be acquired when need is great.

Creation of the institute and development of the Science Lodge station are part of the University's effort to foster study of importance to the future of mankind," Marr said.

The new building, with 5,400 feet of floor space, will house laboratory work in arctic and alpine ecology—the relationships between living organisms and a cold, high - altitude environment.

It also will contain offices, fireproof storage of records, a library and biology and geology collections. Funds were provided jointly by the National Science Foundation and the university.

Previous laboratory facilities were in a crude, three - room frame building, condemned 25 years ago, Marr said. It is not winterized and has no special equipment except what has been moved in each summer.

Other buildings at the mountain station date back to the 1920's when the 200 - acre area was used for recreational purposes. The central lodge is winterized and will continue to be used as a mess hall. Only one of 35 cabins is winterized. Other structures include a washroom building, a small building used for study and meetings, and a warehouse and shop.

There also are the Tundra Laboratory, a 12 by 14 steel building at 12,300 feet elevation, and two small shelters on the tundra access route, one at 11,700 feet and the other at 11,000 feet. There are four year - around weather measurement stations which have been operated for 11 years as well as others used for shorter periods of time.

The institute maintains roads and vehicles for travel to all parts of the research area in nearly all weather.

Five main climate regions are represented in the 25 - mile radius between Boulder, at 5,800 feet, and the highest point—13,000 feet—in the mountain research area.

Institute programs include environmental measurements and study of experimental plantings at four different altitudes, study of natural radiation effects and high-altitude radioactive fallout, charting and study of freeze - thaw effects on rock and soil, and study of water relations in alpine watersheds.

Other institute studies are concerned with human damage to tundra areas such as nearby Rocky Mountain National Park, feeding habits of small animals on the tundra, development of timberline trees and alpine seedlings, heat transfer between plants and their environment, and alpine plant chromosomes.

Nearly 125 scientists from other states and 20 foreign countries have visited institute headquarters to observe or do research in the last decade.

Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren will open the program at 9 a.m., Monday, and will speak again that evening. Mrs. Warren will present certificates of completion to "graduates."

The orientation course is designed to give dependents the low - down on the family service program, academy facilities, chaplain services, the Air Force Aid Society, budgeting, grade identification, personal affairs records, the Red Cross, life insurance, casualty services and survivor benefits, estate planning, the Academy Credit Union, youth activities, commercial transportation in the area, overseas travel, base housing, retirement benefits, legal assistance, medical care, and many other subjects.

Representatives from various academy departments will give briefings on their operations and then answer questions from class members.

Tuberculosis Death Rate Now At All Time Low

Tuberculosis has in recent years been cut down to a small fraction of its once widespread proportions through the use of modern drugs and treatment.

The death rate is at an all time low. But, still, tuberculosis remains one of America's greatest killers among contagious diseases.

The real tragedy of tuberculosis is that it is now possible to stamp it out completely. This could happen if every family assumed the responsibility of regular physical examinations and sought prompt treatment when symptoms are found.

There is a simple skin test for tuberculosis. Many states now routinely use this test on school children, but others do not. The test is simple, quick and almost painless. It is inexpensive and highly reliable.

A positive test does not necessarily mean active TB because those who have inactive or healed TB usually react positively. But a positive test is a quick signal of the need for further examination. A negative test is a very good indication that all is well.

Simple skin tests at regular intervals and early treatment can prevent many deaths and also can stop the spread of the disease to others.

In many communities the mobile chest X-ray units of the tuberculosis societies make regular visits to each neighborhood. A quick visit to the X-ray unit, or an X-ray arranged thru your physician, also is a good means of checking for tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is particularly dangerous to babies and young children. Often they are infected by a parent or grandparent, who has the disease and doesn't know it. In fact, it is quite common to have tuberculosis and not know it until too late for treatment to be fully effective.

Treatment today is not the long, expensive and confining process that it once was. The new drugs are relatively inexpensive, easy to take, and work quickly.

Facilities still are available for those with advanced TB who require more extensive therapy. Light cases often can be treated at home without going to a hospital at all.

Avoid needless tuberculosis by making certain that you and your family have regular examinations.

Satellite Tracking Station Vital to Space Program

Among other achievements, it has been able to determine the weight of orbiting satellites. This will help make possible the ferreting out of any secret Soviet "spy in the sky" satellite.

"Project Moonbeam," as the station is known, began in 1956 with a group of scientists at an oil research laboratory in a Cleveland suburb. Wanting to build their own tracking station, they asked permission to use the company's laboratory facilities.

What they lacked in cash, they made up in ingenuity, reports the current issue of "Petroleum Today." Working on their own time, they used idle or outmoded equipment to build an antenna system. Electronic equipment was improvised or purchased from government surplus.

As the project progressed, the company contributed a small grant and area firms provided additional materials.

The scientists had their station ready by Jan. 29, 1958 —just 48 hours before the launching of "Explorer I." News of the successful tracking of this satellite by "Project Moonbeam" was quickly spread by news media, and the station has served as a source of accurate information about other satellites ever since.

The scientists have accurately tracked scores of satellites, including Russia's twin space ships, "Vostok III and "Vostok IV." Clear voice transmissions of the Soviet cosmonauts were translated into English at the station by a local priest of the Russian Orthodox Church.

During the summer of 1958, a group of serious - minded high school boys visited the station and asked to join the project. The scientists accepted their help.

One student developed a computer program which has since been distributed to scientific journals thruout the world. He also designed a satellite tracker which replaced older equipment.

Other youths were soon preparing highly - scientific theses on space exploration and satellite tracking - some beyond the knowledge of the scientists themselves.

As the students went on to college and graduate studies, several kept up their work with "Project Moonbeam." Three or four high school recruits are now chosen each year from the dozens who apply, and observers feel that the lab has become a training ground for some of the area's most brilliant youngsters.

The scientist and students have obtained a radio telescope and a tower, and are working together to fashion a system whereby they may be among the first to watch, on a television receiver, man's first probes and exploration of the moon.

Colonel Needs 22 Years to Join His Unit

Lt. Col. Brian B. O'Neill enlisted for the 7th Engineer Battalion in December, 1941, but it took him until February, 1963, to join the unit and then as commanding officer at Ft. Carson.

He left Michigan College of Mining and Technology to fight in World War II with the 7th in which he knew members when it was stationed with the 5th Infantry Division at Ft. Custer, Mich.

But the Army had other plans so the future battalion commander went to Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., for engineer basic training and earned his commission at Ft. Belvoir, Va., in 1942.

He served World War II in the South Pacific mainly with the 1322nd Engineer Regiment assigned to a Naval task force ending the war in the Marianas.

After the war he returned to Michigan Tech to earn his degree. He resumed his active duty as an ROTC senior engineer instructor at Pennsylvania State College in 1947.

His next move was to Japan where he worked in engineer supply with Lt. Col. Rolf Mickelson whom he succeds as commander of the 7th Engineers.

Assignments since then for the colonel have included a year's graduate study at Texas A & M College, a year at the advanced engineer course, Ft. Belvoir, three years in Germany with the 7th Engineer Brigade and two years at Seattle, Wash., with the Alaska Engineer District.

He came to Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) from a year in Korea with the Eighth U. S. Army engineer staff. He prepared for this tour with a year at the Army Language School studying Korean.

Satellite Tracking Station Vital to Space Program

Among other achievements, it has been able to determine the weight of orbiting satellites. This will help make possible the ferreting out of any secret Soviet "spy in the sky" satellite.

"Project Moonbeam," as the station is known, began in 1956 with a group of scientists at an oil research laboratory in a Cleveland suburb. Wanting to build their own tracking station, they asked permission to use the company's laboratory facilities.

What they lacked in cash, they made up in ingenuity, reports the current issue of "Petroleum Today." Working on their own time, they used idle or outmoded equipment to build an antenna system. Electronic equipment was improvised or purchased from government surplus.

As the project progressed, the company contributed a small grant and area firms provided additional materials.

The scientists had their station ready by Jan. 29, 1958 —just 48 hours before the launching of "Explorer I." News of the successful tracking of this satellite by "Project Moonbeam" was quickly spread by news media, and the station has served as a source of accurate information about other satellites ever since.

The scientists have accurately tracked scores of satellites, including Russia's twin space ships, "Vostok III and "Vostok IV." Clear voice transmissions of the Soviet cosmonauts were translated into English at the station by a local priest of the Russian Orthodox Church.

During the summer of 1958, a group of serious - minded high school boys visited the station and asked to join the project. The scientists accepted their help.

One student developed a computer program which has since been distributed to scientific journals thruout the world. He also designed a satellite tracker which replaced older equipment.

Other youths were soon preparing highly - scientific theses on space exploration and satellite tracking - some beyond the knowledge of the scientists themselves.

As the students went on to college and graduate studies, several kept up their work with "Project Moonbeam." Three or four high school recruits are now chosen each year from the dozens who apply, and observers feel that the lab has become a training ground for some of the area's most brilliant youngsters.

The scientist and students have obtained a radio telescope and a tower, and are working together to fashion a system whereby they may be among the first to watch, on a television receiver, man's first probes and exploration of the moon.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

(The article this week is one written by Carl Mathews, retired head of the Colorado Springs police department's identification bureau. Mathews, who read portions of this article before a recent meeting of the El Paso County Pioneers Assn., is a member of a pioneer Pikes Peak Region family).

REMINISCENCES OF ELBERT COUNTY

Some family history should be given first. On Feb. 12, 1874, three immigrant cars arrived in Denver from Mount Carmel, Ill. These contained the following families: Daniel Epler, Henry C. Mathews (my grandfather), and Christian Schillinger (grandfather on my mother's side). Transferring their goods to the little narrow-gauge Denver and Rio Grande, they left Denver on Feb. 14, going to Greenland. There the Mathews family was met by Joe Steadman, a son-in-law, who was teaching school in Elbert County. Grandfather Mathews contracted pneumonia and died in April.

Charles Mathews, my father, worked first for a man by the name of Feisel in Bijou Basin, then went to work for Philip P. Gomer, a sawmill man, and hauled logs with an ox team. Meanwhile, the Schillingers and Epiers went to Spring Valley, eight or 10 miles east of Greenland, and rented land for that season. During that summer, a band of Ute Indians camped near them for some time; one incident my mother remembered was that a little Indian boy had killed a squirrel and would toss it up in the air, shooting arrows at it and seldom missing.

Grandfather Schillinger took up a homestead in Elbert County and spent considerable time in digging a well and building a house on the place; my mother remembered that he and Uncle George, 10 years of age, would start out on a mule, with George carrying a shotgun for protection against Indians. Luckily no Indians appeared.

The following year they moved to the homestead where my grandmother had a brush with some drovers going thru with a herd of cattle; seeing the dust of the herd some distance away, she had the children drive their cattle into the corral and mounted guard on the porch with the old reliable shotgun. The trail boss asked her to allow him to turn the cattle out to check brands but she was too smart and told him if he wanted to look at the brands to go into the corral. This he did not do and moved his herd onward.

In 1884, Charles Mathews and Mary Schillinger, my mother, were married and moved on a homestead he had taken up near Bijou Basin. Here I was born the following year and now commence telling my recollections. The first was when I was 3 years old and my mother and I walked about a mile to a neighbors, where I lost a gold band ring from my finger in a spring. Today the spring is dry, and the house has been gone for over 60 years.

In May, 1889, my mother and I went to Eastonville to catch the train for Colorado Springs; one look at the monster snorting and puffing from the climb of 500 feet from Elbert, was too much and I ran into the depot, hiding under one of the benches. Arriving in Colorado Springs, we stayed for a time and I remember riding a street car (horse drawn) as far as the Colorado College campus, where the driver unhitched the horse and took it to the other end of the car and went back to town.

Nothing much happened until the fall of 1893, when my mother, my 1-year old brother Eric and I went to Santa Fe, N.M., to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Griffin, old friends. There I went to school for a while and enjoyed the Indian men spinning tops on the town square; the Indians had a habit of walking in without knocking and trying to peddle firewood which was packed on little burros. At Christmas I went to the tree and received an apple, an orange, and a little sack of candy.

In the spring we came back to Colorado Springs and I went to Lowell School for a time; there I remember Alex Martin, the boy with no legs, bullying the young ones. He was then about 15 years of age and large as I remember.

Going home, my father said, "Let's teach Carl to milk," which was no sooner said than done, and I had a string of four cows.

On March 29, 1895, the country was struck by a severe blizzard and that night my sister Annie was born; no doctor and only a neighbor woman to help. In July I was hoeing potatoes and the heat was so severe on my bare feet that I would dig out a hole with the hoe and stand in it for a time to cool off. That fall I remember the "Gulf" road carrying an enormous lot of trains, my recollection being that the road had seven passenger trains daily between Denver and Pueblo, with a connection for the Springs at Manitou Junction, almost nine miles east.

The next spring (1896) I was given a two-horse team and a walking harrow and learned to handle the outfit. In October that fall I picked potatoes bare-handed in the snow and would stop at the end of the furrow to warm my hands by a small fire, shedding a few silent tears in the process. I was wearing an old coat of dad's and he said, "If Bryan is elected, we will get you a new coat."

I was put to plowing with a walking plow the next spring and every time the plow would hit a rock it would lift me off the ground as I did not have strength enough to handle it. On the 4th of July we went to Eastonville for the races and I remember Ed Pring doing stunts on a galloping horse.

In 1898, my father (who had been county surveyor) got a job with the Union Pacific Railroad as land examiner and from then on I practically did a man's work. That spring, returning from Eastonville in a one-horse cart and jogging along, the northbound train slipped up on me as it was going down grade, which startled the old mare and she ran away, but I was able to get her stopped.

In February, 1899, Grandmother Schillinger was staying at our house and came down with pneumonia. I was sent to Elbert for medicine and on the way home lost the bottle out of the cart. I had to pay a dollar for another bottle, which was a fortune for me.

In April, while going to the pasture early to get the cows, I saw a band of five men with packhorses sneaking thru the pasture, having dropped the fence wires to get thru. Who were they? Nobody knows but today I think they might have been Butch Cassidy's gang of bank robbers returning to their hide-out after committing some crime in New Mexico.

In the spring of 1900 my father had an office in the Inter-Ocean Hotel in Denver, selling real estate for the Union Pacific, so I took the train one day to visit him; I was dressed up in my new suit and wearing a celluloid collar (fashionable then). On the way up 17th Street, I dropped into a gyp barber shop and asked for a haircut, so was given the works, haircut, neck trim, shampoo, massage and everything; the bill came to $3 and I nearly fainted. Also bought a "gold" watch for another $3 and in a few days the brass was showing.

In July that year I was visiting the country school and a big flood came down the East Kiowa Creek; water about four feet deep and running fast. Mrs. Tuttle, who lived near by, decided she would cross and with her children crying and begging her not to, she drove in. When nearly across, the force of the water swept the pony and buggy against a wire fence but she climbed out over the shafts and succeeded in getting the pony to land.

In November the big wind which struck Colorado Springs also reached out to our ranch and blew an even two-thirds of the corn shocks out of the field, scattering them all over the hills.

In 1903, another boy and I attempted to climb Pikes Peak; we got as far as Windy Point and ran into a blizzard and had to turn back. We tried to stop at the Half-way House but a man ran us off so we had to walk nearly into Manitou before finding a cabin we could stop in until daylight.

In November, while walking two miles to a threshing machine with the thermometer down to 25 below, I frosted my feet thru high overshoes and they bothered me for several years.

On Election Day, 1904, after seeing my mother off on the train for St. Louis from Colorado Springs, I ran into a blizzard as soon as I reached the top of Rattlesnake Hill (Templeton Gap Road today) and had to get out ond walk to keep warm. I came to a ranch near Eastonvile and asked to stop to feed the team; they did not invite me into the house so I stood there half-frozen until the team had their oats and I munched a cold sandwich, then walked the rest of the way home.

In the fall of 1906, I decided to go to business college, so came to the Springs and entered Henager's School, taking a shorthand course and working for my board as a busboy at Schofield's Restaurant on the south side of Colorado Avenue at the alley between Tejon and Nevada. I went back to the ranch in the spring and worked until fall, when I again came to the school, now Wilder's Business College, and took a bookkeeping course.

That fall, 1908, I worked on a farm near Mead for a while, then went to the sugar factory in Longmont, working 84 hours a week for 20 cents an hour, piling sugar. It was hard work and we would wear out a pair of cotton gloves in two days. Soon after, I went to Scottsbluff, Neb., and pushed a wheelbarrow on a construction job for a while. Scottsbluff then had a population of 1,500 but today it has about 10 times that many residents. I worked on the farm that summer and fall, and in the winter my brother-in-law to be, and I took a job cutting cord-wood at $1 per cord. The best we would do was a cord per day, and we had to feed ourselves so we ate mostly biscuits and beans.

In 1910 my father rented the place to me, he furnishing four horses, farm machinery, etc. I had $100 to start with, and in November, after paying for hired help, threshing, etc., I had $200 to show for seven months' work.

In 1911 I worked for John S. Evans ("Big John") on his place near Eastonville. I took the teacher's examination that fall and taught at the Bluff School from September until the following May for $45 per month the first four months and $50 the next four; I have always told people that it was $40 and $45, but records at the county superintendent's office say I was paid $47.50 per month for eight months, so I guess I was wrong.

I worked for Mr. Evans until the fall of 1912, when I again came to Colorado Springs and took a review course at Brown's Business College. In May, 1913, I was called to the City Hall and put to work as secretary to the chief of police, beginning at $65 per month and advancing to $95 by September. I worked as secretary for over six years and then worked in the Identification Bureau for over 32 years.

Thus ends the tale, and not all of it in Elbert County.

As with most youngsters, there are some people who stand out in one's recollection, and I will list a few of them:

John Riley, the old antelope hunter, who taught me the alphabet from the old newspapers pasted on the wall of our kitchen when I was 3 years old.

A. R. ("Squire") James, with his tin ear trumpet; even if one shouted he could hardly understand what was said.

Bob Barnwell, the one-armed young man who handled a three or four-horse team with ease and confidence; he would wrap the lines around the stump of his left arm and work the levers of the binder or other implement with the right arm.

The Svensgard brothers, Hans and Ole, with their little grain separator and the tea-kettle engine, which could not pull the separator up a long hill, but had to be detached and a team of horses used to do the uphill work.

Russell Gates, who seems to have originated the chain store idea in our country at least, having seven large stores and a wholesale house in Colorado Springs; a large man who nearly always wore a broad brimmed black hat.

Nell Webb, the character who often came to Elbert and imbibed a little too much; as I remember, she nearly always wore pants or overalls instead of dresses.

MOTHER — This picture of Mary Catherine Schillinger, who later became Mrs. Charles Mathews, mother of Carl Mathews, was taken about 1884.

EARLY-DAY HOME — Shown here is the home of Charles and Mary Mathews, parents of Carl Mathews, about four miles south and two miles east of the town of Elbert. Standing in the yard are Annie and Eric Mathews, sister and brother of Carl Mathews. The Mathews house and barn were built of native lumber.

Judith K. Edquist Named to Dean's List

Judith K. Edquist, daughter of Mrs. Rachel Thomas Edquist, 1417 N. Weber St., was recently named to the dean's list at Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia., for excellence during the first semester this year.

Miss Edquist is a sophomore at Grinnell. She has participated in the YWCA, been a member of the women's social budget committee, secretary of her freshmen's class and co-social chairman of New Students Days. During her freshman year she was elected a member of Tassels, honorary society for freshman women. She is a 1961 graduate of the Palmer High School.

Program Problems Solved by Speech Departments

Organization program chairmen, wondering where their next program is coming from, can find a solution to their problem by calling the Speech Department at Wasson or Palmer High Schools.

Seniors at the two schools have prepared speeches on a wide variety of historical topics for presentation. The speeches are about 20 minutes in length, and all are illustrated with various visual aids.

Palmer students have speeches on "Hat Making thru the Ages," "General Semantics," "Medieval Punishments," "Social Darwinism," "Laissez Faire and the Expanding Role of the Government," "The Influence of Journalism in America," and "The Stock Market."

At Wasson High students have speeches on "A Good Season for Corn," the vaudeville stage; "History of the Broadmoor," "Fashions in the Last 25 Years," "Last Flight," Amelia Earhart; "Dust, Monotony, and Death," the cattle drives, and "World's greatest Auction," operation of the stock market.

At Palmer and Wasson speech and history are integrated during the senior year. As a requirement for graduation every senior has to research a historical topic, submit a bibliography, and two outlines, develop visual aids, then present his speech to the class.

Program chairmen interested in having a senior speaker for their organization's meeting can make arrangements by calling Mrs. Rowena Roberts or George Lewis, at Palmer, or Lee Higgins at Wasson.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

(The article this week is one written by Carl Mathews, retired head of the Colorado Springs police department's identification bureau. Mathews, who read portions of this article before a recent meeting of the El Paso County Pioneers Assn., is a member of a pioneer Pikes Peak Region family).

REMINISCENCES OF ELBERT COUNTY

Some family history should be given first. On Feb. 12, 1874, three immigrant cars arrived in Denver from Mount Carmel, Ill. These contained the following families: Daniel Epler, Henry C. Mathews (my grandfather), and Christian Schillinger (grandfather on my mother's side). Transferring their goods to the little narrow-gauge Denver and Rio Grande, they left Denver on Feb. 14, going to Greenland. There the Mathews family was met by Joe Steadman, a son-in-law, who was teaching school in Elbert County. Grandfather Mathews contracted pneumonia and died in April.

Charles Mathews, my father, worked first for a man by the name of Feisel in Bijou Basin, then went to work for Philip P. Gomer, a sawmill man, and hauled logs with an ox team. Meanwhile, the Schillingers and Epiers went to Spring Valley, eight or 10 miles east of Greenland, and rented land for that season. During that summer, a band of Ute Indians camped near them for some time; one incident my mother remembered was that a little Indian boy had killed a squirrel and would toss it up in the air, shooting arrows at it and seldom missing.

Grandfather Schillinger took up a homestead in Elbert County and spent considerable time in digging a well and building a house on the place; my mother remembered that he and Uncle George, 10 years of age, would start out on a mule, with George carrying a shotgun for protection against Indians. Luckily no Indians appeared.

The following year they moved to the homestead where my grandmother had a brush with some drovers going thru with a herd of cattle; seeing the dust of the herd some distance away, she had the children drive their cattle into the corral and mounted guard on the porch with the old reliable shotgun. The trail boss asked her to allow him to turn the cattle out to check brands but she was too smart and told him if he wanted to look at the brands to go into the corral. This he did not do and moved his herd onward.

In 1884, Charles Mathews and Mary Schillinger, my mother, were married and moved on a homestead he had taken up near Bijou Basin. Here I was born the following year and now commence telling my recollections. The first was when I was 3 years old and my mother and I walked about a mile to a neighbors, where I lost a gold band ring from my finger in a spring. Today the spring is dry, and the house has been gone for over 60 years.

In May, 1889, my mother and I went to Eastonville to catch the train for Colorado Springs; one look at the monster snorting and puffing from the climb of 500 feet from Elbert, was too much and I ran into the depot, hiding under one of the benches. Arriving in Colorado Springs, we stayed for a time and I remember riding a street car (horse drawn) as far as the Colorado College campus, where the driver unhitched the horse and took it to the other end of the car and went back to town.

Nothing much happened until the fall of 1893, when my mother, my 1-year old brother Eric and I went to Santa Fe, N.M., to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Griffin, old friends. There I went to school for a while and enjoyed the Indian men spinning tops on the town square; the Indians had a habit of walking in without knocking and trying to peddle firewood which was packed on little burros. At Christmas I went to the tree and received an apple, an orange, and a little sack of candy.

In the spring we came back to Colorado Springs and I went to Lowell School for a time; there I remember Alex Martin, the boy with no legs, bullying the young ones. He was then about 15 years of age and large as I remember.

Going home, my father said, "Let's teach Carl to milk," which was no sooner said than done, and I had a string of four cows.

On March 29, 1895, the country was struck by a severe blizzard and that night my sister Annie was born; no doctor and only a neighbor woman to help. In July I was hoeing potatoes and the heat was so severe on my bare feet that I would dig out a hole with the hoe and stand in it for a time to cool off. That fall I remember the "Gulf" road carrying an enormous lot of trains, my recollection being that the road had seven passenger trains daily between Denver and Pueblo, with a connection for the Springs at Manitou Junction, about nine miles east.

The next spring (1896) I was given a two-horse team and a walking harrow and learned to handle the outfit. In October that fall I picked potatoes bare-handed in the snow and would stop at the end of the furrow to warm my hands by a small fire, shedding a few silent tears in the process. I was wearing an old coat of dad's and he said, "If Bryan is elected, we will get you a new coat."

I was put to plowing with a walking plow the next spring and every time the plow would hit a rock it would lift me off the ground as I did not have strength enough to handle it. On the 4th of July we went to Eastonville for the races and I remember Ed Pring doing stunts on a galloping horse.

In 1898, my father (who had been county surveyor) got a job with the Union Pacific Railroad as land examiner and from then on I practically did a man's work. That spring, returning from Eastonville in a one-horse cart and jogging along, the northbound train slipped up on me as it was going down grade, which startled the old mare and she ran away, but I was able to get her stopped.

In February, 1899, Grandmother Schillinger was staying at our house and came down with pneumonia. I was sent to Elbert for medicine and on the way home lost the bottle out of the cart. I had to pay a dollar for another bottle, which was a fortune for me.

In April, while going to the pasture early to get the cows, I saw a band of five men with packhorses sneaking thru the pasture, having dropped the fence wires to get thru. Who were they? Nobody knows but today I think they might have been Butch Cassidy's gang of bank robbers returning to their hide-out after committing some crime in New Mexico.

In the spring of 1900 my father had an office in the Inter-Ocean Hotel in Denver, selling real estate for the Union Pacific, so I took the train one day to visit him; I was dressed up in my new suit and wearing a celluloid collar (fashionable then). On the way up 17th Street, I dropped into a gyp barber shop and asked for a haircut, so was given the works, haircut, neck trim, shampoo, massage and everything; the bill came to $3 and I nearly fainted. Also bought a "gold" watch for another $3 and in a few days the brass was showing.

In July that year I was visiting the country school and a big flood came down the East Kiowa Creek; water about four feet deep and running fast. Mrs. Tuttle, who lived near by, decided she would cross and with her children crying and begging her not to, she drove in. When nearly across, the force of the water swept the pony and buggy against a wire fence but she climbed out over the shafts and succeeded in getting the pony to land.

In November the big wind which struck Colorado Springs also reached out to our ranch and blew an even two-thirds of the corn shocks out of the field, scattering them all over the hills.

In 1903, another boy and I attempted to climb Pikes Peak; we got as far as Windy Point and ran into a blizzard and had to turn back. We tried to stop at the Half-way House but a man ran us off so we had to walk nearly into Manitou before finding a cabin we could stop in until daylight.

In November, while walking two miles to a threshing machine with the thermometer down to 25 below, I frosted my feet thru high overshoes and they bothered me for several years.

On Election Day, 1904, after seeing my mother off on the train for St. Louis from Colorado Springs, I ran into a blizzard as soon as I reached the top of Rattlesnake Hill (Templeton Gap Road today) and had to get out ond walk to keep warm. I came to a ranch near Eastonvile and asked to stop to feed the team; they did not invite me into the house so I stood there half-frozen until the team had their oats and I munched a cold sandwich, then walked the rest of the way home.

In the fall of 1906, I decided to go to business college, so came to the Springs and entered Henager's School, taking a shorthand course and working for my board as a busboy at Schofield's Restaurant on the south side of Colorado Avenue at the alley between Tejon and Nevada. I went back to the ranch in the spring and worked until fall, when I again came to the school, now Wilder's Business College, and took a bookkeeping course.

That fall, 1908, I worked on a farm near Mead for a while, then went to the sugar factory in Longmont, working 84 hours a week for 20 cents an hour, piling sugar. It was hard work and we would wear out a pair of cotton gloves in two days. Soon after, I went to Scottsbluff, Neb., and pushed a wheelbarrow on a construction job for a while. Scottsbluff then had a population of 1,500 but today it has about 10 times that many residents. I worked on the farm that summer and fall, and in the winter my brother-in-law to be, and I took a job cutting cord-wood at $1 per cord. The best we would do was a cord per day, and we had to feed ourselves so we ate mostly biscuits and beans.

In 1910 my father rented the place to me, he furnishing four horses, farm machinery, etc. I had $100 to start with, and in November, after paying for hired help, threshing, etc., I had $200 to show for seven months' work.

In 1911 I worked for John S. Evans ("Big John") on his place near Eastonville. I took the teacher's examination that fall and taught at the Bluff School from September until the following May for $45 per month the first four months and $50 the next four; I have always told people that it was $40 and $45, but records at the county superintendent's office say I was paid $47.50 per month for eight months, so I guess I was wrong.

I worked for Mr. Evans until the fall of 1912, when I again came to Colorado Springs and took a review course at Brown's Business College. In May, 1913, I was called to the City Hall and put to work as secretary to the chief of police, beginning at $65 per month and advancing to $95 by September. I worked as secretary for over six years and then worked in the Identification Bureau for over 32 years.

Thus ends the tale, and not all of it in Elbert County.

As with most youngsters, there are some people who stand out in one's recollection, and I will list a few of them:

John Riley, the old antelope hunter, who taught me the alphabet from the old newspapers pasted on the wall of our kitchen when I was 3 years old.

A. R. ("Squire") James, with his tin ear trumpet; even if one shouted he could hardly understand what was said.

Bob Barnwell, the one-armed young man who handled a three or four-horse team with ease and confidence; he would wrap the lines around the stump of his left arm and work the levers of the binder or other implement with the right arm.

The Svensgard brothers, Hans and Ole, with their little grain separator and the tea-kettle engine, which could not pull the separator up a long hill, but had to be detached and a team of horses used to do the uphill work.

Russell Gates, who seems to have originated the chain store idea in our country at least, having seven large stores and a wholesale house in Colorado Springs; a large man who nearly always wore a broad brimmed black hat.

Easter Seal Program Kicked Off by Mayor

The mayor found this year's responsibility twice as great since he purchased two sheets from identical twins, Donnie and Ronnie Copper, patients at the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center.

Orris Dott 1963 Easter Seal chairman, said that 30,000 sheets of seals will be mailed to Colorado Springs residents on Saturday. Dott further indicated that for more than 40 years Easter Seals have helped fight crippling, and their use indicates not only your generous cooperation but spreads the story that crippled children can be helped.

A startling and deliberately controversial new concept in design characterizes the 1963 Easter Seals. Taking a radically different direction, the seals this year are intended as miniature posters, telling the story of the struggle of crippled children to overcome their handicaps.

The seals will be distributed during the appeal dates, Thursday to Easter Sunday, April 14, as a means of arousing public understanding and support for services for crippled children and handicapped adults in Easter Seal Centers, such as the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center.

Don Marrs, art director, The Leo Burnett Company, Chicago, created the twin Easter Seals for 1963. Explaining the design, Marrs said that he abandoned aging graphic concepts in favor of a more vigorous design to illustrate the difficulty and determination of crippled children in their struggle to lead normal lives. He pointed out that the 1963 Easter Seals will carry a potent message into millions of American homes which heretofore received on a decorative seal and which ignored the great human effort involved in the rehabilitation process.

The other seal reverses the color scheme and bears the silhouette of a crippled girl in blue using a crutch, outlined in white against the green background. It bears the same legend as the first seal.

Heredity Seen As High Blood Pressure Factor

Blood pressure responses may be an inherited characteristic which predisposes to high blood pressure, a study indicated today.

A standard test given to 207 persons to determine their blood pressure response revealed a larger of hyperreactors among those with a hypertensive father or mother than among those whose parents had normal blood pressure, according to Paul H. Barnett, M.D., Edgar A. Hines Jr., M.D., Alexander Schirger, M.D., and Robert P. Gage, M.S., Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

In families in which one or both parents were hypertensive, 23 of 73 children were hyperreactos, the researchers reported in the current Journal of the American Medical Association. In families in which neither parent was hypertensive, only 8 of 107 children were hyperreactors, they said.

The finding that the percentage of hyperreactors in hypertensive families was more than four times the percentage observed in the normal families lend further support to the concept that this type of vascular reactivity is an inherited characteristic, they said.

Most of the parents of the subjects studied had been patients at the Mayo Clinic and the records showed that the family histories were accurate, they said.

The blood pressure reactions generally were measured by taking the normal blood pressure at rest and comparing it with the rise in blood pressure when the subject's hand was placed in cold water for one minute, the researchers said.

The 207 participants, ranging in age from 33 to 46, were part of a group of 300 students at St. John's School in Rochester who were similarly tested 27 years earlier, they said.

Thirty-one subjects who were hyperreactive when originally tested in 1934 and who were retested in 1961 again proved to be hyperreactive, they said. In addition, 21 previously normal reactors had hyperreactive responses to the 1961 test, they said.

It was also found that 4 of 40 subjects designated hyperreactors in 1934 had developed high blood pressure, whereas none of the 167 designated normal reactors had become hypertensive, they said.

This tends to support the theory that persons who are hyperreactors are more likely candidates for high blood pressure than those with normal reactions to this test, the researchers concluded.

Stewarts Commercial Photographers Firm Marks Anniversary

March 1 of this year marked the first anniversary of the purchase of Stewart's Commercial Photographers Inc., by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Coil and Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Brunson.

Both Coil and Brunson are veteran photographers and long-time residents of the region, and have worked together for the past 17 years before becoming partners in the present enterprise.

The fast - growing firm has numerous contracts in the photographic field, and has done work for a large variety of businesses including building contractors, architects, railroads, utilities, automotive firms and the military.

Their photographs have appeared in both national and international brochures, high school geometery text books, house organs, year books and many of today's leading magazines and newspapers.

Some of the leading publications for which the firm has done work include the Sunday supplement of the New York Times, Holiday, Harizon, Encyclopedia Americana, Collier's Year Book, and over Time Magazine. Numerous architectural publications are included on the list.

Photographic assignments Coil and Brunson have encountered are many and varied and include aerial as well as ground pictures. They have photographed the NORAD underground installation, the Air Force Academy grounds, chapel and stadium, sports and scenic attractions in the region, and practically all of the new buildings constructed in the area including the Medalion Apartments, the Chidlaw Building, Police and Penrose Hospital buildings and Broadmoor South.

They also do work for the Chamber of Commerce industrial department, the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo and the Range Riders on their annual trip around Pikes Peak.

The firm has photographed the Air Force Academy stadium from the air and also the Pikes Peak Highway, and many times their assignments take them to the high places of the Continental Divide for scenic and racing shots.

The 13-mile-long course winds over Mosquito Pass, the highest pass on the continent. Here Academy racing contestants and the burros they must take with them, face icy winds that blow across the rugged trails at the timberless heights.

A series of pictures made by the firm on roads in the high mountain country also appeared in "Men of Action", a magazine published by the International Harvester Co., Chicago.

The article accompanying the pictures described the roads as "The Hell - Bent Roads too Tough to Die", and told the story of the men who built them, the gold-seeking prospectors of the 1860's.

Many of these roads are now used as ranger trails and the region surrounding them abound in scenic attractions and ghost towns which were pictorially displayed in the article.

Locally the firm is affiliated with the Colorado Springs Lions Club, the Cheyenne Mountain Lions Club, the Army and Air Force Associations, the Junior Rodeo, the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, the Pikes Peak Hill Climb Association, Soil Conservation Service, the Pikes Peak Range Riders, the Junior and Senior Chamber of Commerce and the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

The firm works with the Air Force Academy Foundation and is proud tion and the Falcon football and baseball teams.

"We appreciate the friendly cooperation and help that is extended to us in our work thruout the region regardless of the assignment," Coil said. "We also believe in the future of the community and are optomistic about its progress. We endeavor at all times to call attention to Colorado Springs and vicinity whether it be local, national or international, thru the medium of our profession," he added.

Coil, a native of Springfield, Mo., came to Colorado Springs as a child, and later became associated with the Stewart Photographic Store. During his many years in the photography profession he has racked up many picture credits including pictures of famous movie stars, premieres of national motion pictures photographs.

Mrs. Coil, whom he married in 1932 is a native of Cleveland, Ohio and a graduate of the Western Reserve University. She came to Colorado Springs in 1931. The couple have two children and four grandchildren, all of Colorado Springs.

Brunson, a native of Denver, joined the Navy in 1943, spending 18 months in the South Pacific aboard a mine sweeper. He participated in the invasion of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

After World War II Brunson returned to Colorado Springs and became associated with Stewarts Photo Service. Brunson has lived in Colorado Springs since 1930 and attended Cheyenne Mountain High school and Blair Business College.

Mrs. Norine Brunson is a native of Colorado Springs and a graduate of Palmer High School. She also attended Blair Business College and is now secretary for Stewarts Commercial Photographers.

The couple was married in 1946 and have one son Daniel who now attends Cheyenne High School.

ARCHITECTURAL BEAUTY — The beauty of the Penrose Hospital structural design is displayed to full advantage in a photograph taken by Stewarts Commercial Photographers Inc. The shot was made with the camera located on Cascade Avenue showing the southwest frontage of the building.

Sister Cyril Will Attend Beatification in Rome

Sister Cyril, administrator of Penrose Hospital, leaves today for Rome to attend the beatification ceremonies for Mother Seton, founder of the Sisters of Charity Order, next Sunday.

She will be accompanied by Sister Cornelius, western regional superior of the Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati, Ohio, the order to which Sister Cyril also belongs.

The nuns will leave Colorado Springs by, train for New York, where they will join 3,000 other pilgrims for the flight to Rome.

Planes of six different airlines, departing over a period of three days, will take part in the largest religious pilgrimage ever airlifted.

The delegation, which includes Bishop Charles Buswell of Pueblo, will be headed by New York's Francis Cardinal Spellman.

The Seton School of Nursing at Penrose will hold open house next Sunday to celebrate the beatification of Mother Seton.

The Seton School here is only the one in the Cincinnati order to bear Mother Seton's name, altho other orders have similarly named schools.

The itinerary of Sisters Cornelius and Cyril include Fatima, Portugal; Rome; Lourdes, France; Paris and Dublin. They will return to Colorado Springs March 29.

Mother Seton is the first U.S. citizen to be beatified. Born Elizabeth Ann Bayley in New York City in 1774, she married William Seton in 1794 and became the mother of five children.

She was converted to Roman Catholicism in 1805 and founded the American order of the Sisters of Charity four years later.

There are six other communities of the Sisters of Charity besides the one in Cincinnati. They are located in Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Nova Scotia. The nuns work in hospitals, orphanages, sanitoriums, infant homes, social centers, foreign missions and retreat houses.

All the others are sending representatives to Rome. The Cincinnati community alone is sending a delegation of 55 nuns, including many who have been 50 years or more in the order, plus all past and present members of the governing council.

Beatification is the second degree of sanctity in the three stage progression to canonization, or sainthood. It is proclaimed only after proof is shown that the candidate was involved in two miracles. Canonization also requires the proof of two miracles.

Mother Seton, whose cause was first introduced in 1940, was proclaimed Venerable, the first step in 1959 after her life was found to have been extraordinarily virtuous and exemplary.

At each stage the church studies carefully each miracle or claimed miracle, examining every detail of the candidate's life. One church official is appointed "devil's advocate" and does his best to prove the candidate's unworthiness.

Sister Cyril, who came to Colorado in 1932, has been administrator of Penrose for six years. Sister Cornelius, now residing at the Seton postulancy in Pueblo, has been regional superior for seven years. She first came to Colorado in 1916.

Stewarts Commercial Photographers Firm Marks Anniversary

March 1 of this year marked the first anniversary of the purchase of Stewart's Commercial Photographers Inc., by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Coil and Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Brunson.

Both Coil and Brunson are veteran photographers and long-time residents of the region, and have worked together for the past 17 years before becoming partners in the present enterprise.

The fast - growing firm has numerous contracts in the photographic field, and has done work for a large variety of businesses including building contractors, architects, railroads, utilities, automotive firms and the military.

The partners purchased the commercial department from Stewarts, a firm established in 1912.

Their photographs have appeared in both national and international brochures, high school geometery text books, house organs, year books and many of today's leading magazines and newspapers.

Some of the leading publications for which the firm has done work include: the Sunday supplement of the New York Times, Holiday, Horizon, Encyclopedia Americana, Collier's Year Book, and over Mosquito Pass, the highest Time Magazine. Numerous archipast on the continent. Here Academy Foundation and is proud tectural publications are included on the list.

Photographic assignments Coil and Brunson have encountered are many and varied and include aerial as well as ground pictures. They have photographed the NORAD underground installation, the Air Force Academy grounds, chapel and stadium, sports and scenic attractions in the region, and practically all of the new buildings constructed in the area including the Medalion Apartments, the Chidlaw Building, Police and Penrose Hospital buildings and Broadmoor South.

They also do work for the Chamber of Commerce industrial department, the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo and the Range Riders on their annual trip around Pikes Peak.

The firm has photographed the Air Force Academy stadium from the air and also the Pikes Peak Highway, and many times their assignments take them to the high places of the Continental Divide for scenic and racing shots.

The 29-mile-long course winds racing contestants and the burros they must take with them, face icy winds that blow across the rugged trails at the timberless heights.

A series of pictures made by the firm on roads in the high mountain country also appeared in "Men of Action", a magazine published by the International Harvester Co., Chicago.

The article accompanying the pictures described the roads as "The Hell - Bent Roads too Tough to Die", and told the story of the men who built them, the gold-seeking prospectors of the 1860's.

Many of these roads are now used as ranger trails and the region surrounding them abound in scenic attractions and ghost towns which were pictorially displayed in the article.

Locally the firm is affiliated with the Colorado Springs Lions Club, the Cheyenne Mountain Lions Club, the Army and Air Force Associations, the Junior Rodeo, the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, the Pikes Peak Hill Climb Association, Soil Conservation Service, the Pikes Peak Range Riders, the Junior and Senior Chamber of Commerce and the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

The firm works with the Air Force Academy athletic association and the Falcon football and baseball teams.

"We appreciate the friendly cooperation and help that is extended to us in our work thruout the region regardless of the assignment," Coil said. "We also believe in the future of the community and are optomistic about its progress. We endeavor at all times to call attention to Colorado Springs and vicinity whether it be local, national or international, thru the medium of our profession," he added.

Coil, a native of Springfield, Mo., came to Colorado Springs as a child, and later became associated with the Stewart Photographic Store. During his many years in the photography profession he has racked up many picture credits including pictures of famous movie stars, premieres of national motion pictures photographs.

Mrs. Coil, whom he married in 1932 is a native of Cleveland, Ohio and a graduate of the Western Reserve University. She came to Colorado Springs in 1931. The couple have two children and four grandchildren, all of Colorado Springs.

Brunson, a native of Denver, joined the Navy in 1943, spending 18 months in the South Pacific aboard a mine sweeper. He participated in the invasion of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

After World War II Brunson returned to Colorado Springs and became associated with Stewarts Photo Service. Brunson has lived in Colorado Springs since 1930 and attended Cheyenne Mountain High school and Blair Business College.

Mrs. Norine Brunson is a native of Colorado Springs and a graduate of Palmer High School. She also attended Blair Business College and is now secretary for Stewarts Commercial Photographers.

The couple was married in 1946 and have one son Daniel who now attends Cheyenne High School.

Sister Cyril Will Attend Beatification in Rome

Sister Cyril, administrator of Penrose Hospital, leaves today for Rome to attend the beatification ceremonies for Mother Seton, founder of the Sisters of Charity Order, next Sunday.

She will be accompanied by Sister Cornelius, western regional superior of the Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati, Ohio, the order to which Sister Cyril also belongs.

The nuns will leave Colorado Springs by, train for New York, where they will join 3,000 other pilgrims for the flight to Rome.

Planes of six different airlines, departing over a period of three days, will take part in the largest religious pilgrimage ever airlifted.

The delegation, which includes Bishop Charles Buswell of Pueblo, will be headed by New York's Francis Cardinal Spellman.

The Seton School of Nursing at Penrose will hold open house next Sunday to celebrate the beatification of Mother Seton.

The Seton School here is only the one in the Cincinnati order to bear Mother Seton's name, altho other orders have similarly named schools.

The itinerary of Sisters Cornelius and Cyril include Fatima, Portugal; Rome; Lourdes, France; Paris and Dublin. They will return to Colorado Springs March 29.

Mother Seton is the first U.S. citizen to be beatified. Born Elizabeth Ann Bayley in New York City in 1774, she married William Seton in 1794 and became the mother of five children.

She was converted to Roman Catholicism in 1805 and founded the American order of the Sisters of Charity four years later.

There are six other communities of the Sisters of Charity besides the one in Cincinnati. They are located in Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Nova Scotia. The nuns work in hospitals, orphanages, sanitoriums, infant homes, social centers, foreign missions and retreat houses.

All the others are sending representatives to Rome. The Cincinnati community alone is sending a delegation of 55 nuns, including many who have been 50 years or more in the order, plus all past and present members of the governing council.

Beatification is the second degree of sanctity in the three stage progression to canonization, or sainthood. It is proclaimed only after proof is shown that the candidate was involved in two miracles. Canonization also requires the proof of two miracles.

Mother Seton, whose cause was first introduced in 1940, was proclaimed Venerable, the first step, in 1959 after her life was found to have been extraordinarily virtuous and exemplary.

At each stage the church studies carefully each miracle or claimed miracle, examining every detail of the candidate's life. One church official is appointed "devil's advocate" and does his best to prove the candidate's unworthiness.

Sister Cyril, who came to Colorado in 1932, has been administrator of Penrose for six years. Sister Cornelius, now residing at the Seton postulancy in Pueblo, has been regional superior for seven years. She first came to Colorado in 1916.

With nearly four weeks still to go in the 1963 Federal Joint Crusade at the Air Force Academy, two organizations are nearing the 50 per cent participation mark, campaign project officer Col. Harry C. Green said today.

Col. Green's unit, the 7825th USAF Hospital, reports 47 per cent participation; the Directorate of Security and Law Enforcement, 43 per cent.

The drive is scheduled to run thru April 1 and the overall academy participation goal has been set at 100 per cent.

Both national health agencies such as the Heart Association and service groups such as CARE and the Korean Foundation benefit from the joint drive.

COLORADO SPRINGS

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Freedom Is No Panacea

We have an interesting letter from Paul Donohue which is being reproduced in our Open Parliament section. Like so many, Mr. Donahue wants us to accept the status quo and come up with a winner. The fact is that we don't believe it is possible.

But there are a number of misconceptions under which Mr. Donohue is laboring and we'll do our best to try to show that his view of our position is a distortion of fact.

For example, he seems to have the idea that we are offering a panacea. He mentions Utopian ideas offered by Sir Thomas More, Rousseau, Voltaire and others.

We are quite familiar with the Utopian ideas of More and Rousseau altho we have missed discerning this in the writings of Voltaire.

But the problem is that More's and Rosseau's views are precisely those of Mr. Donohue and not ours. We do not believe in a Utopia nor in a "back to nature" movement. These thinkers offered a concept of society in which want would be abolished and we would all share and share alike. That is precisely what Mr. Donohue is asking for and diametrically contrary to our own view of the matter.

More was a socialist in his book, "Utopia," and Rousseau expressed both socialist and individualist views, the latter suffering because of his preoccupation with the "general will," the importance of "community" and so on.

Mr. Donohue says quite emphatically that we are in error when we contend that the trend toward a welfare state is in itself bad. We do not think we are in error on this point. Those who have offered a panacea such as More and Rousseau, have had a number of years to bring in their Utopian schemes and they have failed and continue to fail dismally.

We do not know where Mr. Donohue gets the idea that we are offering a panacea. We have written repeatedly that we don't agree with such pat solutions as those offered by such political and economic schemers.

Freedom is no panacea. But when freedom does exist, it is always possible to change conditions and better them. The trouble with existing trends is that they are mostly made as a matter of law. And it very, very difficult to get men to realize that passing more laws will not solve their problems nor eliminate the necessity for them to apply themselves personally to the problems.

This, indeed, is the specific fallacy of the welfare state. It is an attempt to eliminate charity by passing laws which forcefully seize the wealth of some to distribute it compulsively to others. We do not like to see charity debauched and besmirched by the intrusion of compulsion. That which is truly charitable must be always voluntary. Charity can only occur in a climate of freedom.

If, as Mr. Donohue asserts, the world is looking to this nation for leadership, what will the peoples of the world conclude when we are plunged into absolute bankruptcy, our properties taken by the state and ourselves made impotent to help even ourselves, let alone others? Is such a procedure leadership?

To lead means to first assume a position of success which is not subject to erosion and compulsion. The inroads against private property and private income made by our own government in recent times are reducing our ability to survive, let alone to lead.

Certainly, there are at least a million crackpot ideas afloat, among them Rousseau's and More's. But we do not think that freedom is a crackpot idea. It was the concept of our founders that we should be a free and independent people. So long as that concept was uppermost in our minds, we grew and flourished.

Mighty Rome took the same pathway toward the welfare state that we are taking. And few in Rome ever thought that Rome could or would fall. But it did.

Incidentally, laissez-faire capitalism did not die. It still persists and our own high standards of living derive from this living body of economic freedom—now sadly impaired, it is true.

You Earn First

Progress does not come from insisting on living beyond your income. Progress comes when you improve yourself and the services you render to others until your income rises.

Freedom Means Freedom

It is truly curious how difficult it is for people to believe precisely what is said. For example, we have often stated, and we believe in understandable language, that we do not believe in forcing our views on anyone. We profess a faith and a belief in freedom. And to be consistent with this faith and belief, we cannot favor any kind of move which would result in having everyone do as we might like them to do.

But the idea persists that we don't mean what we say. Always there seems to be someone around who is certain that if we had the chance we would seize the reins of authority, topple existing institutions and dictate the terms and conditions of society from that moment.

Nothing could be in greater error.

An attorney friend of ours once cornered the writer on this point and we suppose this friend is still somewhat unbelieving, yet we said what we meant and we meant what we said.

It began when our friend turned to us and said:

"All right, you are always talking about freedom. Very well. You want a free society. It sounds great. Now, then, let us suppose that you were the president of the United States. You have all the power in your grasp that accrues to that high office.

"As a matter of fact, let's suppose that you have even more power than that. You have TOTAL power. Now, what would be your first action?"

We responded in full candor. "We would abdicate."

Our friend was both disbelieving and upset.

"But you can't mean that! Here you have the chance of a life-time to put across your ideas all the way across the nation. You can force everyone to live the way you think is best for them. You certainly wouldn't resign."

"But we would," we insisted. "In fact, we couldn't get out of that high office fast enough. As a matter of fact, if events had begun shaping themselves in this direction we would have taken steps before such a dreadful contingency came to pass. We do, indeed, NOT want to rule. We believe in freedom."

Our friend confessed to bafflement. "But how can you make everybody free, unless you are willing to assume authority and provide a central plan all can follow?"

"But would it be freedom," we persisted, "if we were planning for everyone? Implicit with the concept of freedom is the recognition that each person must plan for himself. Indeed, this is just the reason many people seem to be afraid of freedom. They well know that they would have to assume full responsibility for themselves and their own actions.

"Lots of folks seem to think that responsibility relates to taking up the burdens of others. But it really means taking up your own burden so that you do not have to be a dependent on others. Lots of people also think that freedom can be provided by others, or put in from the top by force. It can't be. When you try this, altho you may call it freedom, it stops being freedom when it is forced."

We suppose that our attorney friend was having his ideological difficulties with us largely because of the conditioning so common these days. So many are convinced that the only way to get anything done is to use force. But it isn't, really. Whenever force is exployed, altho temporary motion may occur, there is an invariable tendency for a reaction to that force to develop.

But certainly we can never have a free society if any one group of persons dictates from the top. What they dictate might vary, but the fact of dictation is contradictory to freedom.

Bids for a Smile

Do you know that the origin of the expression "to mind one's P's and Q's" came from the fact that a record was kept of the liquor purchases of guests in old English taverns? They tallied the pints and quarts as they were imbibed.

Nation's Press

Nursemaid to Communism

From Life Lines

The mistaken ideology of communism which flows out of Soviet Russia is threatening to end freedom and to wreck the world.

How and why did Russia get into a position of such power as to cause the international appeasers to come mouthing the words, "Better red than dead?"

History has the answer: It was the United States which gave the communists their chance.

Thirty years ago, the United States rescued Josef Stalin at the depths of communism's failure to make good as a guiding force in Russia. The method of rescue was the extension, on November 17, 1933, of U.S. diplomatic recognition to the Soviet regime.

The recognition reversed a policy followed since the Bolshevik takeover of Russia late in 1917, and gave international respectability to the most ruthless people-oppressor of all times.

We had ample warning from the communist leaders themselves that our original policy of non-recognition was born of wisdom. Lenin, speaking before the World Congress of International Communism in 1922 said:

"The eternal in the Russian revolution is the fact that it is the beginning of the world revolution."

Lenin's second in command, Leon Trotsky, was even more explicit when he said:

"Revolution is coming in Europe as well as in America, systematically, step by step, stubbornly and with gnashing of teeth in both camps. It will be long protracted, cruel and sanguinary."

Our secretary of state remarked wisely at the time:

"There should be no encouragement to those efforts of the Soviet authorities to visit upon other peoples the disasters that have overwhelmed the Russian people."

All these statements were made in 1922. Not long after, on January 21, 1924, Lenin died. His regime was a failure, marked by murder and destruction, with the Russian people sinking from one disaster to another.

Trotsky expected to succeed Lenin in power, but power-seeking has always been a bloody business among the communists, and he was forced aside by his rival, Stalin. This new ruler, like Lenin, was a master at wrecking other people's hopes and aims. Also like Lenin, he was not able to formulate an orderly government of his own.

In the communist manner, he could only kill and destroy. In the winter of 1930, his way of handling rebellious peasants was to exterminate them.

Approximately 12-million Russians were starved to death by order of one man because they objected to giving their cows, pigs, and plots of land to the government.

The government desperately needed prestige. Lacking it within the borders of Soviet Russia, the communists searched elsewhere. So the communists were forever after the United States to open diplomatic and commercial relations with them in hopes of receiving the boost in prestige so essential to their maintenance of power.

Maxim Litvinov, the Soviet foreign minister, was a crafty operator. He promised that Russia would pay its long-standing debts owed to America since Czarist days. He promised that his government would not tolerate any movement to destroy the government of the United States. He made many other similar promises.

In 1933, Litvinov saved his master, Stalin, from civil war and obtained the world prestige which put communism in motion again in every capital of Europe and Asia.

He had planted the most disastrous influence ever to afflict the people of the United States.

We still had not learned our lesson. Communism stayed alive in Russia because of our recognition of the Soviet government.

Thanks to our Lend - Lease program, Josef Stalin managed to separate the United States from $11 billion in war supplies, machinery, transportation equipment, raw materials, foodstuff—anything which would bolster the sagging Russian economy. Stalin was very quick indeed to accept the support of the despised, capitalistic United States.

Thruout the war, the boundless industrial potential of the U. S. helped the communists. In all, 2,600 shiploads of cargo left American ports for Russia, including arms, tanks, trucks, vast amounts of mineral oils, high octane aviation gasoline, thousands of aircraft, and a great number of ships. Also included were machine tools, complete industrial plants, and more than four-million tons of foodstuff.

What Russia was unable to obtain otherwise, she obtained thru espionage. While Lend - Lease planes were piling up in Russia, the communists were stealing our armament secrets and using Lend-Lease planes to transport the stolen waves to develop those stolen secrets.

The United Nations was the vehicle by which Russia gained further diplomatic recognition. In order to be a member of the U.N., all the countries of the non-Axis world were forced to declare war and to recognize the Allied Powers. Russia was an Allied Power.

When World War II ended, the communists held seven per cent of the world's people in slavery. Now they enslave at least 35 per cent of the people of the world, and dominate 25 per cent of the earth's surface. These victories have been won mostly by espionage, by relentless incitement to revolt, and by craftily - planned internal subversion.

To understand all that has happened, one must understand the full extent of the assistance given Soviet Russia during the last days of the war, when Allied forces were deliberately held back so that Russian forces could enter Berlin first.

As a result of being permitted to occupy East Germany, Russia grabbed most of the industrial power of Germany. Whole factories were dismantled and shipped to Russia, altho this was in violation of the agreement among the Allies that all armament factories would be destroyed.

At the Yalta Conference, Stalin asked for and later received about 80 per cent of Germany's industrial might as "reparations."

German scientists who tried desperately during the last days of the war to surrender to the West were refused. The majority were purposely permitted to fall into Soviet hands. This allowed the communists to gain the space development plans worked out by the German scientists. The Germans had developed plans for manned rockets, manned satellites, and space stations.

The United States cannot escape responsibility for turning over Central Europe to the Soviet Union. It cannot escape its part in the betrayal of Nationalist China. And Americans cannot shut their eyes to the fact that the Castro takeover of Cuba was aided and abetted by persons inside our own government.

Today almost 30 years after official U.S. recognition of communist Russia, we are faced with this fact:

Despite the high hopes we held during the time of our positive action in the Cuban crisis, all the communists have to do to achieve final victory over freedom is to continue on the course they have taken in the past.

The United States must adopt a new attitude and employ new tactics.

That is why active participation in the fight to save freedom is the most important course Americans can take today.

You and Your Big Arizona Ranch

By G. BOARDMAN, Ph. D.

About a year ago I received a letter from a young man in Louisiana who begged me to get about the business of finding a great leader who might unite all of the people and lead them out of the socialist swamp into a conservative Utopia. Being a little less than normally patient at the time, I suggested that the young man stir around a little, get off his fat and find his own leader, if he wanted to be a follower.

This brought a rather explosive reaction. "It's easy for you to write about freedom, you and your big Arizona ranch and all that. If you had to work and live in a city, you might feel differently. We have to pay more for a few steaks than you pay for a whole cow. Sure, you can write about freedom when you don't have to worry about eating." The letter went on and on in this vein.

Just a few days before I received that letter I had refused to enter a hospital as a charity patient despite the urging of an M.D. Our big Arizona ranch consists of 2½ acres of undeveloped land on a rough graded road on which the taxes are about $3.00. We are eating up a small, carefully hoarded supply of canned food and had eaten no fresh meat in several months because we could not afford it. We talked about the rabbit feast we would have when my health recovered so we could go hunting. We were hauling about 15 gallons of water a day for cooking, drinking and flushing a toilet once a day. We used about six cups of water a day for bathing and managed to stay tolerably clean.

About the same time, I received a letter from the president of a large corporation who told me he wished he could get rid of his many responsibilities so he could go out tilting at windmills with me. The most famous political cartoonist in the country envied my ability to get away from it all and to take things easy. Another man tried to explain his theory of economics and its tie-in with freedom, that only the very wealthy could afford the luxury of freedom and this went on and on and I am still waiting for a pause in the unthinkingness.

There was also the conservative leader from Chicago who insisted we were trying to create a haven to which conservatives could run for protection and to get away from it all, and he dropped in on us to see what was going on for himself and departed dazed and muttering like a punch - drunk fighter.

Now, a year later, the situation remains unchanged. A great many visitors drop by to see for themselves how we lived thru last summer and the fall and how we're doing this winter because they are sure we have found a pleasant, relaxing formula for freedom. They drop in without bringing water or food and begin trying to argue us out of our way of life. They are startled when we suggest they visit the grocery store to buy a few bottles of soda pop if they want to wash up. They come expecting Utopia and leave shaking their heads, anxious to get back to a big city where the population is piled up and they can feel safe and secure in the mobs.

Yes, we are deeply involved in the fight for freedom but it is our own freedom we are fighting for. Since we are not tyrants, we would not presume to fight for your freedom. We have nothing to sell, nothing to join and no formula to set you free in 36 easy payments. We have never asked anyone to join us or to make our fight his fight. We started fighting for our own freedom more than ten years ago and made our final decisions in this regard when we pulled out of California August 1, 1960. Since that time we've read or listened to a thousand reasons why others continue to equivocate in lethargic dullness as the socialist conglomerate tramples them into their own soil and steals them blind: "Some day," they say, "when we can find ways and means to become safe and secure and comfortable, we will quit playing footsie with the thieves and tyrants who now enslave us."

I do not argue with those who prefer slavery to freedom. I do, however, suggest that we have no magical formula for them and that we seek none. Each individual must decide for himself how much freedom is worth.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Question Box

Question No. 162, "What does an underdeveloped country really mean?"

When we speak of an underdeveloped country it really means that there is a scarcity of capital. There is a scarcity of capital because property has not been respected, because the government has interfered with people keeping what they have produced.

Of course, when capital is not respected or the public does not believe that private property is good, and thus wants the government to take from one to benefit another, that country doesn't get capital, either locally or from abroad. Capital usually goes where it is safe and has the best chance to be of service, thus making a gain.

An underdeveloped country really means a country that has a lack of capital, and lack of capital means lack of morality, because morality or ethics or justice come before capital accumulation.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

'HARD FACTS'

To the Editor:

I cannot dismiss lightly the thoughts expressed in the editorials of the Gazette Telegraph. Some of the world's greatest minds have dwelled long on the Utopian ideas expounded by Sir Thomas More, Rousseau, Voltaire and others of equal genius. However, there has never been a practical solution to the question of government which enables the polygonal human nature to fit into the neatly patterned form laid out by the idealist.

Perhaps the theories you advocate would benefit mankind, but I, along with many of my countrymen, am aware enough of the world as it is today to realize that it would mean the end of the United States, and selfish enough to want my sons to grow to manhood.

The United States, during the last 50 years, has assumed the role of world leadership. We enjoy freedom such as is found in no other country in the world: have the highest standards of living; and have every right to be proud of our accomplishments. But with these benefits, we also bear a responsibility. The world now looks to us for leadership and help. We cannot ignore it! Neither can we ignore those among us, the aged, the uneducated, the poor and the sick who must be aided if we are to progress. These are hard facts! Another is that the political trend in the world today is toward the welfare state.

Where you fail in your reasoning is to assume that the trend toward the welfare state is in itself bad. This is not true. In fulfilling our responsibilities we must restrict some of our freedom, but we must differentiate between what is merely annoying and what is basic. This, sir, is what you fail miserably to do. You have, altho you appear not to realize it, a sacred trust to inform the people of events and to attempt to guide their reactions toward that which will strengthen our nation and mankind.

I am not trying to imply that our government is perfect, but your panacea will solve nothing. Certainly there is injustice and imperfection in our school system, but why can't you spend half the time, energy and intellect on constructive criticism that you spend on laissez-faire capitalism which died a natural death in the nineteenth century? All of the areas you have brushed in your editorials are national problems which cry for intelligent solutions. All I have seen in your editorials are facetious answers.

Even if there are $1,000,000 crackpot ideas to sift thru, would not one workable solution among them be worth the trouble?

EXTREMES

To the Editor:

If an isolationist is one who ignores international affairs, then an internationalist is one who ignores national affairs.

Between these two extremists, what do you call the American who believes in one God, His one universe, His one world, this nation under Him?

PEACE CORPS

To the Editor:

I recently read that Congressman Victor Wickersham was calling for an investigation of the Peace Corps because one of their recruiters was being paid $75 a day. I feel this investigation is an excellent idea.

There was a write-up in our local paper about a young man who had returned after a six month stint of training Peace Corps volunteers in Puerto Rico. He taught 700 volunteers the tricks of rock climbing and for this instruction in rock climbing he earned $130 weekly.

It was a lengthy article, but at one point he says, "Rock climbing in itself is of little use to Peace Corps volunteers, it is intended to show the trainee that he can do something if he really wants to." I wonder how much we taxpayers pay on a national basis for all of this "necessary" instruction!

He also said visitors from Washington, D.C., are quite common at the Puerto Rican camps — he met Ted Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Sargent Shriver, and Margaret Chase Smith. I wonder how much we taxpayers pay for this travel.

I also remember Fulton Lewis' broadcast in which he described the behavior of the volunteers in this camp. It was quite shocking. Then I read where the University of New Mexico student senate has asked that the Peace Corps trainees be housed away from the regular students because of the trainees' past behavior.

As over-taxed taxpayers more of us should let our congressmen know that we resent underwriting of this type of operation. Especially now that the director of the Peace Corps, Sargent Shriver, intends to ask Congress to authorize the strength of the corps to 13,000. I wonder how many additional $130 weekly instructors this increase in corps strength would involve.

THIRD WORLD WAR

To the Editor:

Fantastic as it may seem, the visit to Denver on February 27, of 16 Russian "religious leaders" is an affront to the dignity and intelligence of every man who lives by the divine rules of God.

Dr. Fredrick Brown Harris, Chaplain of the United States Senate, quoted in "The Sunday Star," Oct. 8, 1961, from publications of the Russian Orthodox Church, their attitude toward America. The following is a direct quote from the leaders of the "Russian Church":

"Capitalistic America, the trans-Atlantic octopus, is trying to fasten its greedy tentacles around the whole globe. The resurrected Babylon is trying to seduce the people of the world while pushing them toward war. The freedom of the western democrats is but liberty to rob, coerce and slaughter. They are merchants in human blood, sitting on a bag of gold, ready to exterminate all people who have the nerve to protest."

May God have mercy on The National Council of Churches who co-exist with those who say, "Our church (Russian) calls upon all its faithful children, honestly, to submit to the regime (Communism) in all things".

The ministers in Russia, who rebelled against atheism, gave their lives; just a few escaped to tell the true story behind the iron curtain. Our statesmen, as well as our church leaders, must understand the Third World War, now in what many call its final stages.

It is not a war of man-made machines or weapons, but a war that will end in complete domination of all men, by a few, or that man will determine his own destiny.

This war is between political atheism and political patriotism. In the former, liberty is a gift in the latter, liberty is a reward for ethical effort. Flowery orators of today make use of the English language to control public opinions. If we are placed in a position where the majority of the opinion molders are in the former category, we are convinced. So, we accept this concept, which is atheism. This is one of the basic evils of a democracy or a popular government. The trust that we place in men must come from a higher source of authority than man. Men of wisdom have warned and taken many precautions in safeguarding the inherent evils that develop in popular concepts of government rule.

Political atheism has one basic rule: that man is supreme. There is no higher authority, therefore, justice is man's written word. They are bound by no law or authority that does not originate from themselves. Their popularity and might determines and measures their rights.

Political patriotism has one basic rule: that man is not supreme. He has a higher authority in the divine rules. Justice is the application of the Ten Commandments; morally, ethically and economically. Patriotism safeguards and respects the minorities, as well as the rights of man and the rights of God. "In God We Trust," not "In Man We Trust," is printed on our currency as a symbol of freedom.

Atheism does not recognize or respect patriotism in political activities because patriotism is love of God and country. Patriotism does not recognize atheism, but does respect it because it is the rights of man as developed under the rules of God. One third of the world is controlled by political atheism — no respect for the individual countries and their minority position. Patriotism is the exact opposite. It respects the rights of minorities, even tho it does not agree.

The war between atheism and patriotism will be won by the former, only by default; not because the majority is converted to atheism. Atheism has its largest supporters in their belief that all men are equal; all have the same rights. Rights of man are liberties of man which are obtained by effort, not by gift.

Atheism has many in this battle; those who seek individual power or material gain.

Patriotism has many in this battle; those who speak and seek truth.

Whose side are you on?

Economic Views

Relief for A Strangled Industry

By LAWRENCE FERTIG

In the period before and following World War I a perennial subject of college debating teams was: Should the United States government take over the railroads? The student who argued affirmatively on this subject usually declaimed with great passion.

In those days railroads were considered a dangerous monopoly. Fortunately the rail system was not nationalized by the U.S. government. (After all, the government has had a big enough problem just to deliver the mail efficiently!) Instead, railroads were subjected to severe regulation by a government commission. Altho there has been no monopoly in transportation for over half a century, government officials continued to regulate railroads as if there were. Rails were expected to go into the competitive fray against trucks, barges and pipe lines with the handicap of both hands tied behind their backs. The result of this government mismanagement is now plain for everyone to see. Railroads have been subject to economic strangulations and many have been brought near the point of bankruptcy.

COMPETITION

It is a cause for optimism that this attitude has changed — at least for everyone but a few extremists like Senator Kefauver, who keeps insisting that railroads continue to be severely regulated. President Kennedy in his State of the Union message said, "I believe the way to a more modern, economic choice of national transportation service is thru increased competition and decreased regulation." When a national resource as important as the railroads is about to be resuscitated and added to the wealth - producing, growth - producing factors of the country, the beneficial impact of such a move can hardly be over-estimated. If the Soviets had a rail system one-third as fine as ours, they would propagandize it all over the world. We take our magnificent resources for granted.

Today we have 217,000 miles of rail lines, with 1.6 million freight cars representing a net capital investment of over $27 BILLION. With proper encouragement, railroad capital expenditures which have been declining persistently and last year totalled a little over $640 million could easily be doubled in time.

Undoubtedly, railroads can offer the cheapest long - haul form of transportation for bulk products. Today they haul a ton of freight at the low rate of 1.3 cents. They could cut this by 60 per cent by use of "Big John" freight cars. But until now they have not been permitted to offer this low rate to farms and mines. The Interstate Commerce Commission sets minimum rates which railroads may charge for bulk products while it exempts all water carriers from this regulation. Similarly, trucks are exempted from a minimum rate regulation on agricultural and fishery products which applies to railroads. So railroads are prevented from getting bulk business, which they can very efficiently handle. When competition is restored, as the President suggests, shippers will receive lower rates, the public will be benefited by lower prices, railroads will once again become financially solvent.

A second way that railroads will be helped is by permission for mergers where there is obviously a vast duplicating operation and where efficiency and service can be improved. The Interstate Commerce Commission has already approved a merger of the B&O and C&O. This is assumed to be a forerunner of many other mergers which will make railroads more efficient, more profitable and more capable of contributing to the economic growth of the country.

FEATHERBEDDING

Finally, it looks as tho the railroads will rid themselves of a great part of enormously expensive featherbedding which has been so costly. A 15-member commission appointed by President Kennedy recommended the gradual elimination of 40,000 firemen from freight diesel service. The Court of Appeals approved this decision and recommended that $592 million of featherbedding annually should be eliminated from the industry. Featherbedding has been an important reason why railroads earned the lowest income on their investment of any industry in the United States — less than 2 per cent. They have not been adequately modernized, nor have they contributed their full potential to capital investment.

Bureaucratic over - regulation nearly killed the railroads. There are many signs that they will be saved in the nick of time.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

Freedom Is No Panacea

We have an interesting letter from Paul Donohue which is being reproduced in our Open Parliament section. Like so many, Mr. Donahue wants us to accept the status quo and come up with a winner. The fact is that we don't believe it is possible.

But there are a number of misconceptions under which Mr. Donohue is laboring and we'll do our best to try to show that his view of our position is a distortion of fact.

For example, he seems to have the idea that we are offering a panacea. He mentions Utopian ideas offered by Sir Thomas More, Rousseau, Voltaire and others.

We are quite familiar with the Utopian ideas of More and Rousseau altho we have missed discerning this in the writings of Voltaire.

But the problem is that More's and Rosseau's views are precisely those of Mr. Donohue and not ours. We do not believe in a Utopia nor in a "back to nature" movement. These thinkers offered a concept of society in which want would be abolished and we would all share and share alike. That is precisely what Mr. Donohue is asking for and diametrically contrary to our own view of the matter.

More was a socialist in his book, "Utopia," and Rousseau expressed both socialist and individualist views, the latter suffering because of his preoccupation with the "general will," the importance of "community" and so on.

Mr. Donohue says quite emphatically that we are in error when we contend that the trend toward a welfare state is in itself bad. We do not think we are in error on this point. Those who have offered a panacea such as More and Rousseau, have had a number of years to bring in their Utopian schemes and they have failed and continue to fail dismally.

We do not know where Mr. Donohue gets the idea that we are offering a panacea. We have written repeatedly that we don't agree with such pat solutions as those offered by such political and economic schemers.

Freedom is no panacea. But when freedom does exist, it is always possible to change conditions and better them. The trouble with existing trends is that they are mostly made as a matter of law. And it very, very difficult to get men to realize that passing more laws will not solve their problems nor eliminate the necessity for them to apply themselves personally to the problems.

This, indeed, is the specific fallacy of the welfare state. It is an attempt to eliminate charity by passing laws which forcefully seize the wealth of some to distribute it compulsively to others. We do not like to see charity debauched and besmirched by the intrusion of compulsion. That which is truly charitable must be always voluntary. Charity can only occur in a climate of freedom.

If, as Mr. Donohue asserts, the world is looking to this nation for leadership, what will the peoples of the world conclude when we are plunged into absolute bankruptcy, our properties taken by the state and ourselves made impotent to help even ourselves, let alone others? Is such a procedure leadership?

To lead means to first assume a position of success which is not subject to erosion and compulsion. The inroads against private property and private income made by our own government in recent times are reducing our ability to survive, let alone to lead.

Certainly, there are at least a million crackpot ideas afloat, among them Rousseau's and More's. But we do not think that freedom is a crackpot idea. It was the concept of our founders that we should be a free and independent people. So long as that concept was uppermost in our minds, we grew and flourished.

Mighty Rome took the same pathway toward the welfare state that we are taking. And few in Rome ever thought that Rome could or would fall. But it did.

Incidentally, laissez-faire capitalism did not die. It still persists and our own high standards of living derive from this living body of economic freedom—now sadly impaired, it is true.

You Earn First

Progress does not come from insisting on living beyond your income. Progress comes when you improve yourself and the services you render to others until your income rises.

Freedom Means Freedom

It is truly curious how difficult it is for people to believe precisely what is said. For example, we have often stated, and we believe in understandable language, that we do not believe in forcing our views on anyone. We profess a faith and a belief in freedom. And to be consistent with this faith and belief, we cannot favor any kind of move which would result in having everyone do as we might like them to do.

But the idea persists that we don't mean what we say. Always there seems to be someone around who is certain that if we had the chance we would seize the reins of authority, topple existing institutions and dictate the terms and conditions of society from that moment.

Nothing could be in greater error.

An attorney friend of ours once cornered the writer on this point and we suppose this friend is still somewhat unbelieving, yet we said what we meant and we meant what we said.

It began when our friend turned to us and said:

"All right, you are always talking about freedom. Very well. You want a free society. It sounds great. Now, then, let us suppose that you were the president of the United States. You have all the power in your grasp that accrues to that high office.

"As a matter of fact, let's suppose that you have even more power than that. You have TOTAL power. Now, what would be your first action?"

We responded in full candor. "We would abdicate."

Our friend was both disbelieving and upset.

"But you can't mean that! Here you have the chance of a life-time to put across your ideas all the way across the nation. You can force everyone to live the way you think is best for them. You certainly wouldn't resign."

"But we would," we insisted. "In fact, we couldn't get out of that high office fast enough. As a matter of fact, if events had begun shaping themselves in this direction we would have taken steps before such a dreadful contingency came to pass. We do not want to rule. We believe in freedom."

Our friend confessed to bafflement. "But how can you make everybody free, unless you are willing to assume authority and provide a central plan all can follow?"

"But would it be freedom," we persisted, "if we were planning for everyone? Implicit with the concept of freedom is the recognition that each person must plan for himself. Indeed, this is just the reason many people seem to be afraid of freedom. They well know that they would have to assume full responsibility for themselves and their own actions.

"Lots of folks seem to think that responsibility relates to taking up the burdens of others. But it really means taking up your own burden so that you do not have to be a dependent on others. Lots of people also think that freedom can be provided by others, or put in from the top by force. It can't be. When you try this, altho you may call it freedom, it stops being freedom when it is forced."

We suppose that our attorney friend was having his ideological difficulties with us largely because of the conditioning so common these days. So many are convinced that the only way to get anything done is to use force. But it isn't, really. Whenever force is exployed, altho temporary motion may occur, there is an invariable tendency for a reaction to that force to develop.

But certainly we can never have a free society if any one group of persons dictates from the top. What they dictate might vary, but the fact of dictation is contradictory to freedom.

Bids for a Smile

Do you know that the origin of the expression "to mind one's P's and Q's" came from the fact that a record was kept of the liquor purchases of guests in old English taverns? They tallied the pints and quarts as they were imbibed.

Nation's Press

From Life Lines

The mistaken ideology of communism which flows out of Soviet Russia is threatening to end freedom and to wreck the world.

How and why did Russia get into a position of such power as to cause the international appeasers to come mouthing the words, "Better red than dead?"

History has the answer: It was the United States which gave the communists their chance.

Thirty years ago, the United States rescued Josef Stalin at the depths of communism's failure to make good as a guiding force in Russia. The method of rescue was the extension, on November 17, 1933, of U.S. diplomatic recognition to the Soviet regime.

The recognition reversed a policy followed since the Bolshevik takeover of Russia late in 1917, and gave international respectability to the most ruthless people-oppressor of all times.

We had ample warning from the communist leaders themselves that our original policy of non-recognition was born of wisdom. Lenin, speaking before the World Congress of International Communism in 1922 said:

"The eternal in the Russian revolution is the fact that it is the beginning of the world revolution."

Lenin's second in command, Leon Trotsky, was even more explicit when he said:

"Revolution is coming in Europe as well as in America, systematically, step by step, stubbornly and with gnashing of teeth in both camps. It will be long protracted, cruel and sanguinary."

Our secretary of state remarked wisely at the time:

"There should be no encouragement to those efforts of the Soviet authorities to visit upon other peoples the disasters that have overwhelmed the Russian people."

All these statements were made in 1922. Not long after, on January 21, 1924, Lenin died. His regime was a failure, marked by murder and destruction, with the Russian people sinking from one disaster to another.

Trotsky expected to succeed Lenin in power, but power-seeking has always been a bloody business among the communists, and he was forced aside by his rival, Stalin. This new ruler, like Lenin, was a master at wrecking other people's hopes and aims. Also like Lenin, he was not able to formulate an orderly government of his own.

In the communist manner, he could only kill and destroy. In the winter of 1930, his way of handling rebellious peasants was to exterminate them.

Approximately 12-million Russians were starved to death by order of one man because they objected to giving their cows, pigs, and plots of land to the government.

The government desperately needed prestige. Lacking it within the borders of Soviet Russia, the communists searched elsewhere. So the communists were forever after the United States to open diplomatic and commercial relations with them in hopes of receiving the boost in prestige so essential to their maintenance of power.

Maxim Litvinov, the Soviet foreign minister, was a crafty operator. He promised that Russia would pay its long-standing debts owed to America since Czarist days. He promised that his government would not tolerate any movement to destroy the government of the United States. He made many other similar promises.

In 1933, Litvinov saved his master, Stalin, from civil war and obtained the world prestige which put communism in motion again in every capital of Europe and Asia.

He had planted the most disastrous influence ever to afflict the people of the United States.

We still had not learned our lesson. Communism stayed alive in Russia because of our recognition of the Soviet government.

Thanks to our Lend - Lease program, Josef Stalin managed to separate the United States from $11 billion in war supplies, machinery, transportation equipment, raw materials, foodstuff—anything which would bolster the sagging Russian economy. Stalin was very quick indeed to accept the support of the despised, capitalistic United States.

Thruout the war, the boundless industrial potential of the U. S. helped the communists. In all, 2,600 shiploads of cargo left American ports for Russia, including arms, tanks, trucks, vast amounts of mineral oils, high octane aviation gasoline, thousands of aircraft, and a great number of ships. Also included were machine tools, complete industrial plants, and more than four-million tons of foodstuff.

What Russia was unable to obtain otherwise, she obtained thru espionage. While Lend - Lease planes were piling up in Russia, the communists were stealing our armament secrets and using Lend-Lease planes to transport the stolen wares to develop those stolen secrets.

The United Nations was the vehicle by which Russia gained further diplomatic recognition. In order to be a member of the U.N., all the countries of the non-Axis world were forced to declare war and to recognize the Allied Powers. Russia was an Allied Power.

When World War II ended, the communists held seven per cent of the world's people in slavery. Now they enslave at least 35 per cent of the people of the world, and dominate 25 per cent of the earth's surface. These victories have been won mostly by espionage, by relentless incitement to revolt, and by craftily - planned internal subversion.

To understand all that has happened, one must understand the full extent of the assistance given Soviet Russia during the last days of the war, when Allied forces were deliberately held back so that Russian forces could enter Berlin first.

As a result of being permitted to occupy East Germany, Russia grabbed most of the industrial power of Germany. Whole factories were dismantled and shipped to Russia, altho this was in violation of the agreement among the Allies that all armament factories would be destroyed.

At the Yalta Conference, Stalin asked for and later received about 80 per cent of Germany's industrial might as "reparations."

German scientists who tried desperately during the last days of the war to surrender to the West were refused. The majority were purposely permitted to fall into Soviet hands. This allowed the communists to gain the space development plans worked out by the German scientists. The Germans had developed plans for manned rockets, manned satellites, and space stations.

The United States cannot escape responsibility for turning over Central Europe to the Soviet Union. It cannot escape its part in the betrayal of Nationalist China. And Americans cannot shut their eyes to the fact that the Castro takeover of Cuba was aided and abetted by persons inside our own government.

Today almost 30 years after official U.S. recognition of communist Russia, we are faced with this fact:

Despite the high hopes we held during the time of our positive action in the Cuban crisis, all the communists have to do to achieve final victory over freedom is to continue on the course they have taken in the past.

The United States must adopt a new attitude and employ new tactics.

That is why active participation in the fight to save freedom is the most important course Americans can take today.

By G. BOARDMAN, Ph. D.

About a year ago I received a letter from a young man in Louisiana who begged me to get about the business of finding a great leader who might unite all of the people and lead them out of the socialist swamp into a conservative Utopia. Being a little less than normally patient at the time, I suggested that the young man stir around a little, get off his fat and find his own leader, if he wanted to be a follower.

This brought a rather explosive reaction. "It's easy for you to write about freedom, you and your big Arizona ranch and all that. If you had to work and live in a city, you might feel differently. We have to pay more for a few steaks than you pay for a whole cow. Sure, you can write about freedom when you don't have to worry about eating." The letter went on and on in this vein.

Just a few days before I received that letter I had refused to enter a hospital as a charity patient despite the urging of an M.D. Our big Arizona ranch consists of 2½ acres of undeveloped land on a rough graded road on which the taxes are about $3.00. We are eating up a small, carefully hoarded supply of canned food and had eaten no fresh meat in several months because we could not afford it. We talked about the rabbit feast we would have when my health recovered so we could go hunting. We were hauling about 15 gallons of water a day for cooking, drinking and flushing a toilet once a day. We used about six cups of water a day for bathing and managed to stay tolerably clean.

About the same time, I received a letter from the president of a large corporation who told me he wished he could get rid of his many responsibilities so he could go out tilting at windmills with me. The most famous political cartoonist in the country envied my ability to get away from it all and to take things easy. Another man tried to explain his theory of economics and its tie-in with freedom, that only the very wealthy could afford the luxury of freedom and this went on and on and I am still waiting for a pause in the unthinkingness.

There was also the conservative leader from Chicago who insisted we were trying to create a haven to which conservatives could run for protection and to get away from it all, and he dropped in on us to see what was going on for himself and departed dazed and muttering like a punch - drunk fighter.

Now, a year later, the situation remains unchanged. A great many visitors drop by to see for themselves how we lived thru last summer and the fall and how we're doing this winter because they are sure we have found a pleasant, relaxing formula for freedom. They drop in without bringing water or food and begin trying to argue us out of our way of life. They are startled when we suggest they visit the grocery store to buy a few bottles of soda pop if they want to wash up. They come expecting Utopia and leave shaking their heads, anxious to get back to a big city where the population is piled up and they can feel safe and secure in the mobs.

Yes, we are deeply involved in the fight for freedom but it is our own freedom we are fighting for. Since we are not tyrants, we would not presume to fight for your freedom. We have nothing to sell, nothing to join and no formula to set you free in 36 easy payments. We have never asked anyone to join us or to make our fight his fight. We started fighting for our own freedom more than ten years ago and made our final decisions in this regard when we pulled out of California August 1, 1960. Since that time we've read or listened to a thousand reasons why others continue to equivocate in lethargic dullness as the socialist conglomerate tramples them into their own soil and steals them blind: "Some day," they say, "when we can find ways and means to become safe and secure and comfortable, we will quit playing footsie with the thieves and tyrants who now enslave us."

I do not argue with those who prefer slavery to freedom. I do, however, suggest that we have no magical formula for them and that we seek none. Each individual must decide for himself how much freedom is worth.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Question Box

Question No. 162, "What does an underdeveloped country really mean?"

When we speak of an underdeveloped country it really means that there is a scarcity of capital. There is a scarcity of capital because property has not been respected, because the government has interfered with people keeping what they have produced.

Of course, when capital is not respected or the public does not believe that private property is good, and thus wants the government to take from one to benefit another, that country doesn't get capital, either locally or from abroad. Capital usually goes where it is safe and has the best chance to be of service, thus making a gain.

An underdeveloped country really means a country that has a lack of capital, and lack of capital means lack of morality, because morality or ethics or justice come before capital accumulation.

We will attempt to answer any question pertaining to the means used to improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth. The means, of course, predetermine the results.

'HARD FACTS'

To the Editor:

I cannot dismiss lightly the thoughts expressed in the editorials of the Gazette Telegraph. Some of the world's greatest minds have dwelled long on the Utopian ideas expounded by Sir Thomas More, Rousseau, Voltaire and others of equal genius. However, there has never been a practical solution to the question of government which enables the polygonal human nature to fit into the neatly patterned form laid out by the idealist.

Perhaps the theories you advocate would benefit mankind, but I, along with many of my countrymen, am aware enough of the world as it is today to realize that it would mean the end of the United States, and selfish enough to want my sons to grow to manhood.

The United States, during the last 50 years, has assumed the role of world leadership. We enjoy freedom such as is found in no other country in the world; have the highest standards of living; and have every right to be proud of our accomplishments. But with these benefits, we also bear a responsibility. The world now looks to us for leadership and help. We cannot ignore it. Neither can we ignore those among us, the aged, the uneducated, the poor and the sick who must be aided if we are to progress. These are hard facts! Another is that the political trend in the world today is toward the welfare state.

Where you fail in your reasoning is to assume that the trend toward the welfare state is in itself bad. This is not true. In fulfilling our responsibilities we must restrict some of our freedom, but we must differentiate between what is merely annoying and what is basic. This, sir, is what you fail miserably to do. You have, altho you appear not to realize it, a sacred trust to inform the people of events and to attempt to guide their reactions toward that which will strengthen our nation and mankind.

I am not trying to imply that our government is perfect, but your panacea will solve nothing. Certainly there is injustice and imperfection in our school system, but why can't you spend half the time, energy and intellect on constructive criticism that you spend on laissez-faire capitalism which died a natural death in the nineteenth century? All of the areas you have brushed in your editorials are national problems which cry for intelligent solutions. All I have seen in your editorials are facetious answers.

Even if there are $1,000,000 crackpot ideas to sift thru, would not one workable solution among them be worth the trouble?

EXTREMES

To the Editor:

If an isolationist is one who ignores international affairs, then an internationalist is one who ignores national affairs.

Between these two extremists, what do you call the American who believes in one God, His one universe, His one world, this nation under Him?

PEACE CORPS

To the Editor:

I recently read that Congressman Victor Wickersham was calling for an investigation of the Peace Corps because one of their recruiters was being paid $75 a day. I feel this investigation is an excellent idea.

There was a write-up in our local paper about a young man who had returned after a six month stint of training Peace Corps volunteers in Puerto Rico. He taught 700 volunteers the tricks of rock climbing and for this instruction in rock climbing he earned $130 weekly.

It was a lengthy article, but at one point he says, "Rock climbing in itself is of little use to Peace Corps volunteers, it is intended to show the trainee that he can do something if he really wants to." I wonder how much we taxpayers pay on a national basis for all of this "necessary" instruction!

He also said visitors from Washington, D.C., are quite common at the Puerto Rican camps — he met Ted Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Sargent Shriver, and Margaret Chase Smith. I wonder how much we taxpayers pay for this travel.

I also remember Fulton Lewis' broadcast in which he described the behavior of the volunteers in this camp. It was quite shocking. Then I read where the University of New Mexico student senate has asked that the Peace Corps trainees be housed away from the regular students because of the trainees' past behavior.

As over-taxed taxpayers more of us should let our congressmen know that we resent underwriting of this type of operation. Especially now that the director of the Peace Corps, Sargent Shriver, intends to ask Congress to authorize the strength of the corps to 13,000. I wonder how many additional $130 weekly instructors this increase in corps strength would involve.

THIRD WORLD WAR

To the Editor:

Fantastic as it may seem, the visit to Denver on February 27, of 16 Russian "religious leaders", is an affront to the dignity and intelligence of every man who lives by the divine rules of God.

Dr. Fredrick Brown Harris, Chaplain of the United States Senate, quoted in "The Sunday Star," Oct. 8, 1961, from publications of the Russian Orthodox Church, their attitude toward America. The following is a direct quote from the leaders of the "Russian Church":

"Capitalistic America, the trans-Atlantic octopus, is trying to fasten its greedy tentacles around the whole globe. The resurrected Babylon is trying to seduce the people of the world while pushing them toward war. The freedom of the western democrats is but liberty to rob, coerce and slaughter. They are merchants in human blood, sitting on a bag of gold, ready to exterminate all people who have the nerve to protest."

May God have mercy on The National Council of Churches who co-exist with those who say, "Our church (Russian) calls upon all its faithful children, honestly, to submit to the regime (Communism) in all things".

The ministers in Russia, who rebelled against atheism, gave their lives; just a few escaped to tell the true story behind the iron curtain. Our statesmen, as well as our church leaders, must understand the Third World War, now in what many call its final stages.

It is not a war of man-made machines or weapons, but a war that will end in complete domination of all men, by a few, or that man will determine his own destiny.

This war is between political atheism and political patriotism. In the former, liberty is a gift in the latter, liberty is a reward for ethical effort. Flowery orators of today make use of the English language to control public opinions. If we are placed in a position where the majority of the opinion molders are in the former category, we are convinced. So, we accept this concept, which is atheism. This is one of the basic evils of a democracy or a popular government. The trust that we place in men must come from a higher source of authority than man. Men of wisdom have warned and taken many precautions in safeguarding the inherent evils that develop in popular concepts of government rule.

Political atheism has one basic rule: that man is supreme. There is no higher authority, therefore, justice is man's written word. They are bound by no law or authority that does not originate from themselves. Their popularity and might determines and measures their rights.

Political patriotism has one basic rule: that man is not supreme. He has a higher authority in the divine rules. Justice is the application of the Ten Commandments; morally, ethically and economically. Patriotism safeguards and respects the minorities, as well as the rights of man and the rights of God. "In God We Trust," not "In Man We Trust," is printed on our currency as a symbol of freedom.

Atheism does not recognize or respect patriotism in political activities because patriotism is love of God and country. Patriotism does not recognize atheism, but does respect it because it is the rights of man as developed under the rules of God. One third of the world is controlled by political atheism — no respect for the individual countries and their minority position. Patriotism is the exact opposite. It respects the rights of minorities, even tho it does not agree.

The war between atheism and patriotism will be won by the former, only by default; not because the majority is converted to atheism. Atheism has its largest supporters in their belief that all men are equal; all have the same rights. Rights of man are liberties of man which are obtained by effort, not by gift.

Atheism has many in this battle; those who seek individual power or material gain.

Patriotism has many in this battle; those who speak and seek truth.

Whose side are you on?

Economic Views

Relief for A Strangled Industry

By LAWRENCE FERTIG

In the period before and following World War I a perennial subject of college debating teams was: Should the United States government take over the railroads? The student who argued affirmatively on this subject usually declaimed with great passion.

In those days railroads were considered a dangerous monopoly. Fortunately the rail system was not nationalized by the U.S. government. (After all, the government has had a big enough problem just to deliver the mail efficiently!) Instead, railroads were subjected to severe regulation by a government commission. Altho there has been no monopoly in transportation for over half a century, government officials continued to regulate railroads as if there were. Rails were expected to go into the competitive fray against trucks, barges and pipe lines with the handicap of both hands tied behind their backs. The result of this government mismanagement is now plain for everyone to see. Railroads have been subject to economic strangulations and many have been brought near the point of bankruptcy.

COMPETITION

It is a cause for optimism that this attitude has changed — at least for everyone but a few extremists like Senator Kefauver who keeps insisting that railroads continue to be severely regulated. President Kennedy in his State of the Union message said, "I believe the way to a more modern, economic choice of national transportation service is thru increased competition and decreased regulation." When a national resource as important as the railroads is about to be resuscitated and added to the wealth - producing, growth - producing factors of the country, the beneficial impact of such a move can hardly be over-estimated. If the Soviets had a rail system one-third as fine as ours, they would propagandize it all over the world. We take our magnificent resources for granted.

Today we have 217,000 miles of rail lines, with 1.6 million freight cars representing a net capital investment of over $27 BILLION. With proper encouragement, railroad capital expenditures which have been declining persistently and last year totalled a little over $640 million could easily be doubled in tifne.

Undoubtedly, railroads can offer the cheapest long - haul form of transportation for bulk products. Today they haul a ton of freight at the low rate of 1.3 cents. They could cut this by 60 per cent by use of "Big John" freight cars. But until now they have not been permitted to offer this low rate to farms and mines. The Interstate Commerce Commission sets minimum rates which railroads may charge for bulk products while it exempts all water carriers from this regulation. Similarly, trucks are exempted from a minimum rate regulation on agricultural and fishery products which applies to railroads. So railroads are prevented from getting bulk business which they can very efficiently handle. When competition is restored, as the President suggests, shippers will receive lower rates, the public will be benefited by lower prices, railroads will once again become financially solvent.

A second way that railroads will be helped is by permission for mergers where there is obviously a vast duplicating operation and where efficiency and service can be improved. The Interstate Commerce Commission has already approved a merger of the B&O and C&O. This is assumed to be a forerunner of many other mergers which will make railroads more efficient, more profitable and more capable of contributing to the economic growth of the country.

FEATHERBEDDING

Finally, it looks as tho the railroads will rid themselves of a great part of enormously expensive featherbedding which has been so costly. A 15-member commission appointed by President Kennedy recommended the gradual elimination of 40,000 firemen from freight diesel service. The Court of Appeals approved this decision and recommended that $592 million of featherbedding annually should be eliminated from the industry. Featherbedding has been an important reason why railroads earned the lowest income on their investment of any industry in the United States — less than 2 per cent. They have not been adequately modernized, nor have they contributed their full potential to capital investment.

Bureaucratic over - regulation nearly killed the railroads. There are many signs that they will be saved in the nick of time.

AND THE WORLD MOVES ON

Where did the earth come from? What was the origin and how long is it likely to be here? What has the earth experienced in the remote past? All are natural questions but all sorts of disturbances are taking place and man must struggle for existence. The fight against disease has won to a certain degree. Some diseases have been conquered, that is a remedy has been discovered to cure or alleviate distress. Great improvements and advancements in surgery has been accomplished yet people die every day. There have been wonderful inventions and improvements over the old way to make life easier and we marvel at it all, yet uncontrollable disasters take place every day. They reap a harvest of human lives that is appalling. Disturbances of the earth are constantly going on. The earth quakes and rocks slip. Many times no harm is done and again it may cause a terrible disaster. Winds are in constant motion. Hurricanes, cyclones, and other violent atmospheric disturbances take place, causing great loss of life and property.

All of our great scientific advancement cannot avert them. Floods come and we stand helpless. We try to rescue the people who are drowning and in danger but there is no power that can stop the rain or check the rising water. Fire strikes the city or town. We have wonderful fire fighting equipment and fight it in desperation but in spite of it, there is great loss of life and property. Explosions come to our great industrial plants. We scarcely know just what could have caused it for they were so sure that everything was perfect incase of an explosion or fire. It comes without warning, a large magnificent structure goes to its destruction and people stand helpless and see the leaping burst of flames and the dark surging smoke. All that remains is a heap of charred and blackened timbers and twisted iron and steel and human lives buried underneath. Why wasn't something done to prevent it? It was beyond human power.

With all the terrible catastrophes that take place in the world, the world moves on. The sun comes up in its usual glory and goes down in flaming splendor as tho nothing ever happened. The beauty of the world continues. The mountains, plains, and hills are all bathed in their usual radiance. The flowers and trees continue to show their beauty. The stars and moon shine forth in splendor. How glorious is this world in its action - the rustle of the wind, the patter of rain, the falling snow, day different from night, and summer different from winter! In the midst of all this, yet there is terror in the storm and flood. Have you ever walked over an area where some disaster struck several years ago and notice the plant life starting to grow? Little trees are starting to grow, over the torn earth, grass and flowers trying to blot out the ruins. It is said that in the ruins of Hiroshima, Japan, where the atomic bomb struck, beautiful flowers were seen creeping up thru the cracks of the debris in a short time. Nature has a way of trying to cover up the marred places of this earth. We often see beautiful wild flowers growing on the mine dumps in Cripple Creek and other old dumps in other places.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever and its lovliness increases. It will never pass into nothingness but will keep a place in minds and hearts of people as long as they live. We see it in the rolling clouds and placid beech, in feathery snow, in the fields, shadow and sunshine, rivers and seas with rugged cliffs. The world moves on in all its wonder, grandeur and beauty.

Stalin's Prison Camps Revealed

MOSCOW (UPI) — It took almost 10 years after the death of Josef Stalin before knowledge of life in a Stalin labor camp was brought directly and forcefully home to the Soviet people.

Never before had conditions in Siberia been published in such detail as they were in a short novel, "One Day In The Life Of Ivan Denisovich."

"One Day's" first appearance in a literary magazine last fall caused the publication "Novy Mir" to disappear from bookshops, so eagerly did Russians gobble up copies.

The story, subsequently published in the west, tells of prisoners forced to undress in minus-40 degree weather and lug back-breaking hour on thin soups.

The author of "One Day," Alexander Solzhenytsin, was a virtually unknown mathematics teacher before his book electrified the Soviet Union — both for its Stalin era revelations and highly praised literary style.

BANDIT BUNGLES JOB

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI)—A bumbling bandit robbed the First Trust and Savings Bank Friday, dropped $650 of the loot when his getaway car failed to start and was nearly run down as he crossed a street on foot.

Police held an unidentified suspect for questioning.

CC Announces Tuition Increase For September

Colorado College today announced it will increase tuition by $50 a semester next September. The cost of room and board will remain the same.

The announcement came from President Louis T. Benezet, who said the "increase will provide for salary raises, sabbatical leaves, continuance of the winter symposium, additional faculty, library collection additions, and scholarship aid to students who show financial hardship."

The measure was approved by the college's board of trustees at their March meeting. They also approved a $25 a semester fee to help meet the rising cost of student health facilities, student union activities, ice skating and indoor swimming.

The combination of increases will bring tuition and fees to $1,300. Room and board still will be $850. It was the smallest tuition increase in years, college officials recalled.

President Benezet pointed out that nearly one - third of the cost of educating each student at the college is supplied by the college itself from other sources.

"We believe the college program may be approaching a strength where increases will hopefully become necessary only in response to changes in the general cost of living," President Benezet said.

THOUGHTS OF SUMMER

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—It may seem a bit early to think of summer but a band of thieves apparently don't think so.

Allegheny County detectives said burglars broke into a store Friday and stole 20 air conditioners worth $188 each.

Heart Disease Listed As Top Health Problem

Editor's note: The following is one of a series of articles on health submitted by the Society of Colorado Chiropractors.

America's number one helath problem is heart disease. More people die each year of heart trouble than any other cause, including traffic accidents. The death rate is only one part of the tragedy of heart disease, the number of people totally disabled from this condition exceeds even the death toll.

Everyone today is aware of the dangers of heart disease, but one facet of this grave problem has been for the most part neglected. That is, how can we protect ourselves from heart disease?

There is, sad to say, no magic innoculation, no wonderful serum, to protect us from the ravages of heart disease, but there are several things that we can do for ourselves that will provide maximum protection. The rules to follow are simple, logical, and founded on nothing more mysterious than plain common horse sense.

Moderation — in all phases of living. Exercise — to help maintain good muscle tone and promote better circulation. Rest — to allow ample time for rebuilding of tissues damaged by the wear and tear of daily living. Recreation — to help relieve the tensions produced by the stress and strain of modern living. Chiropractic — to maintain and insure proper innovation of the heart muscle.

Moderation is the by —word for longevity, both in man and machine. A very good example of this is the airplane. Today's airplane. Today's airliners are capable of tremendous speed, but the wise pilots always operate their planes well below the top speed possible. This is not to make your trip last longer, but rather it is to reduce wear and tear on the mechanisms of the machine. Of course the extra speed is always there if an emergency should arise.

Our bodies are far more complex than even today's jet engines, and for this reason we should always strive to use our bodies at a safe "cruising speed," except when a true need for maximum effort appears.

This moderation applies to every phase of life, eating, drinking, working, exercise, use of stimulants, any activity that calls for physical or mental exertion. Moderation — the advice of every great mind in history — is the first line of defense.

Exercise is a vital need in good health and is one of the most neglected phases of health protection in our modern world. We never walk when we can ride, we never stand when we can sit. At times it appears that we are didicated to never expending any energy unless it is absolutely necessary.

Exercise, in moderation, is beneficial. We need to use our muscles in order to keep them in condition. When a muscle is not used it becomes soft and flabby, and when this occurs generally we begin to slouch and spread; our bodies lose grace and poise, and more important the muscles cease to give proper assistance to vital functions as circulation and elimination. Lack of exercise is truly one of the serious defects in modern America.

Just as exercise is needed to maintain proper body tone, so too is ample rest required to rebuild and repair the tissues that are damaged and worn thru body activity. When the body is at rest the blood flow is reduced and the heart rate slows down, the walls of the blood vessels relax, lowering the blood pressure and allowing time for the vessel walls to regain their strength and vitality.

All of this tends to reduce wear and tear on the heart muscle and gives the body an opportunity to carry out cellular rejuvenation. Rest then is vital and the best schedule is one that allows 6 to 8 hours sleep at night and two short rest periods, say 15 to 30 minutes during the day.

The human heart is capable of near miracles of endurance, but when given ample rest, it will perform even better.

Nervous tension, and the continued press of anxiety in our daily lives have profound effects on the proper functioning of our hearts. The tremendous pressure of modern living makes recreation vital to a picture of cardiac health.

Recreation should have a place in everyone's daily schedule. Recreation should be varied. Participation sports, spectator sports, movies or TV, reading, music, and creative hobbies should all play a part in our recreation pattern. Plan your recreation so that you get opportunities to use both your mind and your body.

Regular, scientific chiropractic attention is the fifth and most important phase of complete heart care. The heart like every other organ in the body needs a normal nerve supply. The flow of vital nerve impulses from the brain to the heart must at all times be maintained at proper quantity and quality levels, or normal heart function is impossible.

CC Announces Tuition Increase For September

Colorado College today announced it will increase tuition by $50 a semester next September. The cost of room and board will remain the same.

The announcement came from President Louis T. Benezet, who said the "increase will provide for salary raises, sabbatical leaves, continuance of the winter symposium, additional faculty, library collection additions, and scholarship aid to students who show financial hardship."

The measure was approved by the college's board of trustees at their March meeting. They also approved a $25 a semester fee to help meet the rising cost of student health facilities, student union activities, ice skating and indoor swimming.

The combination of increases will bring tuition and fees to $1,300. Room and board still will be $850. It was the smallest tuition increase in years, college officials recalled.

President Benezet pointed out that nearly one - third of the cost of educating each student at the college is supplied by the college itself from other sources.

"We believe the college program may be approaching a strength where increases will hopefully become necessary only in response to changes in the general cost of living," President Benezet said.

THOUGHTS OF SUMMER

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—It may seem a bit early to think of summer but a band of thieves apparently don't think so.

Allegheny County detectives said burglars broke into a store Friday and stole 20 air conditioners worth $188 each.

Girls' State is held at Colorado Women's College during June. Girls from all over Colorado will meet to learn about government and to elect city, county, and state officials. A popular vote will be held the same day as elections to elect two representatives from Colorado to attend Girls' Nation held in Washington D. C. later on in the summer.

Student Day was held Feb. 26 at Manitou High. Students took the responsibilities of the teachers and of the office staff on this day. Some of the teachers were as follows: Karan Witham, Vicki Ireland, Jeanette Best, Glennie Knauss, Lance Huffman, Kathy Marshall, Chuck Graff, Janice Jordan, Don Mattox, Pat Jones, Ken Crabtree, Jim Lee, George Whitt, Paul Swank, Tom Giles, Betsy Norris, and Sherry Bixler. Cathy Hendricks was counselor; Jan Mathes, secretary; Linda Hulsey, librarian; and Ron Geary, janitor. The music was supplied from records with Mike Horton acting as disk jockey. Ping pong tables were set up for those not wishing to dance.

The National Merit Test was administered to most of the juniors Tuesday, March 5. The test took all morning and was given in the auditorium of the high school. Mrs. Cynthela Estes, with the help of the junior English teachers, gave the test.

Some of the seniors went to Colorado College March 2, to take College Boards.

The junior class has started on plans for the annual junior - senior prom. Cheryl Washburn, Kay Shields, Judy Bonke, Billy Schorer, and Lance Huffman are on the committee for finding a place.

The Student Council is sponsoring a night for the students on May 10. Anyone having a suggestion for possible activities for the night is asked to drop his suggestion in the box. Some suggestions are a carnival, dance or a fun night.

Local Industry Ads Set for Top Magazines

The first of a series of national advertising for the promotion of industry in the Pikes Peak region is being run by the Colorado Springs Public Utilities Department, the Chamber of Commerce said recently.

The first advertisement appears in the March issue of Fortune magazine and further advertisements are scheduled to appear in Dunn's Review, Modern Industry and Business Week.

The Fortune advertisement is an invitation from the mayor to industry. The heading "Colorado Wants You and Your Industry" extends a warm invitation from the community to industry to consider all Colorado Springs has to offer. It is a half-page advertisement.

Balloon May Test Atom Detection at Altitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists talked here of shooting lead balloons into space to find out whether a nuclear test ban cheater could hide a high-altitude shot behind such a device.

Pending approval for such elaborate tests, the joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee was told about plans to launch this fall the first of five pairs of tandem spacecraft to start a permanent family of satellites capable of spotting sneak nuclear blasts as far away as the sun.

Dr. Alois W. Schardt, deputy director of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency, testified that the estimated annual operating cost of such a satellite system might fall eventually from $100 million to between $20 million and $30 million.

He said improvements in earth-based systems now assure reliable detection of furtive nuclear blasts as far out as the moon.

Schardt said that until more is learned about satellite detectors, primary reliance will be on the ground systems. They will include direct observation of light from space bursts and trapping diffused light from nitrogen particles on the outer fringe of the atmosphere that would be excited by X-ray pulses from a nuclear burst.

Dr. Herman Hoerlin of the Atomic energy Commission's Los Alamos, N. M., Laboratory said the fluorescent detection method was tried out in last year's high-altitude nuclear shots over the Pacific.

Hoerlin said direct optical observation provides protection against concealment of space explosions by means of X-ray shield such as "lead balloons," because the heavy metal would emit observable light, particularly during nighttime.

JEFFREY M. POSNER

Jeffrey Posner To Receive Scout Badge Today

The Pro Dei et Patria Badge will be awarded Sunday at First Lutheran Church to Jeffrey M. Posner, Cheyenne Mountain High School sophomore, commander of Explorer Squadron 1, and Eagle Scout.

The Rev. Christian J. Thearle, pastor of the church, will present the award during both services in recognition of the significance of the event.

Each church sets its own requirements for Scouting's God and Country Badge. The Lutheran Church requires 150 hours of service to the church, a special work project and a research paper of not less than 800 words, among other requirements.

Jeff qualified for the award by serving as a Scripture reader and acolyte, and by writing a 1400-word study on the history of Lutheran Churches in Colorado Springs. He also serves as youth representative on the church's planning board.

CLOSES BEER HALLS

BLWNTYRE, Nyasaland (UPI) — Prime Minister Dr. Hastings Banda told Parliament last week he is ordering beer halls closed in this African nation because "we want no Al Capones here." He said there had been a sharp increase in the crime rate and added: "If people want to drink they can do so in their own homes."

Age and Sex Affect Hearing Acuity

Marked changes in the hearing of men occur on the average in steps of about 15 years, he said. In women, however, changes are not so marked and the rate of deterioration of hearing is fairly uniform, he said.

Dr. Corso drew his conclusions from a study of 912 persons who had been exposed to a minimum of industrial noise. They ranged in age from 18 to 65 and were in one of six separate age groups, i.e., 18 to 24, 26 to 32, 34 to 40, 43 to 49, 51 to 57 or 59 to 65, he said.

Writing in the current "Archives of Environmental Health", published by the American Medical Association, Dr. Corso said the effects of aging on hearing depend upon frequency, the number of vibrations or cycles in a unit of time.

The greatest losses in men and women in all age groups occur between 4,000 to 6,000 cycles per second, he said. Nine frequencies were used in the study ranging from 250 to 8,000 cycles, he said.

The findings show clearly that, with one exception, when the age factor is held constant, women have better hearing than men, he said. The exception is in the two oldest age groups where women have poorer hearing than men at approximately 1,000 cycles per second.

The greatest effect of aging on men is at 4,000 cycles per second, Dr. Corso said. The decline in hearing seems to occur in distinctive stages, he said. From 26 to 40, there is relatively little change in the hearing sensitivity of men, then there is a marked drop in sensitivity but no further pronounced changes from 43 to 57 but a second major drop occurs in the 59 to 65 age group, he said.

Dr. Corso is professor and director of the department of psychology, St. Louis University.

RUSSIANS IN ALGERIA

ALGIERS (UPI) — The Soviet Embassy disclosed here that about 10 Russians, some of them soldiers, have been in Algeria since last December doing mine clearance work. Their presence was made known after a Russian soldier was killed accidentally during de-mining operations Thursday on the Algerian-Moroccan frontier.

Public Service Hit For Project Report

DENVER (AP) — A Colorado Rural Electric Association official has criticized the Public Service Co. for announcing plans for a $24 million hydro-electric project near Georgetown without first asking state approval.

Howard E. Scott, manager of the association, said in a statement, "The arrogance of monopoly power was demonstrated again this week by R. T. Person," Public Service president.

Scott said Person views the State Public Utilities Commission "As a sometimes thing, handy for defending its overcharges or as a means of trying to deny to others the building right he claims as automatic for his own company, but not necessary to his actions."

"Certainly, the company is to be commended for seeking out a method to use Colorado water for a pumped storage peaking unit," Scott's statement said.

"Some such units are already in operation and we will see many more utilizing the many excellent sites available in Colorado.

"Still, the excellence of the concept should not blind us to the fact that PSC is proceeding here, if news stories are accurate, to undertake a major project without so much as a by-you-leave from the Colorado PUC."

Robert L. Rasmussen AF Enlistee

Audubon Society Conference Set For April

More than 700 citizen defenders of the nation's wildlife, scenic and wilderness resources are expected to attend the Western Conference of the National Audubon Society to be held April 6-9 at Asilomar Beach State Park here. William N. Goodall, society representative and conference coordinator, predicted that most of the Western states will be represented.

Secretary Stewart L. Udall of the U. S. Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., and Carl W. Buchheister of New York City, president of the National Audubon Society, head a list of speakers that will develop the theme, "Our Living Heritage — Going Where?"

An address by Mr. Buchheister will open the discussions Saturday evening, April 6. Secretary Udall will speak at a Monday night session, April 8, on goals for the Nation's public lands, parks and wildlife.

Other nationally-known figures on the program include Dr. A. Knife and Fork Club to Hear Denver Pastor

A Methodist minister who visited 30 countries during 1962 will be the speaker at the dinner meeting to be held by the Knife and Fork Club at the Colorado Springs Country Club at 7 p.m. Friday.

Dr. Frank A. Court, pastor of the 3,500-member Trinity Methodist Church in Denver, logged 30,000 miles last year fulfilling speaking engagements around the globe.

Since the Second World War, Dr. Court has given an average of two weeks a year to the Air Force as a civilian chaplain before religious emphasis groups at U. S. air bases everywhere.

General Nathan Twining, then chief of staff, presented him with the Air Force Honor Citation in July 1955 for "unusual service in spiritual leadership."

A former resident of Nebraska, Dr. Court helped establish the present youth program for that state. From 1953 to 1962 he was director of the youth program for Lincoln, under appointment of the city council.

In December 1955 he was invited by President Eisenhower to study the American school system as a representative of Nebraska.

As a leader of the Nebraska Safety Program, he was instrumental in cutting the state's highway death rate to one of the lowest in the nation.

Dr. Court conducted two radio services on Sunday for 14 years while pastor of St. Paul's Church in Lincoln.

U.S. EXPORTS

U. S. exports in January plunged 47 per cent below the December volume chiefly as a result of the Gulf and Atlantic Coast dock strike, the Census Bureau reported. Earlier this week the agency reported imports dropped 20 per cent in January for a similar reason.

Local Industry Ads Set for Top Magazines

The first of a series of national advertising for the promotion of industry in the Pikes Peak region is being run by the Colorado Springs Public Utilities Department, the Chamber of Commerce said recently.

The first advertisement appears in the March issue of Fortune magazine and further advertisements are scheduled to appear in Dunn's Review, Modern Industry and Business Week.

The Fortune advertisement is an invitation from the mayor to industry. The heading "Colorado Wants You and Your Industry" extends a warm invitation from the community to industry to consider all Colorado Springs has to offer. It is a half-page advertisement.

Balloon May Test Atom Detection at Altitude

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists talked here of shooting lead balloons into space to find out whether a nuclear test ban cheater could hide a high-altitude shot behind such a device.

Pending approval for such elaborate tests, the joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee was told about plans to launch this fall the first of five pairs of tandem spacecraft to start a permanent family of satellites capable of spotting sneak nuclear blasts as far away as the sun.

Dr. Alois W. Schardt, deputy director of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency, testified that the estimated annual operating cost of such a satellite system might fall eventually from $100 million to between $20 million and $30 million.

He said improvements in earth-based systems now assure reliable detection of furtive nuclear blasts as far out as the moon.

Schardt said that until more is learned about satellite detectors, primary reliance will be on the ground systems. They will include direct observation of light from space bursts and trapping diffused light from nitrogen particles on the outer fringe of the atmosphere that would be excited by X-ray pulses from a nuclear burst.

Dr. Herman Hoerlin of the Atomic energy Commission's Los Alamos, N. M., Laboratory said the fluorescent detection method was tried out in last year's high-altitude nuclear shots over the Pacific.

Hoerlin said direct optical observation provides protection against concealment of space explosions by means of X-ray shield such as "lead balloons," because the heavy metal would emit observable light, particularly during nighttime.

Jeffrey Posner To Receive Scout Badge Today

The Pro Dei et Patria Badge will be awarded Sunday at First Lutheran Church to Jeffrey M. Posner, Cheyenne Mountain High School sophomore, commander of Explorer Squadron 1, and Eagle Scout.

The Rev. Christian J. Thearle, pastor of the church, will present the award during both services in recognition of the significance of the event.

Each church sets its own requirements for Scouting's God and Country Badge. The Lutheran Church requires 150 hours of service to the church, a special work project and a research paper of not less than 800 words, among other requirements.

Jeff qualified for the award by serving as a Scripture reader and acolyte, and by writing a 1400-word study on the history of Lutheran Churches in Colorado Springs. He also serves as youth representative on the church's planning board.

CLOSES BEER HALLS

BLWNTYRE, Nyasaland (UPI) — Prime Minister Dr. Hastings Banda told Parliament last week he is ordering beer halls closed in this African nation because "we want no Al Capones here." He said there had been a sharp increase in the crime rate and added: "If people want to drink they can do so in their own homes."

Age and Sex Affect Hearing Acuity

Marked changes in the hearing of men occur on the average in steps of about 15 years, he said. In women, however, changes are not so marked and the rate of deterioration of hearing is fairly uniform, he said.

Dr. Corso drew his conclusions from a study of 912 persons who had been exposed to a minimum of industrial noise. They ranged in age from 18 to 65 and were in one of six separate age groups, i.e., 18 to 24, 26 to 32, 34 to 40, 43 to 49, 51 to 57 or 59 to 65, he said.

Writing in the current "Archives of Environmental Health", published by the American Medical Association, Dr. Corso said the effects of aging on hearing depend upon frequency, the number of vibrations or cycles in a unit of time.

The greatest losses in men and women in all age groups occur between 4,000 to 6,000 cycles per second, he said. Nine frequencies were used in the study ranging from 250 to 8,000 cycles, he said.

The findings show clearly that, with one exception, when the age factor is held constant, women have better hearing than men, he said. The exception is in the two oldest age groups where women have poorer hearing than men at approximately 1,000 cycles per second.

The greatest effect of aging on men is at 4,000 cycles per second, Dr. Corso said. The decline in hearing seems to occur in distinctive stages, he said. From 26 to 40, there is relatively little change in the hearing sensitivity of men, then there is a marked drop in sensitivity but no further pronounced changes from 43 to 57 but a second major drop occurs in the 59 to 65 age group, he said.

Dr. Corso is professor and director of the department of psychology, St. Louis University.

Public Service Hit For Project Report

DENVER (AP) — A Colorado Rural Electric Association official has criticized the Public Service Co. for announcing plans for a $24 million hydro-electric project near Georgetown without first asking state approval.

Howard E. Scott, manager of the association, said in a statement, "The arrogance of monopoly power was demonstrated again this week by R. T. Person," Public Service president.

Scott said Person views the State Public Utilities Commission "As a sometimes thing, handy for defending its overcharges or as a means of trying to deny to others the building right he claims as automatic for his own company, but not necessary to his actions."

"Certainly, the company is to be commended for seeking out a method to use Colorado water for a pumped storage peaking unit," Scott's statement said.

"Some such units are already in operation and we will see many more utilizing the many excellent sites available in Colorado.

"Still, the excellence of the concept should not blind us to the fact that PSC is proceeding here, if news stories are accurate, to undertake a major project without so much as a by-you-leave from the Colorado PUC."

Robert L. Rasmussen AF Enlistee

Kite Flying Can Be Fun or Dangerous

With kite season upon us again, the following safety rules should be observed, according to Howard Pease, electrical advisor for Mountain View Electric Ass'n.

Pease suggests the following rules for safe and sane kiting:

Use only dry cotton or nylon string or cord to control the kite.

Construct or fly kites that are made from non metallic substances or materials.

Don't fly kites in damp or extremely cloudy weather. Lightning bolts or discharges occur in Colorado the year around.

Parents may test string or cord used to control kites by burning a short length with a match, and rubbing the ashes between their fingers. Metallic strands will be found in this manner.

Fly kites away from power and telephone lines.

Should a kite become entangled in a power line, notify the power supplier immediately, so that the kite, string and tails may be removed before becoming damp.

Damp or wet strings or tails dangling from power lines become conductors of electricity and may cause serious injury or death to persons touching them while standing on the ground.

New Procedure Aids in Tumor Diagnosis

Neuroblastoma, one of the most common malignant tumors of childhodod, can now be recognized and treated at an earlier stage because of a new diagnostic porcedure, it was reported today in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

The discovery that the tumor in most patients causes and excess production of the chemical compound known as dopa makes it possible to detect these cases thru urinalysis, Mr. Clyde M. Williams and Melvin Greer, Gainesville, Fla., said.

Previously a conclusive diagnosis depended on a biopsy and by this time the malignancy often has spread to other parts of the body, they said.

The excess dopa is metabolized by the body primarily by two chemical processes, the physicians explained. The end product of these processes are homovanillic acid and vanimandelic acid which are then excreted, they said.

Summarizing available case reports, they said, an elevated VMA excretion has been found in 58 of 75 patients, or 77 per cent, and an elevated HVA excretion has been found in 32 of 43 cases, or 75 per cent. Furthermore, they said, in 42 cases in which both HVA and VMA measurements were taken, 40 patients, or 95 per cent, have had one or both of these acids elevated.

"Simultaneous measurement of HVA and VMA levels . . . provides an effective method for the diagnosis of a majority of these tumors and for following the results of treatment," they concluded.

An accompanying editorial said, "The importance of this diagnostic advance is best appreciated when it is recalled that neuroblastoma ranks just below leukemia in incidence as the most common malignancy of infants and children."

A neuroblastoma grows rapidly and forms a bulky mass in the abdomen. It spreads to other parts of the body early in its development and the outlook for recovery is poor altho surgical removal and x-ray therapy may provide some cures.

State Tourney Playoff Slated for Palmer Gym

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado Springs has one last glance at AAA basketball this winter upcoming Monday night with the announcement Saturday that Pueblo South and Littleton have scheduled a playoff game to decide a state tournament berth, set for the Palmer Gymnasium.

Garry Berry, athletic director for School District 11, made the announcement Saturday after a call from Pueblo officials requesting use of the gymnasium. South was the runner - up in the South Central League while Littleton clinched second place in the Adams - Arapahoe circuit Friday night. A coin flip was won by South, designating the Colts as home team but under state rules the game is to be played on a neutral floor — thus necessitating the switch to Colorado Springs.

Should South win Monday, the Colts will enter the state tournament for the fourth straight year. Trinidad has already clinched the South Central's automatic berth by winning the championship.

Other teams already in the AAA tournament include Aurora and Englewood, co - champions of the Northern League. That circuit, by virtue of having the defending state titleholder, gains two automatic berths. Cherry Creek, Adams - Arapahoe champion, Wheat Ridge's Jefferson County League kingpins; and South Denver, champion of the Denver League, are also already in the tournament.

Thus two berths remain to be decided. South and Littleton will settle one here Monday. The other entry will also come out of a playoff game between Lakewood, second place team in the Jefferson County League, and the runner - up in the Denver League. Manual and East Denver finished in a second place tie in that circuit and were to meet Saturday night at Thomas Jefferson High in Denver with the winner going against Lakewood Monday night at the Wheat Ridge Gymnasium.

Play in all divisions of the state tournament is due to get underway Thursday in Denver. The only local representative will be Cheyenne Mountain of the Pikes Peak League. The Indians and PPL champ Salida will be competing in the AA tourney.

South made the Monday playoff game by nailing down second place in the final SCL standings with a thrill - crammed 81-79 win over Pueblo Central Thursday night in Pueblo. The Colts came from 14 points behind after the hot Wildcats had constructed a big early lead to triumph in the final minute. South still trailed 79-76 with less than 50 seconds left but reserve Lanny Carlson hit one goal and then intercepted a pass and fed Jerry Jackson for a layup that put South ahead for the first time in the game. Ron Schwab added the other point on a late free toss.

Trinidad had clinched the title the night before by beating down stubborn Centennial, 48-33, in Pueblo. The Miners, surprise team of the league during the season, broke the game open in the second half after close warfare for the opening two quarters. Juniors Mike Vecchio and Jim Toupal led the Trinidad attack while Vecchio and Dennis Josi controlled the backboards.

Pre - season favorite Wasson finished out its season a game back of second - place South by dumping Grand Junction, 65-54, on the Western Slope Friday night. The hard - luck Thunderbirds, who lost four league games by a total of nine points, were in command thruout in posting their first victory at Grand Junction in the school's short history. Darrell Greene and Karl Tait, two of the finest players ever produced in the SCL ranks, concluded their careers by combining for 52 of Wasson's 65 points. Greene had 28 to clinch the league scoring crown and Tait added 24 plus picking off 22 rebounds.

Palmer also wound up its schedule by downing Pueblo East, 62-47, in Colorado Springs Friday night. The Terrors built an early lead, hung on thru a miserable third quarter, and then pounded the Eagles with a 25 point final period. Walt Hylton led Palmer scoring with 12 points and Rich Hopkins was tops for East with 20.

Pirates Sneak Into Finals

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — Heralded John O'Connell picked St. Mary's staggering Pirates off the floor in the dying minutes here Saturday night, sparking a furious rally that lifted the Colorado Springs team to a 46-45 victory over smaller Canon City Abbey as the semi - finals of the State Parochial Basketball Tournament unwound before a packed house of 2,500 at Regis College Fieldhouse.

O'Connell fired home seven of his 25 points in the final two minutes as the erratic Pirates scrambled from behind to reach the finals of this tournament for the third consecutive year. Both the consolation finals and third place games are set for this afternoon, clearing the floor for a solo performance by the finalists at 8 p.m. In that one, the Pirates will meet hot - shooting Annunciation which whipped Regis in the other semi-final of Saturday night.

St. Mary's was playing with usual starter Richie Jewett on the bench Saturday. Jewett, who sprained an ankle in Friday's opening round battle with St. Anthony's, will also miss tonight's finals and if his absence is felt as keenly as it was Saturday the Bucs may be at the end of the line. The team's play has been anything but inspired during the first two nights of action and there is no doubt that the tempo will have to pick up this evening if the Pirates entertain any ideas of bringing home their second state championship.

Abbey's small Bears, displaying remarkable poise, gave the Bucs one of the strongest backboard battles the Springs' team has had this season. In addition, the Pirates were missing badly on easy shots around the basket, paving the way for what had the complexion of a startling upset until those final minutes.

Aside from O'Connell's outstanding performance, reserve Mike Shea must come in for a lion's share of the credit. He hit four of six free throws and pulled off six rebounds in the hectic late going as several of the Pirate regulars began to come apart under the strain.

St. Mary's trailed thruout nearly all the the first half. The Pirates jumped to a 2-0 lead on O'Connell's goal immediately after the opening tip but Jim Swift tied the count 15 seconds afterward and then gave Abbey the advantage with a free toss a minute later.

Two more goals pumped the Canon City margin to 7-2 before O'Connell hit a charity toss for St. Mary's and the best the Pirates could do the remainder of the period was a field goal by Steve Rome with 3:32 left.

Abbey held an 11-5 advantage going into the second quarter but the Pirates began to cash in from the free throw line as play resumed and hit eight of nine in the first four minutes of the period. The final two by Jim Gillespie tied the score at 15-15 and O'Connell then gave the team its first lead since the opening minutes with a bucket from underneath.

The Bucs still led at 29-19 with five seconds left but Mickey Elliott fouled Mike Conway and the latter droped two free tosses to send the teams off at halftime at a 21-21 deadlock.

The energetic Bears took up where they had left off in the second half. Swift and Mike Begnaud hit goals within 30 seconds after the opening tip and the Pirates were again faced with a come - from - behind situation. O'Connell suddenly came alive with the first of his game-saving spurts, firing in three quick goals around a Ralph Layman free toss to put the Bucs back on top at 28-27 with 5:44 left.

Abbey immediately regained the lead, tho, as Mike Clement popped a goal and the Bears swiftly raced to a five point margin at 36-31.

A minute into the fourth quarter, O'Connell drilled a shot that finally brought the Pirates even again at 37-37, and Rome followed with a jumper that boosted the Springs team back on top. The deliberate Abbey five refused to wilt, however, as Kim Roterman hit a free toss and Benaud a field goal to send the Bears in front, 40-39.

Abbey managed to stall until 2:10 was left but the Pirates finally recaptured possession and O'Connell launched his game-winning drive. He hit a follow shot from underneath and was fouled. The free throw slid off the rim but John grabbed the rebound and sank the follow shot to boost the Bucs into a 43-40 lead.

The Bears missed on their trip down the floor and O'Connell rebounded. St. Mary's quickly went into a stall that lasted until 45 seconds were left when Gillespie fed O'Connell under the goal and the latter converted a three-point play.

Abbey still created excitement as a free toss and goal moved the Bears within 46-43 with 10 seconds left. They regained possession again with one second to go but Coach Ed Murphy had his team stand to the side of the court while the Bears fired the ball in bounds and dropped in the meaningless basket at the buzzer.

Salida Wins Dist. Meet

INDIAN ROPE TRICK—Seemingly climbing a rope of Salida players, Cheyenne Mountain's Joe Folk (34) tries to score unsuccessfully in Saturday night's final championship game of the Pikes Peak District Basketball Tournament at the City Auditorium. Salida players blocking the Indians' attempt are 6-7 John Lantz (31) and Dick Burleson (15). Both teams will represent the Pikes Peak League in the State Tournament next weekend in Denver. Indians Also Earn Spot In State Cage Playoffs

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

It was difficult to consider that the last encounter in the Pikes Peak League District Tournament at the Colorado Springs City Auditorium Saturday night was anticlimactic; the house was jumping with equal support from both sides.

Basketball spectators squared off in a challenge for top voice cheering their respective teams to victory. The roundball buffs ended in a tie in the support-your-team - department, but it was a different story down on the hardwood floor.

Salida waxed the Indians of Cheyenne Mountain to gain the tourney crown, 49-37, and gained revenge for a Cheyenne defeat during the PPL season.

The Panthers of Harrison rallied in the last five minutes of the consolation contest to slip past Manitou Springs, 33-29.

Next week the PPL champion, Salida, and Cheyenne invade Denver in search of the coveted State Class AA Tournament, scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Coliseum. But it won't be an easy task. La Junta rates a pre-favorite role based on their previous performances this season. It was La Junta that defeated South Central League's Pueblo East in a non-league encounter.

Don Schmidli's Spartans drew the winner of the Las Animas-Pueblo County contest Saturday, while the Indians are faced with highly regarded Brighton — a team that revolves around big and capable Gary Upkeys, a 6-5 carom and scoring specialist.

Academy High beat Brighton earlier in the season, 57-55. Some will say that because Cheyenne defeating the Kadets in the first night of the District Tournament the Indians stand a better-than-average chance of doing the same thing to Brighton.

The Cheyenne squad proved anything can happen Saturday night; they whacked the Kadets the first night and performed brilliantly against Manitou Friday night. Gene Ward's Indians, led by the clutch shooting of reserve Gary Graham and the superb board work of Bill Raines and Sid Reidlehuber in Friday's encounter, made Cheyenne seem unbeatable.

Schmidli's Spartans tasted sweet revenge as the big horses pasted the Cheyenne quintet from the opening gun. Dean Champlin exploded in the first period as the mighty Spartans outscored the Indians two - to - one and continued that pace until the final gun.

The Spartans' ace gunner, David Lantz, sat on the sidelines watching his teammates accomplish something they couldn't do without his valuable services last Feb. 1—beat Cheyenne. The latter team presented Schmidli's team its first defeat of the year on that date as the Cheyenne crew whacked the Spartans, 48-39.

Pardao Captures Second Straight

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Irish-bred Pardao made it two stakes victories in a row Saturday as he won the $115,600 San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

The winner, a handsome 5-year-old chestnut, was sold just Friday by Mrs. C. O. Iselin of Brookfield, N.Y., for a reported $75,000.

Buffs Upset 'Cats; Win NCAA Berth

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Jim Davis and Ken Charlton shot Colorado into a tie for the Big Eight basketball championship and an NCAA tourney berth with an upset 69-56 victory over Kansas State Saturday night.

The two teams finished in a tie with identical 11-3 won-lost records, but Colorado will be the Big Eight representative because the Buffaloes defeated K-State both times in league play. The defending champion Buffs won 70-53 at Boulder Jan. 14.

The Buffs trailed only once, 2-1 in the opening minutes and dismayed a sellout crowd of 12,500 by playing a control game in the late stages. Colorado sank the easy ones against the frantic Wildcats and turned the closing minutes of the game into a rout.

Davis, 6-8 junior pivot, dominated the boards and finished with 17 points. Charlton, 6-6 senior, was ice cold the first half but led the scoring with 20 points, giving him the league scoring crown. Colorado led 35-29 at half time.

The loss also snapped a string of 34 straight home court victories in regular season Big Eight games. Kansas, led by Wilt Chamberlain, beat the Wildcats at Manhattan in the final game of the 1958 season. Kansas beat K-State 84-82 at Manhattan in 1960 in a playoff to enter the NCAA tournament.

Charlton finished with 271 points in 14 conference games. Willie Murrell led K-State with 19 and finished second with 263.

K-State, a favorite in this game, couldn't handle the Buff offense which produced easy layups for Charlton and Davis. Nor could the frigid Wildcats put together any sustained scoring spurts.

K-State tied the score at 25-all with 5:30 left in the first half but fell behind by six at the half. The Wildcats cut the Buff lead to two points, 35-33 after three minutes of the last half but were never closer.

Colorado hit 54 per cent from the field on 29 of 53. K-State made only 31 per cent on 23 of 71 from the field. The Buffs had 48 rebounds, K-State 49. Davis led the way with 15 grabs. Murrell led the losers with nine.

State Tourney Playoff Slated for Palmer Gym

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado Springs has one last glance at AAA basketball this winter upcoming Monday night with the announcement Saturday that Pueblo South and Littleton have scheduled a playoff game to decide a state tournament berth, set for the Palmer Gymnasium.

Garry Berry, athletic director for School District 11, made the announcement Saturday after a call from Pueblo officials requesting use of the gymnasium. South was the runner - up in the South Central League while Littleton clinched second place in the Adams - Arapahoe circuit Friday night. A coin flip was won by South, designating the Colts as home team but under state rules the game is to be played on a neutral floor — thus necessitating the switch to Colorado Springs.

Should South win Monday, the Colts will enter the state tournament for the fourth straight year. Trinidad has already clinched the South Central's automatic berth by winning the championship.

Other teams already in the AAA tournament include Aurora and Englewood, co - champions of the Northern League. That circuit, by virtue of having the defending state titleholder, gains two automatic berths. Cherry Creek, Adams - Arapahoe champion, Wheat Ridge's Jefferson County League kingpins; and South Denver, champion of the Denver League, are also already in the tournament.

Thus two berths remain to be decided. South and Littleton will settle one here Monday. The other entry will also come out of a playoff game between Lakewood, second place team in the Jefferson County League, and the runner - up in the Denver League. Manual and East Denver finished in a second place tie in that circuit and were to meet Saturday night at Thomas Jefferson High in Denver with the winner going against Lakewood Monday night at the Wheat Ridge Gymnasium.

Play in all divisions of the state tournament is due to get underway Thursday in Denver. The only local representative will be Cheyenne Mountain of the Pikes Peak League. The Indians and PPL champ Salida will be competing in the AA tourney.

South made the Monday playoff game by nailing down second place in the final SCL standings with a thrill - crammed 81-79 win over Pueblo Central Thursday night in Pueblo. The Colts came from 14 points behind after the hot Wildcats had constructed a big early lead to triumph in the final minute. South still trailed 79-76 with less than 50 seconds left but reserve Lanny Carlson hit one goal and then intercepted a pass and fed Jerry Jackson for a layup that put South ahead for the first time in the game. Ron Schwab added the other point on a late free toss.

Trinidad had clinched the title the night before by beating down stubborn Centennial, 48-33, in Pueblo. The Miners, surprise team of the league during the season, broke the game open in the second half after close warfare for the opening two quarters. Juniors Mike Vecchio and Jim Toupal led the Trinidad attack while Vecchio and Dennis Jost controlled the backboards.

Pre - season favorite Wasson finished out its season a game back of second - place South by dumping Grand Junction, 65-54, on the Western Slope Friday night. The hard - luck Thunderbirds, who lost four league games by a total of nine points, were in command thruout in posting their first victory at Grand Junction in the school's short history. Darrell Greene and Karl Tait, two of the finest players ever produced in the SCL ranks, concluded their careers by combining for 52 of Wasson's 65 points. Greene had 28 to clinch the league scoring crown and Tait added 24 plus picking off 22 rebounds.

Palmer also wound up its schedule by downing Pueblo East, 62-47, in Colorado Springs Friday night. The Terrors built an early lead, hung on thru a miserable third quarter, and then pounded the Eagles with a 25 point final period. Walt Hylton led Palmer scoring with 12 points and Rich Hopkins was tops for East with 20.

LAVER GETS A POINT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Australia's Rod Laver, 1962 amateur champion in four countries, won his first match on the professional tennis tour of America after three setbacks.

The left - handed Laver beat Chile's Luis Ayala, 8-5, in the Springfield College Field House. Previously on the current tour he bowed twice to Barry MacKay and once to Ken Rosewall, defending pro champion.

Pirates Sneak Into Finals

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — Heralded John O'Connell picked St. Mary's staggering Pirates off the floor in the dying minutes here Saturday night, sparking a furious rally that lifted the Colorado Springs team to a 46-45 victory over smaller Canon City Abbey as the semi - finals of the State Parochial Basketball Tournament unwound before a packed house of 2,500 at Regis College Fieldhouse.

O'Connell fired home seven of his 25 points in the final two minutes as the erratic Pirates scrambled from behind to reach the finals of this tournament for the third consecutive year. Both the consolation finals and third place games are set for this afternoon, clearing the floor for a solo performance by the finalists at 8 p.m. In that one, the Pirates will meet hot - shooting Annunciation which whipped Regis in the other semi-final of Saturday night.

St. Mary's was playing with usual starter Richie Jewett on the bench Saturday. Jewett, who sprained an ankle in Friday's opening round battle with St. Anthony's, will also miss tonight's finals and if his absence is felt as keenly as it was Saturday the Bucs may be at the end of the line. The team's play has been anything but inspired during the first two nights of action and there is no doubt that the tempo will have to pick up this evening if the Pirates entertain any ideas of bringing home their second state championship.

Abbey's small Bears, displaying remarkable poise, gave the Bucs one of the strongest backboard battles the Springs' team has had this season. In addition, the Pirates were missing badly on easy shots around the basket, paving the way for what had the complexion of a startling upset until those final minutes.

Aside from O'Connell's outstanding performance, reserve Mike Shea must come in for a lion's share of the credit. He hit four of six free throws and pulled off six rebounds in the hectic late going as several of the Pirate regulars began to come apart under the strain.

St. Mary's trailed thruout nearly all the the first half. The Pirates jumped to a 2-0 lead on O'Connell's goal immediately after the opening tip but Jim Swift tied the count 15 seconds afterward and then gave Abbey the advantage with a free toss a minute later.

Two more goals pumped the Canon City margin to 7-2 before O'Connell hit a charity toss for St. Mary's and the best the Pirates could do the remainder of the period was a field goal by Steve Rome with 3:32 left.

Abbey held an 11-5 advantage going into the second quarter but the Pirates began to cash in from the free throw line as play resumed and hit eight of nine in the first four minutes of the period. The final two by Jim Gillespie tied the score at 15-15 and O'Connell then gave the team its first lead since the opening minutes with a bucket from underneath.

The Bucs still led at 29-19 with five seconds left but Mickey Elliott fouled Mike Conway and the latter droped two free tosses to send the teams off at half-time at a 21-21 deadlock.

The energetic Bears took up where they had left off in the second half. Swift and Mike Begnaud hit goals within 30 seconds after the opening tip and the Pirates were again faced with a come - from - behind situation. O'Connell suddenly came alive with the first of his game-saving spurts, firing in three quick goals around a Ralph Layman free toss to put the Bucs back on top at 28-27 with 5:44 left.

Abbey immediately regained the lead, tho, as Mike Clement popped a goal and the Bears swiftly raced to a five point margin at 36-31.

A minute into the fourth quarter, O'Connell drilled a shot that finally brought the Pirates even again at 37-37, and Rome followed with a jumper that boosted the Springs team back on top. The deliberate Abbey five refused to wilt, however, as Kim Roterman hit a free toss and Benaud a field goal to send the Bears in front, 40-39.

Abbey managed to stall until 2:10 was left but the Pirates finally recaptured possession and O'Connell launched his game-winning drive. He hit a follow shot from underneath and was fouled. The free throw slid off the rim but John grabbed the rebound and sank the follow shot to boost the Bucs into a 43-40 lead.

The Bears missed on their trip down the floor and O'Connell rebounded. St. Mary's quickly went into a stall that lasted until 45 seconds were left when Gillespie fed O'Connell under the goal and the latter converted a three-point play.

Abbey still created excitement as a free toss and goal moved the Bears within 46-43 with 10 seconds left. They regained possession again with one second to go but Coach Ed Murphy had his team stand to the side of the court while the Bears fired the ball in bounds and dropped in the meaningless basket at the buzzer.

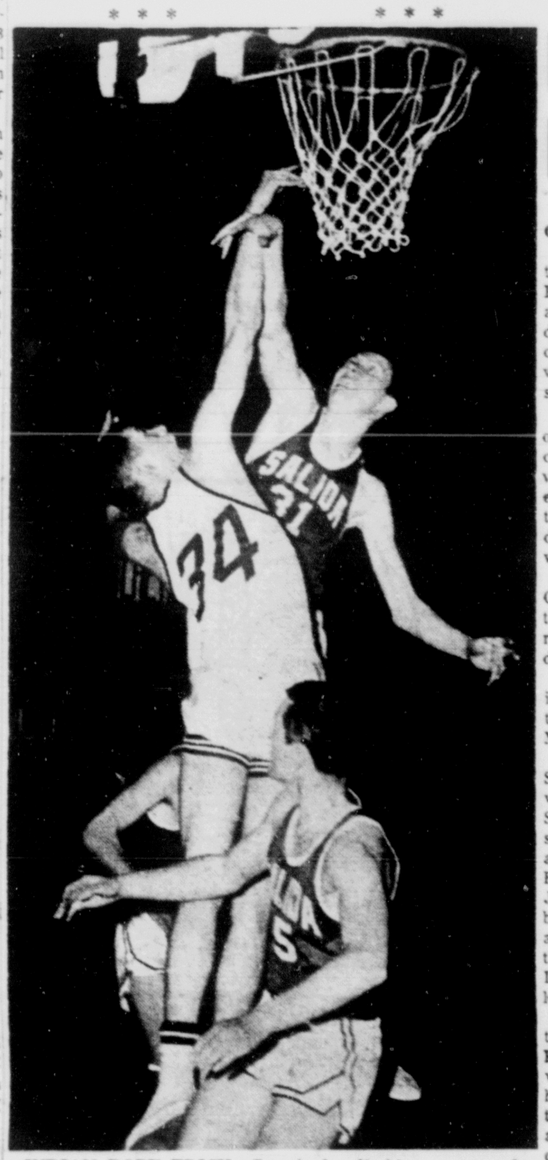
Salida Wins Dist. Meet



INDIAN ROPE TRICK—Seemingly climbing a rope of Salida players, Cheyenne Mountain's Joe Folk (34) tries to score unsuccessfully in Saturday night's final championship game of the Pikes Peak District Basketball Tournament at the City Auditorium. Salida players blocking the Indians' attempt are 6-7 John Lantz (31) and Dick Burleson (15). Both teams will represent the Pikes Peak League in the State Tournament next weekend in Denver. Indians Also Earn Spot In State Cage Playoffs

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

It was difficult to consider that the last encounter in the Pikes Peak League District Tournament at the Colorado Springs City Auditorium Saturday night was anticlimactic; the house was jumping with equal support from both sides.

Basketball spectators squared off in a challenge for top voice cheering their respective teams to victory. The roundball buffs ended in a tie in the support-your-team - department, but it was a different story down on the hardwood floor.

Salida waxed the Indians of Cheyenne Mountain to gain the tourney crown, 49-37, and gained revenge for a Cheyenne defeat during the PPL season.

The Panthers of Harrison rallied in the last five minutes of the consolation contest to slip past Manitou Springs, 33-29.

Next week the PPL champion, Salida, and Cheyenne invade Denver in search of the coveted State Class AA Tournament, scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Coliseum. But it won't be an easy task. La Junta rates a pre-favorite role based on their previous performances this season. It was La Junta that defeated South Central League's Pueblo East in a non-league encounter.

Don Schmidli's Spartans drew the winner of the Las Animas-Pueblo County contest Saturday, while the Indians are faced with highly regarded Brighton — a team that revolves around big and capable Gary Upkeys, a 6-5 carom and scoring specialist.

Academy High beat Brighton earlier in the season, 57-55. Some will say that because Cheyenne defeating the Kadets in the first night of the District Tournament the Indians stand a better-than-average chance of doing the same thing to Brighton.

The Cheyenne squad proved anything can happen Saturday night; they whacked the Kadets the first night and performed brillantly against Manitou Friday night. Gene Ward's Indians, led by the clutch shooting of reserve Gary Graham and the superb board work of Bill Raines and Sid Reidlehuber in Friday's encounter, made Cheyenne seem unbeatable.

Schmidli's Spartans tasted sweet revenge as the big horses pasted the Cheyenne quintet from the opening gun. Dean Champlin exploded in the first period as the mighty Spartans outscored the Indians two - to - one and continued that pace until the final gun.

The Spartans' ace gunner, David Lantz, sat on the sidelines watching his teammates accomplish something they couldn't do without his valuable services last Feb. 1—beat Cheyenne. The latter team presented Schmidli's team its first defeat of the year on that date as the Cheyenne crew whacked the Spartans, 48-39.

Pardao Captures Second Straight

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Irish-bred Pardao made it two stakes victories in a row Saturday as he won the $115,600 San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

The winner, a handsome 5-year-old chestnut, was sold just Friday by Mrs. C. O. Iselin of Brookfield, N.Y., for a reported $75,000.

Buffs Upset 'Cats; Win NCAA Berth

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Jim Davis and Ken Charlton shot Colorado into a tie for the Big Eight basketball championship and an NCAA tourney berth with an upset 69-56 victory over Kansas State Saturday night.

The two teams finished in a tie with identical 11-3 won-lost records, but Colorado will be the Big Eight representative because the Buffaloes defeated K-State both times in league play. The defending champion Buffs won 70-53 at Boulder Jan. 14.

The Buffs trailed only once, 2-1 in the opening minutes and dismayed a sellout crowd of 12,500 by playing a control game in the late stages. Colorado sank the easy ones against the frantic Wildcats and turned the closing minutes of the game into a rout.

Davis, 6-8 junior pivot, dominated the boards and finished with 17 points. Charlton, 6-6 senior, was ice cold the first half but led the scoring with 20 points, giving him the league scoring crown. Colorado led 35-29 at half time.

The loss also snapped a string of 34 straight home court victories in regular season Big Eight games. Kansas, led by Wilt Chamberlain, beat the Wildcats at Manhattan in the final game of the 1958 season. Kansas beat K-State 84-82 at Manhattan in 1960 in a playoff to enter the NCAA tournament.

Charlton finished with 271 points in 14 conference games. Willie Murrell led K-State with 19 and finished second with 263.

K-State, a favorite in this game, couldn't handle the Buff offense which produced easy layups for Charlton and Davis. Nor could the frigid Wildcats put together any sustained scoring spurts.

K-State tied the score at 25-all with 5:30 left in the first half but fell behind by six at the half. The Wildcats cut the Buff lead to two points, 35-33 after three minutes of the last half but were never closer.

Colorado hit 54 per cent from the field on 29 of 53. K-State made only 31 per cent on 23 of 71 from the field. The Buffs had 48 reboulds, K-State 49. Davis led the way with 15 grabs. Murrell led the losers with nine.

Plenty of Scoring Punch Included On '63 All-City Basketball Team

By TOM CUSHMAN

The 1963 Gazette-Telegraph-KRDO All-City Basketball Team selected by sports personel of the local news media and announced this weekend combines tremendous scoring punch in one of the biggest groups of standouts to ever represent this region.

The all-senior unit is led by three repeaters from last year's team, Darrell Greene and Karl Tait of Wasson and John O'Connell of St. Mary's Denver Parochial League champions. New members are Dave Steward of Palmer and Bill Raines of Cheyenne Mountain. Raines was an honorable mention selection a year ago.

Composing the second team are Steve Rome and Mickey Elliott of St. Mary's, Bob Stanley of Wasson, John Julius of Air Academy High, and Walt Hylton of Palmer. Hylton is the only member of either the first or second team who will return next year.

The first unit features two conference scoring champions plus what must certainly be considered the best group of rebounders ever placed on the mythical quintet. Greene, the brilliant record-setting Wasson forward, topped the South Central League in scoring with an average of 20 points per game while Raines led the Pikes Peak League point makers with over 19 per contest.

In addition, Tait finished second to Greene in SCL scoring while O'Connell was sixth in the huge DPL. In addition ,Tait and O'Connel were the top rebounders in their respective circuits while Raines was among the leaders in the PPL.

O'Connell is the largest of the first team, standing 6-7. Raines and Tait are both taped at 6-4, while Steward measures 6-3 and Greene an even 6-0.

In brief, these are the credentials of each:

TAIT - The lithe Wasson forward is widely considered to be one of the finest college prospects to emerge from this area in years. Tait broke the Wasson rebounding record shortly after mid-season and was averaging nearly 16 per game going into Friday's final contest. He also had surpassed the previous school scoring record, altho still trailing teammate Greene. In addition, Tait was considered as the top defensive player in the SCL. His phenominal timing and agility allowed him to block shots continually—on a couple of occasions as many as 20 in a single game.

GREENE—As the other half of Wasson's offensive punch, Greene soared well beyond his own season scoring record and also broke the individual game mark in the process when he totaled 35 against Pueblo Central early in the campaign. The firey Darrell, never popular with the opposition due to his agitating tactics on the floor, brought crowds to their feet continually with his marvelous collection of driving shots and spectacular passing. Even tho standing just six feet, Greene also averaged nearly 10 rebounds per game.

O'CONNELL—"Big John" has probably had more to do with St. Mary's basketball fortunes than any player in the school's history. As a sophomore he was a starter for the Pirates' first state champions. Last year his scoring and rebounding was a major factor in the team's second place finish in both the DPL and the state tourney. This winter O'Connell capped his career by leading the Bucs to their first league championship in history. Altho easily the team's leading scorer, it was his defense and rebounding in crucial games that sparked the Pirates thru the campaign.

STEWARD—The Palmer senior is often described as a player without a great deal of natural ability, but Steward has still been the key in the Terrors' late season successes. Never a top scorer, he still ranked among the best 25 in the SCL and invariable contributes his points during clutch situations. He was also Palmer's most consistent rebounder, turning in several outstanding games in that department. In discussing Steward it came to mind that he never had a spectacular game—but neither did he ever have a bad one.

RAINES—The powerful Cheyenne Mountain postman blossomed as one of the better Pikes Peak players in recent seasons during his senior year. Playing against unusually adept "big men" such as Dave Lantz of Salida and St. Mary's O'Connell, Raines continually brought praise from opposing coaches. He topped the PPL in scoring with a near 20-point average but is also a fine "feeder" for a big man. Raines was also one of the league's best rebounders.

Wheelchair Cage Team Plays Monday

The Colorado Rolling Cowboys of Denver will invade the Colorado Springs Auditorium to take on the Ent AFB Sabres this Monday night. The Cowboys, the only wheelchair basketball team in the Rocky Mountain area, now in their second season of play, are members of the Midwest Conference of the National Wheelchair Basketball Association.

The team is composed of 15 players ranging in age from 12 to 30, all of whom have a physical disability to the lower extremity which prohibits them from playing basketball on an able-bodied team. Included in the disabilities are amputees, paraplegics, post - polio, cerebral palsy and spina bifida.

The National Wheelchair Basketball Association is composed of more than 50 teams, Denver being the most recently organized squad. The Cowboys play such teams as Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and the University of Illinois, in addition to exhibition games against able - bodied teams.

The team is currently enjoying a 7-6 won-loss record and have not been defeated by a so-called "able-bodied" team this season.

Tom Borwn, a 14 - year - old double amputee, is the second high scorer in the Mid-West Conference, averaging 15.2 points per game. Tom is a student, who despite his handicap, is an accomplished musician and even a member of a marching band.

Meryl Branda, special events chairman for the campaign, indicated that the Ent Sabres are working out in wheelchairs to overcome some of their handicaps prior to game time. The contest is slated for 8 p.m. Monday at the City Auditorium.

Tickets for the game are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students, with proceeds going to the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center, an Easter seal affiliate. The tickets may be purchased at Dott's Chicken Shack, Branda Newcomer Insurance, the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center, and at the City Auditorium box office.

Illini, Hoosiers Win Big 10 Games In Season Final

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinoise put down a late Iowa rally for a 73-69 triumph and earned the Big Ten berth in the NCAA basketball championships as Ohio State dropped an 87-85 decision at Indiana in overtime Saturday afternoon.

Illinois and Ohio State both finished with 11-3 records to share the conference championship. The Illini, however, got the NCAA bid because Ohio State represented the conference last year.

Illinois led the Hawkeyes by as many as 15 points, 46-31, just before halftime. However, Iowa whittled its deficit to only one point, 66-65 with 4 minutes 52 seconds left and trailed only 69-67 with little more than two minutes to play.

The Great Football Player

DEDICATED TO COLORADO COLLEGE
— a book in the making —

"You could have cut it with a knife . . ."

By John A. Getts

(Earl Harry (Dutch) Clark, as I know him.)

There has always existed a feeling in the state that nothing could happen in Colorado unless it was 'born' up north. As the years have inscribed the name of their greats into history, however, our northerly neighbors have had to take their hats off to the facts that such famous personalities as the late Damon Runyon, hailed from Pueblo; the late Bob McGraw, of New York Giant baseball fame likewise journeyed forth from the Steel City; Lon Chaney Sr., from Colorado Springs; Everette Marshall, from La Junta, and Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler and Don Wilson came down out of the mountains of Cripple Creek.

In 1928 when Dutch Clark was selected by the Associated Press as the state's first all-American, this feeling was so thick that you could have cut it with a knife.

But Earl Harry 'Dutch' Clark has done more to take the edge off of that feeling than anything that has happened thru the years.

THEY BOOED!
THEN THEY BOWED!

In 1929 the Colorado College Tigers went to Denver to face Denver University at the D. U. Stadium. The game was rough and scoreless most of the way. Meanwhile the northerly fans specialized in jeering and booing the all-American from CC — but, as always, the Flying Dutchman performed in his usual cool, assured style.

As the razzing and scorelessness went on, and due to a misunderstood signal, the ball bounded over the goal line. If D. U. recovered it would have been a touchdown, but the Fleet-footed Dutchman went thru the D. U. defense like Grant took Richmond and when the dust cleared it was Dutch Clark who covered the ball — a touchback netting Denver University 2-points.

BOOING CONTINUED

The booing continued — but not without caution — because the northerners had just had a sample of the all-American calibre of Clark. The cool, assured Dutchman played on and waited his chance. It came when his educated toe booted a drop kick over one of the uprights of the D. U. goal. The referee said it didn't count because it went "right over the goal post."

That statement was a mistake — Dutch protested and the rule book said it counted if it went "right over the goal post."

The booing came to a sudden halt, and when the final score was reported that day it was thus:

DENVER UNIVERSITY 2.
DUTCH CLARK 3.

When the fans cleared the stadium that day it was amid a lot of mumbling which echoed a great respect for the all-American Dutch Clark of Colorado College.

YEARS ROLL BY RESPECT MULTIPLIES

"The National Professional League Title game was played in a snowstorm before 12,000 fans.

"A heavy field, spotted with pools of water, failed to slow the fast offense of the Lions. Early in the first period two passes set the stage for a touchdown and within a few minutes Detroit had another score after a brilliant 40-yard dash by Earl Dutch Clark.

"Christensen intercepted a pass and ran it back 35 yards to near midfield. On the 3rd play with the ball on New York's 60, Clark broke thru the center of the line, reversed his field twice, and ran for a touchdown."

LIONS PLAY ALL-STARS AT DENVER UNIVERSITY

"Denver University Stadium, Jan. 1, 1936 — Detroit's invincible Lion's professional football champions of the nation, went on parade here this afternoon and whipped a scrapping team of National League All-Stars, 33-0, and sent 11,387 shivering fans home convinced that there is nothing in the way of plain and fancy bootball that the Detroiters have not mastered.

"The fans were lured primarily by the opportunity of seeing once again Colorado College's immortal Dutch Clark in action.

"The fans came to see Dutch Clark and he didnt disappoint them. He ripped off several gains; darted over from the two yard line for a touchdown; ran 55-yards to a touchdown and drop kicked one extra point. The play fans were talking about as they filed out of the stadium was the 55-yard run, in the most idolized Dutch Clark fashion, that didn't count.

"The play came in the third quarter after Bernie Masterson, of the Chicago Bears, fired a forward pass.

"The cheers of the roaring, stamping fans turned to groans when the officials motioned the ball back and assessed a clipping penalty against Detroit."

COMMENTS

"The assembled fans in Denver gave Dutch Clark a thunderous ovation when his name was called in the pre - game introduction . . . Dutch is 29 years old and some fans are saying he is about thru with football. But no one can imitate that free-wheeling gallop of his and he tears around like a frisky youngster when he gets hold of the cowhide . . . One sensational play used by the Lions was the Van de Graaff-conceived maneuver which Clark used in Colorado College as the "galloping - gallop." Caddel used it driving wide on an end run behind three interferers, then turning toward his own goal and circling back, passing long and diagonally across the field to a receiver who usually was open—the defense secondary having been pulled over by the perfectly faked end run."

DO YOU SUPPOSE—the scene in the upper right photo reveals the right side of the football stadium at Colorado College in '27, before Dutch Clark made All-American, and the lower photo shows the left side of the stadium on the same day. While football games were begging for spectator crowds, the Tigers were parking 'em in the window sills and up the trees—DO YOU SUPPOSE that even crowds have premonitions. Do you suppose that Tiger Coach W.T. (Bully) Van deGraaff and these spectators had the premonition, as they looked at the teams that day, that a blonde, wavy-haired lad with a vision impairment, and wearing the Tiger No. "7" uniform would emerge as the greatest all-around quarterback in 30 years of football history?

The Cowboys play such teams as Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and the University of Illinois, in addition to exhibition games against able - bodied teams.

The team is currently enjoying a 7-6 won-loss record and have not been defeated by a so-called "able-bodied" team this season.

Tom Borwn, a 14 - year - old double amputee, is the second high scorer in the Mid-West Conference, averaging 15.2 points per game. Tom is a student, who despite his handicap, is an accomplished musician and even a member of a marching band.

Meryl Branda, special events chairman for the campaign, indicated that the Ent Sabres are working out in wheelchairs to overcome some of their handicaps prior to game time. The contest is slated for 8 p.m. Monday at the City Auditorium.

Tickets for the game are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students, with proceeds going to the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center, an Easter seal affiliate. The tickets may be purchased at Dott's Chicken Shack, Branda Newcomer Insurance, the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center, and at the City Auditorium box office.

The Great Football Player

DEDICATED TO COLORADO COLLEGE
— a book in the making —

"You could have cut it with a knife . . ."

By John A. Getts

(Earl Harry (Dutch) Clark, as I know him.)

There has always existed a feeling in the state that nothing could happen in Colorado unless it was 'born' up north. As the years have inscribed the name of their greats into history, however, our northerly neighbors have had to take their hats off to the facts that such famous personalities as the late Damon Runyon, hailed from Pueblo; the late Bob McGraw, of New York Giant baseball fame likewise journeyed forth from the Steel City; Lon Chaney Sr., from Colorado Springs; Everette Marshall, from La Junta, and Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler and Don Wilson came down out of the mountains of Cripple Creek.

In 1928 when Dutch Clark was selected by the Associated Press as the state's first all-American, this feeling was so thick that you could have cut it with a knife.

But Earl Harry 'Dutch' Clark has done more to take the edge off of that feeling than anything that has happened thru the years.

THEY BOOED! THEN THEY BOWED!

In 1929 the Colorado College Tigers went to Denver to face Denver University at the D. U. Stadium. The game was rough and scoreless most of the way. Meanwhile the northerly fans specialized in jeering and booing the all-American from CC — but, as always, the Flying Dutchman performed in his usual cool, assured style.

As the razzing and scorelessness went on, and due to a misunderstood signal, the ball bounded over the goal line. If D. U. recovered it would have been a touchdown, but the Fleet-footed Dutchman went thru the D. U. defense like Grant took Richmond and when the dust cleared it was Dutch Clark who covered the ball — a touchback netting Denver University 2-points.

The booing continued — but not without caution — because the northerners had just had a sample of the all-American calibre of Clark. The cool, assured Dutchman played on and waited his chance. It came when his educated toe booted a drop kick over one of the uprights of the D. U. goal. The referee said it didn't count because it went "right over the goal post."

That statement was a mistake — Dutch protested and the rule book said it counted if it went "right over the goal post."

The booing came to a sudden halt, and when the final score was reported that day it was thus:

DENVER UNIVERSITY 2.
DUTCH CLARK 3.

When the fans cleared the stadium that day it was amid a lot of mumbling which echoed a great respect for the all-American Dutch Clark of Colorado College.

YEARS ROLL BY RESPECT MULTIPLIES

"The National Professional League Title game was played in a snowstorm before 12,000 fans.

"A heavy field, spotted with pools of water, failed to slow the fast offense of the Lions. Early in the first period two passes set the stage for a touchdown and within a few minutes Detroit had another score after a brilliant 40-yard dash by Earl Dutch Clark.

"Christensen intercepted a pass and ran it back 35 yards to near midfield. On the 3rd play with the ball on New York's 60, Clark broke thru the center of the line, reversed his field twice, and ran for a touchdown."

LIONS PLAY ALL-STARS AT DENVER UNIVERSITY

"Denver University Stadium, Jan. 1, 1936 — Detroit's invincible Lion's professional football champions of the nation, went on parade here this afternoon and whipped a scrapping team of National League All-Stars, 33-0, and sent 11,387 shivering fans home convinced that there is nothing in the way of plain and fancy football that the Detroiters have not mastered.

"The fans were lured primarily by the opportunity of seeing once again Colorado College's immortal Dutch Clark in action.

"The fans came to see Dutch Clark and he didnt disappoint them. He ripped off several gains; darted over from the two yard line for a touchdown; ran 55-yards to a touchdown and drop kicked one extra point. The play fans were talking about as they filed out of the stadium was the 55-yard run, in the most idolized Dutch Clark fashion, that didn't count.

"The play came in the third quarter after Bernie Masterson, of the Chicago Bears, fired a forward pass.

"The cheers of the roaring, stamping fans turned to groans when the officials motioned the ball back and assessed a clipping penalty against Detroit."

COMMENTS

"The assembled fans in Denver gave Dutch Clark a thunderous ovation when his name was called in the pre - game introduction . . . Dutch is 29 years old and some fans are saying he is about thru with football. But no one can imitate that free-wheeling gallop of his and he tears around like a frisky youngster when he gets hold of the cowhide . . . One sensational play used by the Lions was the Van de Graaff-conceived maneuver which Clark used in Colorado College as the "galloping - gallop." Caddel used it driving wide on an end run behind three interferers, then turning toward his own goal and circling back, passing long and diagonally across the field to a receiver who usually was open—the defense secondary having been pulled over by the perfectly faked end run."

Tony's First Winner

Close Games Difference To CC Icers This Year

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

This is an age-old adage thruout the sporting world and the team that usually ends up with the blue ribbon is almost always the same one that manages to come out on top in the tight ones.

Actually, this past winter the Colorado College hockey team had a slight edge in the squeakers that were decided by one goal. The Tigers won four such crowd-pleasers while dropping three.

But in the long run it undoubtedly was the three losses by a single tally each that nosed the Bengals out of one of the four top places in the Western Collegiate Hockey Associaton standings and an opportunity to advance into the league playoffs.

Coach Tony Frasca's team ended in a tie for fifth place with Michigan State, but winning a couple of those one goal games could have put them right in the running for post-season honors. Fourth place Minnesota, which lost out in a two-game total-goals series at Denver this past Thursday and Friday, finished with with a 10-7-3 record to CC's 6-10 mark in league action.

The other close ones went to Denver, 6-5, and North Dakota, 7-6. CC, however, beat Michigan State twice by identical 8-7 margins, slipped past Minnesota by 6-5, and in the season's most thrilling contest of them all ended a 22-game drought against Denver by besting the WCHA champs, 6-5.

No matter how close the Tigers came to earning the proverbial "cigar" in the end, this past season had to be considered one of the greatest comeback efforts in the history of the school.

During the previous two years CC compiled an uneviable 34-game losing streak which included all 23 games on the schedule a year ago. With only a handful of additions this season, the Tigers forgot that horrorous record and set the pace of the remainder of the winter by defeating visiting McMaster University of Canada, 9-6, in the opener.

This was certainly an indication of things to come as this edition of CC hockey was one of the highest scoring outfits in history. They ended the season scoring at a clip of 5.1 per game. On the other hand, and this was eventually the downfall to their playoff chances, weaknesses in defense showed thru like lace panties on a windy day. They gave up an average of 4.9 goals to their 23 opponents.

Posting a 6-1 record against non-league opponents, tho, gave the Tigers their first winning season overall since Frasca became coach five years ago. The best previous was 7-13-3 in Tony's first year.

Had it not been for the extra effort from a couple of the defensemen this winter, however, the season would probably have been much more dismal. Faced with having only two regular defensemen, Frasca was forced to convert Danny McGill and Bill Dixon from forward to the blue line corps and both did a good job considering the change.

If one player were to be picked as exemplifying the big switch in attitude and results from last year's winless season to the mild success of this year, it would have to be McGill. The scrappy 160 - pound senior from Camrose, Alberta, went without scoring a goal or assist as a forward in 1961-62, but as a defenseman he came thru with three goals and seven assists. And this was just typical of his hustle all over the ice.

It was the play of the seniors, many of whom had played together for three years, that made the difference. And next year Frasca will have a tough patching job trying to plug the holes left by graduation of 10 regulars.

Heading this list are Don Stouffer and Art Berglund of CC's usual startling line. With a friendly rivalry all year in the scoring race, they ended in a dead heat with each getting 34 points. Also to be lost will be winger Ken Cairns, third in scoring, along with the entire crew on defense including McGill, Dixon, Jim Frolick and Paul Kilbreath, and goalie Pete Doyle.

Fate also had a hand in pushing the Tigers into the second division when another senior, Alex Yankovich, sustained a broken leg on a trip to Minnesota. Yankovich was just coming into his own as a scorer and plunked in seven of his eight goals in the five games previous to the accident. In addition, Chris Batley, potentially the finest player on the squad, was lost to grades at the end of the semester, and defenseman Dave Lewis graduated in the middle of the season. Batley scored three goals and three assists in only two games before his ineligibility.

Next year the Tigers will have to work around a nucleus of only eight varsity players, but this includes four of the top seven scorers from this season's final statistics. These are wingers John Simus, a junior, and sophomores Warren Fordyce, Jeff Sauer and John Simon. All are from the Minneapolis-St. Paul area except Fordyce who is from Daulphin, Manitoba.

If one key game were to be picked from the schedule, it probably would be the 6-5 loss at Minnesota in early February. In that one the Tigers were leading by a seemingly comfortable 5-3 margin with less than five minutes to go on the game, but the Gophers exploded for three goals (two within 1:12) to win the game. Downhearted in the following game, CC lost by 3-1. Victories in these two may have put the Tigers into the first division and the playoffs.

Academy Riders Busy Training For Pentathlon

With their eyes set on the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, the Air Force Academy's first modern pentathlon team is busy training for a possible spot on the United States' team.

The Academy team, organized last year by Department of Athletics, would compete in five demanding and strenuous events on successive days. They are fencing, pistol, swimming, cross-country running, and riding.

In the riding phase, the cadet members of the team were given a tremendous assist recently by Lawrence C. Phipps, Jr. of Littleton. Phipps, who is a master of the fox hounds of the Arapahoe Hunt in Littleton, donated a thoroughbred hunter - jumper to the athletic association, which the cadets have been using in their training.

In addition, members of the riding team have been able to ride with the Arapahoe Hunt during the season. This has been proven to be excellent preparation for the riding phase of the pentathlon competition.

Tony's First Winner

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

This is an age-old adage thruout the sporting world and the team that usually ends up with the blue ribbon is almost always the same one that manages to come out on top in the tight ones.

Actually, this past winter the Colorado College hockey team had a slight edge in the squeakers that were decided by one goal. The Tigers won four such crowd-pleasers while dropping three.

But in the long run it undoubtedly was the three losses by a single tally each that nosed the Bengals out of one of the four top places in the Western Collegiate Hockey Associaton standings and an opportunity to advance into the league playoffs.

Coach Tony Frasca's team ended in a tie for fifth place with Michigan State, but winning a couple of those one - goal games could have put them right in the running for post-season honors. Fourth place Minnesota, which lost out in a two-game total-goals series at Denver this past Thursday and Friday, finished with with a 10-7-3 record to CC's 6-10 mark in league action.

The other close ones went to Denver, 6-5, and North Dakota, 7-6. CC, however, beat Michigan State twice by identical 8-7 margins, slipped past Minnesota by 6-5, and in the season's most thrilling contest of them all ended a 22-game drought against Denver by besting the WCHA champs, 6-5.

No matter how close the Tigers came to earning the proverbial "cigar" in the end, this past season had to be considered one of the greatest comeback efforts in the history of the school.

During the previous two years CC compiled an uneviable 34 game losing streak which included all 23 games on the schedule a year ago. With only a handful of additions this season, the Tigers forgot that horrorous record and set the pace of the remainder of the winter by defeating visiting McMaster University of Canada, 9-6, in the opener.

This was certainly an indication of things to come as this edition of CC hockey was one of the highest scoring outfits in history. They ended the season scoring at a clip of 5.1 per game. On the other hand, and this was eventually the downfall to their playoff chances, weaknesses in defense showed thru like lace panties on a windy day. They gave up an average of 4.9 goals to their 23 opponents.

Posting a 6-1 record against non-league opponents, tho, gave the Tigers their first winning season overall since Frasca became coach five years ago. The best previous was 7-13-3 in Tony's first year.

Had it not been for the extra effort from a couple of the defensemen this winter, however, the season would probably have been much more dismal. Faced with having only two regular defensemen, Frasca was forced to convert Danny McGill and Bill Dixon from forward to the blue line corps and both did a good job considering the change.

If one player were to be picked as exemplifying the big switch in attitude and results from last year's winless season to the mild success of this year, it would have to be McGill. The scrappy 160 - pound senior from Camrose, Alberta, went without scoring a goal or assist as a forward in 1961-62, but as a defenseman he came thru with three goals and seven assists. And this was just typical of his hustle all over the ice.

It was the play of the seniors, many of whom had played together for three years, that made the difference. And next year Frasca will have a tough patching job trying to plug the holes left by graduation of 10 regulars.

Heading this list are Don Stouffer and Art Berglund of CC's usual startling line. With a friendly rivalry all year in the scoring race, they ended in a dead heat with each getting 34 points. Also to be lost will be winger Ken Cairns, third in scoring, along with the entire crew on defense including McGill, Dixon, Jim Frolick and Paul Kilbreath, and goalie Pete Doyle.

Fate also had a hand in pushing the Tigers into the second division when another senior, Alex Yankovich, sustained a broken leg on a trip to Minnesota. Yankovich was just coming into his own as a scorer and plunked in seven of his eight goals in the five games previous to the accident. In addition, Chris Batley, potentially the finest player on the squad, was lost to grades at the end of the semester, and defenseman Dave Lewis graduated in the middle of the season. Batley scored three goals and three assists in only two games before his ineligibility.

Next year the Tigers will have to work around a nucleus of only eight varsity players, but this includes four of the top seven scorers from this season's final statistics. These are wingers John Simus, a junior, and sophomores Warren Fordyce, Jeff Sauer and John Simon. All are from the Minneapolis-St. Paul area except Fordyce who is from Daulphin, Manitoba.

If one key game were to be picked from the schedule, it probably would be the 6-5 loss at Minnesota in early February. In that one the Tigers were leading by a seemingly comfortable 5-3 margin with less than five minutes to go on the game, but the Gophers exploded for three goals (two within 1:12) to win the game. Downhearted in the following game, CC lost by 3-1. Victories in these two may have put the Tigers into the first division and the playoffs.

Academy Riders Busy Training For Pentathlon

With their eyes set on the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, the Air Force Academy's first modern pentathlon team is busy training for a possible spot on the United States' team.

The Academy team, organized last year by Department of Athletics, would compete in five demanding and strenuous events on successive days. They are fencing, pistol, swimming, cross-country running, and riding.

In the riding phase, the cadet members of the team were given a tremendous assist recently by Lawrence C. Phipps, Jr. of Littleton. Phipps, who is a master of the fox hounds of the Arapahoe Hunt in Littleton, donated a thoroughbred hunter - jumper to the athletic association, which the cadets have been using in their training.

In addition, members of the riding team have been able to ride with the Arapahoe Hunt during the season. This has been proven to be excellent preparation for the riding phase of the pentathlon competition.

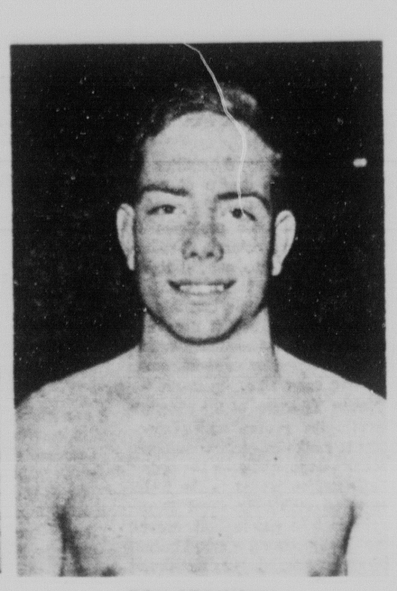
SCOTT BROWN



DON STAINSKY

Brown, Stainsky Leave Marks In State Swimming Ledger

Two local swimmers — Scott Brown of Wasson and Palmer High's Don Stainsky — left their mark in the state meet last weekend, as well as establishing five school and pool records during the season at their respective schools.

Brown set a record in the 50-yard freestyle event last weekend during the Colorado High School Swimming Championships at Adams City. The Thunderbird tanker swam the distance in 23.8 and broke fellow school chum's record of 24 flat, set by Shire in 1961. Brown also won second place in the 100-yard freestyle in 53.9. He is a junior at Wasson.

Stainsky led the Palmer swimmers to 24 points and fifth place in the meet. Wasson tied Cherry Creek for sixth place with 17 points and Academy High finished 10th with four points. Some 17 schools entered the competition.

Stainsky copped the 100 - yard backstroke in 53.6 as well as taking second place in the 200-yard Individual Medley via a 2:22.3 clocking. The Palmer swim star has lots of records to crack in the next two years; he's only a sophomore.

Other swimmers from the local area winning honors were: Harry Seeman won third place in the diving competition; D. Hobbs of Academy High won fifth place in the 100-yard freestyle; R. Hitchens of Academy High copped sixth place in the 100 - yard backstroke; J. Gatlin won fifth place and C. Burton of Wasson won sixth place in the 400-yard freestyle; and Wacker of Wasson won sixth place in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The Washington High School 200-yard medley relay team broke the old record held by Wasson (set last year, 1:53.7) with 1:52.0. Other records that were held by local teams and players were: 50 - yard freestyle broken by Brown, old record — Shire of Wasson in 1961; and 100 - yard Butterfly, old record (1:04.4) set by Ward of Palmer last year, broken by Shubin of Thomas Jefferson (1:01.3).

Czechs Rip U.S. Icers In World's

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—Favored Czechoslovakia and Canada each scored their second straight victories in the 1963 world ice hockey championships Saturday, the Czechs whipping the United States, 10-1, and the Canadians burying East Germany, 11-5, after a sluggish start.

The Yanks, who suffered their second straight loss, never were in the game against the powerful Czchs, who opened a 9-0 lead after two periods. The United States lost to Finland in an opening-round game, 11-3, on Friday.

John Poole of Three River Falls, Minn., who left his sick bed to play, scored the Americans' only goal, but that did not come until early in the third period when the Czechs were merely playing out the game. Pool scored his goal—second in the championships—by converting a goalmouth pass from Marshall Tschida of St. Paul, Minn.

The Americans played without defenseman Jack Kirrane of Brookline, Mass., the captain of the victorious 1960 Olympic team. Kirrane is serving a one-game suspension for swearing at a referee in the United States' opening-game loss to Finland. He returns to action on Monday when the Yanks meet Canada and coach Harry Cleverly of Wellesley, Mass., hopes Kirrane can light a spark under his teammates.

Player Leading In Golf Winnings

Player had won $20,402.50 in official money through the Greater New Orleans Open, PGA President Lou Strong said Saturday.

Close behind Player is Arnold Palmer with $17,925. Palmer was top money winner in 1958, 1960 and 1962. At this time last year, he was in third place.

Young Jack Nicklaus is third on the money list this season with $15,315. He is followed by Bill Casper Jr., at $12,128.33, and Tony Lema with $11,831.36.

Palmer leads in Vardon Trophy standings with an average of 70.483 after 23 officials rounds, and in Ryder Cup points with 824.08 points.

Rounding out the top 10 money winners were Don January, $9,970.03, Jack Burke Jr., $9,540, Bob Rosburg, $9,334.14, Gene Littler, $6,823.33, and Gardner Dickinson, $6,682.

Oklahoma City Whips CSU In NCAA Regional Play

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Guard Gary Hill hit six crucial points in the last minute Saturday night to fuel Oklahoma City into the NCAA regional playoffs with a 70-67 victory over Colorado State.

The 6-foot-4 senior brought the Chiefs from almost certain defeat to a cliff-hanger victory, ending it with a pair of clinching free throws with 30 seconds to play.

Oklahoma City meets the Big Eight champion at Lawrence, Kan., next week. Texas and Texas Western played in the nightcap Saturday night for the other NCAA regional berth.

Colorado State led by outstanding 6-foot-6 Bill Green, jumped to a 42-31 halftime lead on the strength of Green's 14 points.

He followed it with a jump shot 18 seconds later, and then dropped in the two charity tosses that brought an end to the game.

Green, who was the big man in the first half Ram attack, hit five points in the last half before fouling out with 30 seconds to go.

He had 19 points for the night, sharing game scoring honors with OCU's Hill.

Williams Wins Decision Over Billy Daniels

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Towering Cleveland Williams punched and jabbed his way to a 10-round decision over Billy Daniels in a bruising battle of heavyweights in Convention Hall Saturday night.

Williams, weighing 212 and fighting out of Houston Tex., started slowly in the nationally-televised fight but never took a backward step as he whacked Daniels' face with stinging lefts.

Daniels, from Ozone Park, N.Y., weighed 191 for his 20th professional fight, lost ground steadily after his fast beginning, and was tired out at the finish.

Williams, 6-foot-3, was making his 60th ring appearance and his bulk and experience told the story.

Kneece's Course Record 63 Gains Lead at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Little Harold Kneece tied the course record with a 9-under-par 63 and took a four-stroke lead in the third round of the $25,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

It was the first time the 27-year-old tournament regular had ever led after three rounds on the tour. The 5-foot-7½, Aiken, S.C., pro has never won a tournament since he joined the tour in 1960.

Kneece had a 31-32—63 to go with his opening 69-70 for 202, 14 under par. The 63 tied the course record set by Pete Mazur over the par 36-36—72, 6,380-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

Bob Rosburg actually had a 62 in 1959 but he accomplished it under the easier winter rules and it is not considered the competitive course record.

Kneece used only 26 putts for the round, including 12 on the front side. His card included 10 birdies and a bogey, the latter when he missed the green with a 9-iron shot on the third hole.

Four strokes back were Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Gay Brewer Jr., Bob Charles and Jack McGowan.

Yankees, Dodgers Picked to Meet In 1963 World Series

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers — not the San Francisco Giants—will meet in the 1963 World Series if the pre-season odds on the major league baseball pennant races stand up.

The rundown on the clubs in both the American and National leagues is of interest since the annual spring exhibition season opens today with 7 games in Florida, 2 in Arizona and one in California.

The preseason odds as announced Friday in Las Vegas, where betting is legal, make the Yankees odds-on at 2-to-5 to win another AL pennant. In the NL the champion Giants are the second choice at 5-to-2 while the Dodgers, despite losing out in a play-off last season to the Giants, are favored 2-to-1.

Here is a complete rundown listing the finish and record of each club last year and the preseason 1963 odds:

AMERICAN LEAGUE
1. New York 96-66, odds 2-to-5.
2. Minnesota 91-71, 15-1.
3. Los Angeles 86-76, 20-1.
4. Detroit 85-76, 15-1.
5. Chicago 85-77, 25-1.
6. Cleveland 80-82, 25-1.
7. Baltimore 77-85, 20-1.
8. Boston 76-84, 500-1.
9. Kansas City 72-90, 500-1.
10. Washington 60-101, 500-1.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
1. San Francisco 103-62, 5-2.
2. Los Angeles 102-63, 2-1.
3. Cincinnati 98-64, 6-1.
4. Pittsburgh 93-68, 8-1.
5. Milwaukee 86-76, 10-1.
6. St. Louis 84-78, 6-1.
7. Philadelphia 81-80, 50-1.
8. Houston 64-96, 1,000-1.
9. Chicago 59-103, 1,000-1.
10. New York 40-120, 1,000-1.

The Yankees and Dodgers both play today in Florida while the Giants play in Arizona.

Today's other games pair Cincinnati and the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla., Kansas City and Milwaukee at West Palm Beach, the New York Mets and St. Louis at St. Petersburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Clearwater, Detroit and Minnesota at Orlando, Houston and the Los Angeles Angels at Palm Springs, Calif. and Boston and the Chicago Cubs at Mesa, Ariz.

Oklahoma Wins Big 8 Swimming

The Sooners racked up 120 points in the three-day meet.

A resurgent Nebraska squad which finished fourth a year ago grabbed runner-up honors with 100 points, followed by Iowa State with 89, Kansas with 56, Colorado with 47, and Kansas State with 4.

Schuette won his third gold medal Saturday with victory in the gruelling 1,650 freestyle. He outdueled Colorado's Mel McElroy in the final 200 yards and because it's a new event, Schuette's time of 18:47.9 goes into the books, as a new record.

LUXURY CAR: RIDES, RESPONDS AND LOOKS LIKE IT OUGHT TO COST A RANSOM

You're looking at our Impala Super Sport Convertible which, along with its cousin the Sport Coupe, absolutely embarrasses higher priced cars. That special trim and those front bucket seats merely hint at the comforts you find in every Impala SS.

Performance? It's remarkable, an understatement we can afford when there are 7 engines to choose from. One of which is the popular 340-hp Turbo-Fire 409*, a wizard in traffic and a joy on the open road. And others all the way up to 425 hp*.

If you want an extra flourish or two, mull over extra-cost options like floor-shift four-speed manual or Powerglide transmission, Positraction rear axle for better road adhesion, fade-resistant sintered-metallic brake linings, and a tachometer to relay what's cooking up front.

Just before you rush off to your Chevrolet dealer, may we remind you that both Impala Super Sports offer the new Comfortilt steering wheel*. You adjust it to suit your driving style, flick it out of the way for easy entry and exit.

All three Chevrolet series—Biscayne, Bel Air and Impala—deserve a long look. Super Sports demand it.

SS equipment* available on both Impala Convertible and Sport Coupe.

FOR MEN ONLY
By Jack Waymire

Freedom of movement—that's the key concept behind men's sportswear designed for golfing and other active summer sports. A shirt or jacket that binds especially across the back and shoulder area and under the arms, can affect your golf swing just as surely as taking your eye off the ball too soon.

It's only in recent years that large manufacturers have designed a full line of clothing for specific active sports, other than swimming and beach wear. Today the golf enthusiast can have a complete outfit tailored to success on fairway and green. Many of these items are so comfortable that they've become popular for general sports and casual wear as well as golf. The beltless golf slacks are a good example.

We have a complete selection of these easy fitting, stylish Haggar slacks, tailored for comfort and freedom of movement, in easy-care fabrics. Shirts, sweaters and golf jackets are also an essential part of your golfing wardrobe. They come designed with features that permit free and easy movement.

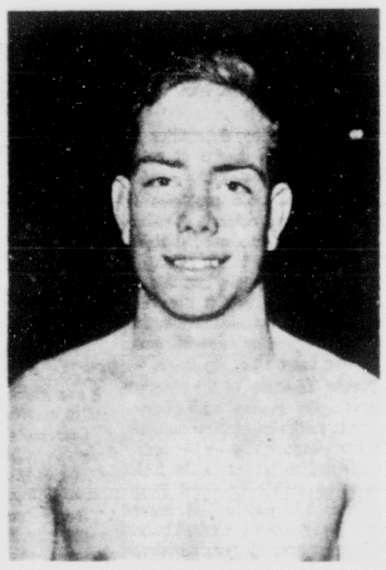
SCOTT BROWN



DON STAINSKY

Brown, Stainsky Leave Marks In State Swimming Ledger

Two local swimmers — Scott Brown of Wasson and Palmer High's Don Stainsky — left their mark in the state meet last weekend, as well as establishing five school and pool records during the season at their respective schools.

Brown set a record in the 50-yard freestyle event last weekend during the Colorado High School Swimming Championships at Adams City. The Thunderbird tanker swam the distance in 23.8 and broke fellow school chum's record of 24 flat, set by Shire in 1961. Brown also won second place in the 100-yard freestyle in 53.9. He is a junior at Wasson.

Stainsky led the Palmer swimmers to 24 points and fifth place in the meet. Wasson tied Cherry Creek for sixth place with 17 points and Academy High finished 10th with four points. Some 17 schools entered the competition.

Stainsky copped the 100 - yard backstroke in 53.6 as well as taking second place in the 200-yard Individual Medley via a 2:22.3 clocking. The Palmer swim star has lots of records to crack in the next two years; he's only a sophomore.

Other swimmers from the local area winning honors were: Harry Seeman won third place in the diving competition; D. Hobbs of Academy High won fifth place in the 100-yard freestyle; R. Hitchens of Academy High copped sixth place in the 100 - yard backstroke; J. Gatlin won fifth place and C. Burton of Wasson won sixth place in the 400-yard freestyle; and Wacker of Wasson won sixth place in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The Washington High School 200-yard medley relay team broke the old record held by Wasson (set last year, 1:53.7) with 1:52.0. Other records that were held by local teams and players were: 50 - yard freestyle broken by Brown, old record — Shire of Wasson in 1961; and 100 - yard Butterfly, old record (1:04.4) set by Ward of Palmer last year, broken by Shubin of Thomas Jefferson (1:01.3).

Czechs Rip U.S. Icers In World's

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—Favored Czechoslovakia and Canada each scored their second straight victories in the 1963 world ice hockey championships Saturday, the Czechs whipping the United States, 10-1, and the Canadians burying East Germany, 11-5, after a sluggish start.

The Yanks, who suffered their second straight loss, never were in the game against the powerful Czchs, who opened a 9-0 lead after two periods. The United States lost to Finland in an opening-round game, 11-3, on Friday.

John Poole of Three River Falls, Minn., who left his sick bed to play, scored the Americans' only goal, but that did not come until early in the third period when the Czechs were merely playing out the game. Pool scored his goal—second in the championships—by converting a goalmouth pass from Marshall Tschida of St. Paul, Minn.

The Americans played without defenseman Jack Kirrane of Brookline, Mass., the captain of the victorious 1960 Olympic team. Kirrane is serving a one-game suspension for swearing at a referee in the United States' opening-game loss to Finland. He returns to action on Monday when the Yanks meet Canada and coach Harry Cleverly of Wellesley, Mass., hopes Kirrane can light a spark under his teammates.

Player Leading In Golf Winnings

Player had won $20,402.50 in official money through the Greater New Orleans Open, PGA President Lou Strong said Saturday.

Close behind Player is Arnold Palmer with $17,925. Palmer was top money winner in 1958, 1960 and 1962. At this time last year, he was in third place.

Young Jack Nicklaus is third on the money list this season with $15,315. He is followed by Bill Casper Jr., at $12,128.33, and Tony Lema with $11,831.36.

Palmer leads in Vardon Trophy standings with an average of 70.483 after 23 officials rounds, and in Ryder Cup points with 824.08 points.

Rounding out the top 10 money winners were Don January, $9,970.03, Jack Burke Jr., $9,540, Bob Rosburg, $9,334.14, Gene Littler, $6,823.33, and Gardner Dickinson, $6,682.

Oklahoma City Whips CSU In NCAA Regional Play

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Guard Gary Hill hit six crucial points in the last minute Saturday night to fuel Oklahoma City into the NCAA regional playoffs with a 70-67 victory over Colorado State.

The 6-foot-4 senior brought the Chiefs from almost certain defeat to a cliff-hanger victory, ending it with a pair of clinching free throws with 30 seconds to play.

Oklahoma City meets the Big Eight champion at Lawrence, Kan., next week. Texas and Texas Western played in the nightcap Saturday night for the other NCAA regional berth.

Colorado State led by outstanding 6-foot-6 Bill Green, jumped to a 42-31 halftime lead on the strength of Green's 14 points.

He followed it with a jump shot 18 seconds later, and then dropped in the two charity tosses that brought an end to the game.

Green, who was the big man in the first half Ram attack, hit five points in the last half before fouling out with 30 seconds to go.

He had 19 points for the night, sharing game scoring honors with OCU's Hill.

Williams Wins Decision Over Billy Daniels

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Towering Cleveland Williams punched and jabbed his way to a 10-round decision over Billy Daniels in a bruising battle of heavyweights in Convention Hall Saturday night.

Williams, weighing 212 and fighting out of Houston Tex., started slowly in the nationally-televised fight but never took a backward step as he whacked Daniels' face with stinging lefts.

Daniels, from Ozone Park, N.Y., weighed 191 for his 20th professional fight, lost ground steadily after his fast beginning, and was tired out at the finish.

Williams, 6-foot-3, was making his 60th ring appearance and his bulk and experience told the story.

Kneece's Course Record 63 Gains Lead at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Little Harold Kneece tied the course record with a 9-under-par 63 and took a four-stroke lead in the third round of the $25,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

It was the first time the 27-year-old tournament regular had ever led after three rounds on the tour. The 5-foot-7½, Aiken, S.C., pro has never won a tournament since he joined the tour in 1960.

Kneece had a 31-32—63 to go with his opening 69-70 for 202, 14 under par. The 63 tied the course record set by Pete Mazur over the par 36-36—72, 6,380-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

Bob Rosburg actually had a 62 in 1959 but he accomplished it under the easier winter rules and it is not considered the competitive course record.

Kneece used only 26 putts for the round, including 12 on the front side. His card included 10 birdies and a bogey, the latter when he missed the green with a 9-iron shot on the third hole.

Four strokes back were Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Gay Brewer Jr., Bob Charles and Jack McGowan.

Yankees, Dodgers Picked to Meet In 1963 World Series

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers — not the San Francisco Giants—will meet in the 1963 World Series if the pre-season odds on the major league baseball pennant races stand up.

The rundown on the clubs in both the American and National leagues is of interest since the annual spring exhibition season opens today with 7 games in Florida, 2 in Arizona and one in California.

The preseason odds as announced Friday in Las Vegas, where betting is legal, make the Yankees odds-on at 2-to-5 to win another AL pennant. In the NL the champion Giants are the second choice at 5-to-2 while the Dodgers, despite losing out in a play-off last season to the Giants, are favored 2-to-1.

Here is a complete rundown listing the finish and record of each club last year and the preseason 1963 odds:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

1. New York 96-66, odds 2-to-5.
2. Minnesota 91-71, 15-1.
3. Los Angeles 86-76, 20-1.
4. Detroit 85-76, 15-1.
5. Chicago 85-77, 25-1.
6. Cleveland 80-82, 25-1.
7. Baltimore 77-85, 20-1.
8. Boston 76-84, 500-1.
9. Kansas City 72-90, 500-1.
10. Washington 60-101, 500-1.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

1. San Francisco 103-62, 5-2.
2. Los Angeles 102-63, 2-1.
3. Cincinnati 98-64, 6-1.
4. Pittsburgh 93-68, 8-1.
5. Milwaukee 86-76, 10-1.
6. St. Louis 84-78, 6-1.
7. Philadelphia 81-80, 50-1.
8. Houston 64-96, 1,000-1.
9. Chicago 59-103, 1,000-1.

The Yankees and Dodgers both play today in Florida while the Giants play in Arizona.

Today's other games pair Cincinnati and the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla., Kansas City and Milwaukee at West Palm Beach, the New York Mets and St. Louis at St. Petersburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Clearwater, Detroit and Minnesota at Orlando, Houston and the Los Angeles Angels at Palm Springs, Calif. and Boston and the Chicago Cubs at Mesa, Ariz.

Oklahoma Wins Big 8 Swimming

The Sooners racked up 120 points in the three-day meet.

A resurgent Nebraska squad which finished fourth a year ago grabbed runner-up honors with 100 points, followed by Iowa State with 89, Kansas with 56, Colorado with 47, and Kansas State with 4.

Schuette won his third gold medal Saturday with victory in the gruelling 1,650 freestyle. He outdueled Colorado's Mel McElroy in the final 200 yards and because it's a new event, Schuette's time of 18:47.9 goes into the books as a new record.

Fountain Youth Ill in Hospital Asks for Mail

"Andy" Aragon of Fountain will be 17, April 5, but he will spend his birthday in the hospital.

He has been there since Jan. 6 and is likely to remain in Colorado General Hospital for a very long time to come. Andy used to go to Fountain High School and he is very lonely in the hospital.

His family visit him as often as they can but Fountain is quite a distance from Denver. So he asked the Gazette Telegraph to tell his friends and even strangers that one of the things he enjoys most is receiving letters and cards.

So will you please write to him? His address is Andrew Aragon, Ward F, Colorado General Hospital, 9th Ave. and Colorado Blvd., Denver.

Medical Scientists Seek X-Ray Pictures in Color

By THE COLORADO MEDICAL SOCIETY

A bright green liver dramatically contrasted against a red background.

Light green lungs, each air passage and sac traced out in darker green, the whole organ standing out against surrounding tissues colored orange.

Color X-ray films such as these are the dream of medical scientists, including a Denver radiologist - engineer team, at work in a half - dozen laboratories scattered across the globe.

The objective of their efforts is not so much to capture natural color as to improve the differentiation between types of tissues, perhaps to make a disease process stand out in brilliant contrast by means of color.

A radiologist working with a conventional X-ray film must make his findings from a study of the differences between various shades of grey. In most cases, his findings can be unequivocally accurate; in others, they may be extremely difficult to arrive at. Color X-ray might give him a sharp contrast between, say, pink and green, or perhaps a full spectrum of color, to aid him in his vital decisions.

There are many difficulties to overcome if the dream of color X-ray is to be realized.

One of the basic problems is that there is no color in X-radiation as there is in natural light. The stream of radiation given off by the X-ray tube is invisible to the human eye, and it does not contain color wavelengths which can be detected by even the most sensitive color film.

X-rays have one of the shortest wavelengths in the entire spectrum of radiating electromagnetic energy — something on the order of 250 million waves to the inch, compared with only about 50,000 to the inch in visible light. Moreover, X-ray contain a broad range of wavelengths, whereas the wavelengths of color are stable. A single pure color has a single wavelength.

Several approaches are being studied in efforts to conquer this primary difficulty. One is a search for a means of producing monochromatic X-ray. That is, X-radiation with a single stable wavelength. This can be accomplished to a limited degree by the use of metal filters through which the radiation is passed in much the same way that a color filter of optical glass is placed in front of a camera lens. This, however, greatly reduces the penetrating power of X-rays, one of their principal advantages.

Another approach is an attempt to find substances or methods which will sort out the varying wavelengths of X-ray until ones can be found which corresponds to the wavelengths of visible color.

Efforts also are being made to utilize the Land theories of color as variations in density rather than a spectrum based on the three primary colors of red, yellow and blue. In optics, it already has been demonstrated that color pictures can be obtained by projecting black and white in varying intensities and densities through red and green filters. Perhaps this finding can be adapted to apply to X-radiation.

There is in addition an intensive and methodical search for chemical substances which will change color or acquire color under radiation. Some already are known which turn brilliant blue under the bombardment of X-ray. But a single color does not meet the need for differentiation which is the objective of color X-ray.

Experiments toward a color X-ray system date back to 1931 in England. Several laboratories in this country now are at work on the problem, including a makeshift one in the home basement of a Denver radiologist. He and a friend, an electronics engineer, work there, beaming their X-rays in various ways through a box filled with flour. (Flour has approximately the same density to X-radiation as human flesh, and opaque objects deposited in the flour — a nail, as an example — show up black on the X-ray film just as a coin swallowed by a small child would show in an X-ray of his tummy.)

Thus far, the Denver researchers have been able to achieve only a muddy suggestion of color on their plates, but their earch continues. Much of their effort is being concentrated on the hope of achieving monochromatic X-radiations.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. Achievement of color X-ray would mean a major advance in scientific medicine. It would greatly aid diagnosis and would be of enormous value in medical education.

2. Color might be employed in many different ways: to indicate opaque or semi - opaque fluid by color as it passes through the body, perhaps to make a whole disease process — cancer, for example — stand out in color contrast from surrounding tissues.

3. There is some reason to hope that color X-ray might be developed to give a stereo effect — greater in - depth perspective. This would have great value in precisely locating disease processes or injuries.

CU Announces New Objectives for Newspaper Week

A new name, a new format and new objectives for the University of Colorado's traditonal Newspaper Week have been announced by Charles T. Duncan, dean of the School of Journalism.

"The Colorado Newspaper Conference" is the new title of the program, which will be held April 26-27 in Boulder for Colorado newspapermen.

Concentration on a single theme and emphasis on individual participation in serious discussion will characterize the conference, Duncan said. It will be essentially a "working session," in which participants will critically examine a subject of common interest in the light of their own experience and their own newspapers' interests and needs.

"There will be lots of talking," Duncan said. "But most of it will be in small groups and little of it will be in the form of prepared and formal speeches."

One major address will be featured at the conference, the annual Crosman Memorial Lecture. This will be an evening address, open to the public.

"The Changing Scene in Local Government" will be the theme for the first conference. Trends, new developments, critical problems and other aspects of local government as a major source of important news will be the concern of the visiting editors.

Informal talks by political scientists and other authorities will be used to stimulate panel discussions and other forms of exchange among the delegates.

The conference will be a 24-hour affair, beginning at noon on Friday and ending with a luncheon the following day. Invitations and additional information will be going out to Colorado Press Association members soon, Duncan said.

Fountain Youth Ill in Hospital Asks for Mail

"Andy" Aragon of Fountain will be 17, April 5, but he will spend his birthday in the hospital.

He has been there since Jan. 6 and is likely to remain in Colorado General Hospital for a very long time to come. Andy used to go to Fountain High School and he is very lonely in the hospital.

His family visit him as often as they can but Fountain is quite a distance from Denver. So he asked the Gazette Telegraph to tell his friends and even strangers that one of the things he enjoys most is receiving letters and cards.

So will you please write to him? His address is Andrew Aragon, Ward F, Colorado General Hospital, 9th Ave. and Colorado Blvd., Denver.

The bidding has proceeded:

Opening lead: King of ♣

While there are few games in which skill is so highly rewarded as in contract bridge, don't ever get the impression that luck does not play a prominent role in the show. This is true even in tournament play albeit in a lesser degree than in rubber bridge. But there is no doubt that Lady Luck is not a lone rider and she requires some assistance from those upon whom she would shower her favors. It is axiomatic that she is more apt to help those who help themselves.

South's opening bid of two hearts is a model of correctness and North's raise meets with our approval. Incidentally, I have observed that many players are in the habit of responding with two no trump on holdings such as North's. With normal trump support and seven points in support of partner, the correct procedure is a single raise. South's jump to six hearts is at least questionable, but he was in a mood to ride his luck. A queen or two in the right place might give him a good play for the hand. Note that, if North's queen happened to be with the spades instead of the diamonds, declarer would have had a reasonable chance. As it was, when the dummy was spread, it looked like the most hopeless of cases.

West had a reasonable enough double, particularly in view of the hit or miss style of bidding which led to the slam contract. The king of clubs was opened and taken by the ace. It was going to take a lot of luck and good management to bring this one in. Declarer led to the king of hearts and ruffed dummy's remaining club. Another trump lead cleared club. Another trump lead cleared that suit and then followed the ace, king, and another spade. Two good breaks showed up at the same time. The spades were three-three and West had to win the trick. There was no good lead he could make. A club lead would permit declarer to ruff in dummy and discard a diamond from his own hand. So West led the jack of diamonds. This was taken by the queen in dummy and the remaining diamond was discarded on dummy's 13th spade.

That was an outstanding bit of good luck, but South should get the credit for an assist.

Beef-Carrot Rolls in Sauce Rank Superb

Lean and flavorful beef round steak no doubt finds a place in your menus quite regularly.

Next time give it a new treatment. Pound the floured and seasoned meat with a meat hammer or the edge of a dull table knife. Then cut the meat in serving pieces and roll each around carrot strips. Bake these Beef and Carrot Rolls with a spicy tomato sauce. "Superb!" will be the comment on the results.

Expert on meat cookery Reba Staggs cautions you not to broil round steak. Being lean and "less-tender," this beef cut should be slowly braised in a covered utensil.

BEEF AND CARROT ROLLS

1 beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic salt
3 medium carrots
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1-3 cup chopped green pepper
1-3 cup chopped onion
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
½ cup water

Combine flour, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper and garlic salt. Pound seasoned flour into steak. Cut into serving - size pieces. Cut carrots in half lengthwise, then cut crosswise. Place 2 carrot strips on each piece of steak. Season carrots with ¼ teaspoon salt. Roll meat as a jelly roll and fasten with wooden picks. Brown meat in lard or dippings. Place meat in a 12 x 8 - inch baking dish. Combine green pepper, onion, cloves, tomato sauce and water. Pour over meat. Cover tightly and bake in a slow over (300 degree F.) 1½ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender. 6 servings.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Too much wax, oil and polish can do as much to dim the beauty of furniture finishes as lack of care, the American Walnut Manufacturers Association says.

After a survey of leading furniture finish manufacturers, the associated recommended these steps in care:

—Wash furniture once or twice with mild soap and water. Excessive water can be harmful so the cloth should be wrung out. Wipe all surfaces with a clean damp cloth, then rub dry.

This soap and water treatment is recognized as the best means of cleaning wood furniture. It removes food and candy smears and many other types of soil not usually affected by the application of another coat of oil, polish or wax, the association said.

—A good paste wax should follow the washing, say most authorities on finishes. The paste wax may involve more work in polishing but the result justifies the effort, they says.

—Some furniture items, or furniture parts, which are subjected to heavy use may require more frequent cleaning and waxing. These include chairs, occasional tables, dining tables and the wood parts of upholstered furniture.

—For low luster or oil-type finishes where a gloss is not desired, clean only with soap and water. These finishes are part of the wood, and are surprisingly durable without wax.

If some waxing is preferred, a liquid especially formulated for these finishes is available.

—Authentic boiled oil finishes are generally identified as such and should be treated only with an occasional application of oil. Instructions are supplied by the furniture manufacturer.

—If wax has been put on accidentally, it must be removed before more oil is applied.

Furniture oils or oil base polishes which produce a shine through a surface oil residue are not recommended because they collect dust and may damage the furniture.

Too frequent use of polishes or waxes will build a film which will reduce the beauty of the finish. That's why, for most pieces, the recommendation is for waxing once or twice a year, preceded by the mild soap and water cleaning.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

In a recent column a woman asked what side of aluminum foil is the right side! Or . . . which side should be placed on the outside and which next to the food.

This question puzzles people.

Actually, it does not matter which side of the aluminum foil is placed outside since both the bright and dull sides of aluminum foil are almost equally reflective.

However, aluminum foil is a very good conductor of heat when in contact with food, and it conducts heat into the food when used to wrap potatoes, chicken, turkey, and many other foods during roasting and baking.

Dear Heloise:

In answer to the ladies who want to know about luncheon sandwiches, other than roast beef and bologna . . . I have the solution to their problem:

My husband likes boiled ham for his lunch . . . so I buy picnic ham, which is often on sale in the markets.

I always look for a good lean one. I press on the butt end of the ham with my thumb and if it feels solid it is lean but if it is soft and mushy then I know it has quite a bit of fat.

I always buy the leanest ham I can find.

I cook this (after removing the rind) by wrapping it well in foil and putting it in a big pot of water and boiling it about two hours or so depending upon the size of the ham.

When finished, I remove it from the kettle and place it on a plate to cool. Then I can slice it as thin or as thick as I like. This luncheon meat will last quite awhile in the refrigerator.

After I slice what I want for that day, I wrap the rest of the ham in a plastic wrap and it stays fresh and moist as the day it was cooked. —Lou

Dear Heloise:

When I make a one-dish dinner and need to make it ahead of time, the pilot light on my stove keeps it nice and warm for me when I place a piece of foil over the top of the casserole. —Mrs. J. H. Beckham

Dear Heloise:

It's time to clean my dish cupboards again but I am not dreading it as much as I used to.

Last fall I put the dishes I seldom use in plastic bags and closed the tops of the bags. I put these in the back on my cupboard shelf. I will not have to wash all of them now. Isn't that wonderful? It not only puts your plastic bags to good use but keeps them out of baby's reach. —Mary Grindad

Dear Mary:

Jolly ho! Your idea is wonderful and . . . so are you! —Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

Instead of putting water into that last bit of ketchup in the bottle which makes it thin and runny . . . simply put the cap on the bottle and prop it upside down overnight!

When you want to use the ketchup, better have something handy to catch it in because it will all slide out easily leaving the bottle as clean as a whistle.

This also goes for hand lotions. You will be astonished at how much lotion you will get by propping an "empty" bottle upside down for a while. —J. Sprattsy

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Move, Man, Move!

DEAR ABBY: I am half out of my mind keeping this inside me, and I need an answer. My wife belongs to a church on the edge of town. I am not a member. We are both in our early 30's and have four children.

Someone picks her up in a car at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and she doesn't get home until noon on Monday. I ask her what kind of church lasts all night and she tells me that they pray in church all day, and afterwards they go to the preacher's house for special prayers and supper. Then they go to someone's house for coffee and donuts. Then someone drives her home. I went along with her story on Sundays, but now she has started to go on Wednesdays. —WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Don't just sit there—get a sitter, or park the kids with friends and go to "church" with your wife next Sunday. Seeing is believing.

DEAR ABBY: I have been unhappy for 37 years because the man I married never gave me a wedding ring. I didn't know I wasn't getting one until the minister asked for the ring. My husband said, "No ring." When people ask why I don't wear a wedding ring I make excuses because I'm ashamed to tell them the truth. Several years ago I gave my husband a man's gold wedding ring, thinking he would then understand how much I wanted one, but he wore it only a few times and never took the hint. Am I wrong to feel cheated?—CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Why "hint"? Perhaps your spouse of 37 years never realized how much his failure to give you a wedding ring has hurt you. Don't suffer in silence any more. Tell him you "want" one.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please give me some information? I have ten dollars riding on your answer and it has to be printed in your column or I can't collect. My friend says that unless a letter is signed, you will not use it in your column. I say that you use letters in your column whether they are signed or not. —BALTIMORON

DEAR BALTIMORON: Congratulations, you have just won ten dollars.

While there are few games in which skill is so highly rewarded as in contract bridge, don't ever get the impression that luck does not play a prominent role in the show. This is true even in tournament play albeit in a lesser degree than in rubber bridge. But there is no doubt that Lady Luck is not a lone rider and she requires some assistance from those upon whom she would shower her favors. It is axiomatic that she is more apt to help those who help themselves.

South's opening bid of two hearts is a model of correctness and North's raise meets with our approval. Incidentally, I have observed that many players are in the habit of responding with two no trump on holdings such as North's. With normal trump support and seven points in support of partner, the correct procedure is a single raise. South's jump to six hearts is at least questionable, but he was in a mood to ride his luck. A queen or two in the right place might give him a good play for the hand. Note that, if North's queen happened to be with the spades instead of the diamonds, declarer would have had a reasonable chance. As it was, when the dummy was spread, it looked like the most hopeless of cases.

West had a reasonable enough double, particularly in view of the hit or miss style of bidding which led to the slam contract. The king of clubs was opened and taken by the ace. It was going to take a lot of luck and good management to bring this one in. Declarer led to the king of hearts and ruffed dummy's remaining club. Another trump lead cleared that suit and then followed the ace, king, and another spade. Two good breaks showed up at the same time. The spades were three-three and West had to win the trick. There was no good lead he could make. A club lead would permit declarer to ruff in dummy and discard a diamond from his own hand. So West led the jack of diamonds. This was taken by the queen in dummy and the remaining diamond was discarded on dummy's 13th spade.

That was an outstanding bit of good luck, but South should get the credit for an assist.

As a salute to Seward's Day being observed March 30 in Alaska, make these sumptuous yet simple "Peach Alaskas." Thoroughly chill a can of cling peach halves. Freeze scoops of vanilla ice cream hard. Prepare a soft meringue. Working quickly, place ice cream in well drained peach halves, seal with a thick layer of meringue and broil until lightly browned.

Beef-Carrot Rolls in Sauce Rank Superb

Lean and flavorful beef round steak no doubt finds a place in your menus quite regularly.

Next time give it a new treatment. Pound the floured and seasoned meat with a meat hammer or the edge of a dull table knife. Then cut the meat in serving pieces and roll each around carrot strips. Bake these Beef and Carrot Rolls with a spicy tomato sauce. "Superb!" will be the comment on the results.

Expert on meat cookery Reba Staggs cautions you not to broil round steak. Being lean and "less-tender," this beef cut should be slowly braised in a covered utensil.

BEEF AND CARROT ROLLS

1 beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon garlic salt
3 medium carrots
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1-3 cup chopped green pepper
1-3 cup chopped onion
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
½ cup water

Combine flour, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper and garlic salt. Pound seasoned flour into steak. Cut into serving - size pieces. Cut carrots in half lengthwise, then cut crosswise. Place 2 carrot strips on each piece of steak. Season carrots with ¼ teaspoon salt. Roll meat as a jelly roll and fasten with wooden picks. Brown meat in lard or dippings. Place meat in a 12 x 8 - inch baking dish. Combine green pepper, onion, cloves, tomato sauce and water. Pour over meat. Cover tightly and bake in a slow over (300 degree F.) 1½ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender. 6 servings.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Too much wax, oil and polish can do as much to dim the beauty of furniture finishes as lack of care, the American Walnut Manufacturers Association says.

—Wash furniture once or twice with mild soap and water. Excessive water can be harmful so the cloth should be wrung out. Wipe all surfaces with a clean damp cloth, then rub dry.

This soap and water treatment is recognized as the best means of cleaning wood furniture. It removes food and candy smears and many other types of soil not usually affected by the application of another coat of oil, polish or wax, the association said.

—A good paste wax should follow the washing, say most authorities on finishes. The paste wax may involve more work in polishing but the result justifies the effort, they says.

—Some furniture items, or furniture parts, which are subjected to heavy use may require more frequent cleaning and waxing. These include chairs, occasional tables, dining tables and the wood parts of upholstered furniture.

—For low luster or oil-type finishes where a gloss is not desired, clean only with soap and water. These finishes are part of the wood, and are surprisingly durable without wax.

If some waxing is preferred, a liquid especially formulated for these finishes is available.

—Authentic boiled oil finishes are generally identified as such and should be treated only with an occasional application of oil. Instructions are supplied by the furniture manufacturer.

—If wax has been put on accidentally, it must be removed before more oil is applied.

Furniture oils or oil base polishes which produce a shine through a surface oil residue are not recommended because they collect dust and may damage the furniture.

Too frequent use of polishes or waxes will build a film which will reduce the beauty of the finish. That's why, for most pieces, the recommendation is for waxing once or twice a year, preceded by the mild soap and water cleaning.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

In a recent column a woman asked what side of aluminum foil is the right side! Or . . . which side should be placed on the outside and which next to the food.

This question puzzles people.

Actually, it does not matter which side of the aluminum foil is placed outside since both the bright and dull sides of aluminum foil are almost equally reflective.

However, aluminum foil is a very good conductor of heat when in contact with food, and it conducts heat into the food when used to wrap potatoes, chicken, turkey, and many other foods during roasting and baking.

Dear Heloise:

In answer to the ladies who want to know about luncheon sandwiches, other than roast beef and bologna . . . I have the solution to their problem:

My husband likes boiled ham for his lunch . . . so I buy picnic ham, which is often on sale in the markets.

I always look for a good lean one. I press on the butt end of the ham with my thumb and if it feels solid it is lean but if it is soft and mushy then I know it has quite a bit of fat.

I always buy the leanest ham I can find.

I cook this (after removing the rind) by wrapping it well in foil and putting it in a big pot of water and boiling it about two hours or so depending upon the size of the ham . . .

When finished, I remove it from the kettle and place it on a plate to cool. Then I can slice it as thin or as thick as I like. This luncheon meat will last quite awhile in the refrigerator.

After I slice what I want for that day, I wrap the rest of the ham in a plastic wrap and it stays fresh and moist as the day it was cooked. —Lou

Dear Heloise:

When I make a one-dish dinner and need to make it ahead of time, the pilot light on my stove keeps it nice and warm for me when I place a piece of foil over the top of the casserole. —Mrs. J. H. Beckham

Dear Heloise:

It's time to clean my dish cupboards again but I am not dreading it as much as I used to.

Last fall I put the dishes I seldom use in plastic bags and closed the tops of the bags. I put these in the back on my cupboard shelf. I will not have to wash all of them now. Isn't that wonderful? It not only puts your plastic bags to good use but keeps them out of baby's reach. —Mary Grindad

Dear Mary:

Jolly ho! Your idea is wonderful and . . . so are you! —Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

Instead of putting water into that last bit of ketchup in the bottle which makes it thin and runny . . . simply put the cap on the bottle and prop it upside down overnight!

When you want to use the ketchup, better have something handy to catch it in because it will all slide out easily leaving the bottle as clean as a whistle.

This also goes for hand lotions. You will be astonished at how much lotion you will get by propping an "empty" bottle upside down for a while. —J. Sprattsy

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Move, Man, Move!

DEAR ABBY: I am half out of my mind keeping this inside me, and I need an answer. My wife belongs to a church on the edge of town. I am not a member. We are both in our early 30's and have four children.

Someone picks her up in a car at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and she doesn't get home until noon on Monday. I ask her what kind of church lasts all night and she tells me that they pray in church all day, and afterwards they go to the preacher's house for special prayers and supper. Then they go to someone's house for coffee and donuts. Then someone drives her home. I went along with her story on Sundays, but now she has started to go on Wednesdays. —WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Don't just sit there—get a sitter, or park the kids with friends and go to "church" with your wife next Sunday. Seeing is believing.

DEAR ABBY: I have been unhappy for 37 years because the man I married never gave me a wedding ring. I didn't know I wasn't getting one until the minister asked for the ring. My husband said, "No ring." When people ask why I don't wear a wedding ring I make excuses because I'm ashamed to tell them the truth. Several years ago I gave my husband a man's gold wedding ring, thinking he would then understand how much I wanted one, but he wore it only a few times and never took the hint. Am I wrong to feel cheated?—CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Why "hint"? Perhaps your spouse of 37 years never realized how much his failure to give you a wedding ring has hurt you. Don't suffer in silence any more. Tell him you "want" one.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please give me some information? I have ten dollars riding on your answer and it has to be printed in your column or I can't collect. My friend says that unless a letter is signed, you will not use it in your column. I say that you use letters in your column whether they are signed or not. —BALTIMORON

DEAR BALTIMORON: Congratulations, you have just won ten dollars.

LOCAL SONGSTERS—This group of barbershoppers represent part of the local chapter of the international society that will host the Central State Preliminaries in Colorado Springs May 4. Three thousand members and 25 quartets from seven states will compete for the chance to sing in the barbershop championships to be held in Toronto, Canada in June.

Gerald Bennett With Navy in California

Gerald L. Bennett, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bennett of 2025 North Franklin St., is serving with Landing Craft Utility Division 12, at San Diego, Calif., part of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Force, which celebrates its 21st anniversary this month.

The force, with units spread thruout the Pacific area, was established in 1942.

The theme for this year's celebration is "The Amphibious Force—21 years as Freedom's advance guard."

Barbershoppers Will Host Central State Contest Here

A breath from out of the past—the gaslit era of the gay 90's—will breeze into Colorado Springs May 4 when the Pikes Peak Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America present the 1963 Central States Preliminaries at the city auditorium.

Approximately 3,000 SPEBSQSA members, including 25 of the finest quartets in seven states—Colorado, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, and Missouri will compete, with the goal of entering the barbershop championships in Toronto, Canada in June, at stake.

On May 4 the town will be filled with the kind of spine-tingling harmony that emanated from barbershops at the turn of the century—the carefree, lovable songs of the period before the modern age of high-pressure jobs, skyrocketing national debt and crushing taxes.

What is barbershop harmony? Technically it is four part harmony sung in the true or diatonic scale; three voices contribute harmony notes to a melody or lead sung by a fourth voice.

But for the listener it is a silver thread of music that immerses the mind and heart in the golden harmony of the past. It is the link to memories of quiet walks thru scented country lanes in the good old summer time—the clump of horses' hoofs as tasseled buggies roll along quiet, moonlit roads—the charm of soft lamplight in picture-filled drawing rooms.

It is the thrill of remembering still the touch of a dainty, lace-bordered hand nestling within your own—the lovelight shinning from eyes shaded by a sun-bonnet—the joint pledge of a love that has lasted.

"Oh what a Pal was Mary," "Dear Old Girl," "After the Ball," "That Old Gang of Mine," were some of the songs sung then—songs that when sung now by the barbershopers, bring a tear to the eye, quickened heart beats, a lump to the throat and a tighter handclasp with that dear old girl beside you.

Such is the magic of barbershop music. Its revival, started in 1938 by a group of business men in Tulsa, is taking the country by storm. SPEBSQSA now lists more than 600 chapters among its membership and has its international headquarters in Kenosha, Wis.

Saturday, May 4, you will have the opportunity of hearing the semifinal contestants of the Central States District and at night the 10 finalists will compete. The afternoon admission charge is $1 and the evening performance price is reserved seats 3, $2.50, $2 and $1. Three groups will be picked from the final 10, to attend the finals in Toronto.

In addition the 50 - man Pikes Peak or Bust Barbershop Chorus will also render selections during the event.

Familiar Streets Dangerous to Drivers

Driving on the same streets and highways day after day can be more dangerous than venturing into strange towns or distant highways, State Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel reminded Colorado drivers today.

Accidents in Colorado during last year, he said, involved a local resident about 66 per cent of the time. If that doesn't clinch it for you, three out of four traffic deaths nationally occur within 25 miles of home.

Carrel said he suspects the reason so many accidents occur when people are close to home has something to do with the old saying, "familiarity breeds contempt."

"People drive the same route every day; they begin to feel as tho they could negotiate it with their eyes closed; they begin to take too much for granted and that's when an accident is most likely to happen," he said.

The chief added that drivers should make it a habit to obey every stop sign or signal, even if there's no other car in sight. They should assume a train may be approaching at every grade crossing and, finally, they should remember that every caution or warning sign they encounter was placed to insure the safe and efficient movement of traffic.

Britains Ask Spy Fair Play

LONDON (AP) — Britain has called for fair play in the dirty game of recruiting spies. Blackmail, the Foreign Office told Moscow, isn't cricket.

The protest announced here dealt with the case of Ivor Rowsell, 47, a British Embassy staff man who returned to England from Moscow last week.

Rowsell told British Ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan that Soviet agents approached him and tried to force him into spying by threatening to disclose incidents in his private life. The ambassador quickly sent him and his wife home.

It's happened before, said a Foreign Office spokesman. He added all Western diplomats in Iron Curtain countries run the risk of attacks on their integrity.

Combat Training Ends For Charles Stoker

Marine Private Charles E. Stoker, son of Mrs. Susie Perkins of 332 South Conejos St., completed four weeks of individual combat training, Feb. 21, with the Second Infantry Training Regiment at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The training provides newly enlisted marines with a background of experience in the field under combat conditions. Live-firing exercises are conducted, in addition to field trips and classroom lectures.

Under carefully selected instructors, marines learn to take their places in small fighting units, such as the four-man fire team and the 14-man squad.

OLDEST GROCER

Ousley is 92. He works a six-day, 48-hour week in a neighborhood supermarket, crating eggs, stocking shelves and checking produce.

LOCAL SONGSTERS—This group of barbershoppers represent part of the local chapter of the international society that will host the Central State Preliminaries in Colorado Springs May 4. Three thousand members and 25 quartets from seven states will compete for the chance to sing in the barbershop championships to be held in Toronto, Canada in June.

Gerald Bennett With Navy in California

Gerald L. Bennett, fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bennett of 2025 North Frankin St., is serving with Landing Craft Utility Division 12, at San Diego, Calif., part of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Force, which celebrates its 21st anniversary this month.

The force, with units spread thruout the Pacific area, was established in 1942.

Barbershoppers Will Host Central State Contest Here

A breath from out of the past—the gaslit era of the gay 90's—will breeze into Colorado Springs May 4 when the Pikes Peak Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America present the 1963 Central States Preliminaries at the city auditorium.

Approximately 3,000 SPEBSQSA members, including 25 of the finest quartets in seven states—Colorado, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, and Missouri will compete, with the goal of entering the barbershop championships in Toronto, Canada in June, at stake.

On May 4 the town will be filled with the kind of spine-tingling harmony that emanated from barbershops at the turn of the century—the carefree, lovable songs of the period before the modern age of high-pressure jobs, skyrocketing national debt and crushing taxes.

What is barbershop harmony? Technically it is four part harmony sung in the true or diatonic scale; three voices contribute harmony notes to a melody or lead sung by a fourth voice.

But for the listener it is a silver thread of music that immerses the mind and heart in the golden harmony of the past. It is the link to memories of quiet walks thru scented country lanes in the good old summer time—the clump of horses' hoofs as tasseled buggies roll along quiet, moonlit roads—the charm of soft lamplight in picture-filled drawing rooms.

It is the thrill of remembering still the touch of a dainty, lace-bordered hand nestling within your own—the lovelight shinning from eyes shaded by a sun-bonnet —the joint pledge of a love that has lasted.

"Oh what a Pal was Mary," "Dear Old Girl," "After the Ball," "That Old Gang of Mine," were some of the songs sung then—songs that when sung now by the barbershopers, bring a tear to the eye, quickened heart beats, a lump to the throat and a tighter handclasp with that dear old girl beside you.

Such is the magic of barbershop music. Its revival, started in 1938 by a group of business men in Tulsa, is taking the country by storm. SPEBSQSA now lists more than 600 chapters among its membership and has its international headquarters in Kenosha, Wis.

Saturday, May 4, you will have the opportunity of hearing the semifinal contestants of the Central States District and at night the 10 finalists will compete. The afternoon admission charge is $1 and the evening performance price is reserved seats 3, $2.50, $2 and $1. Three groups will be picked from the final 10, to attend the finals in Toronto.

In addition the 50 - man Pikes Peak or Bust Barbershop Chorus will also render selections during the event.

Familiar Streets Dangerous to Drivers

Driving on the same streets and highways day after day can be more dangerous than venturing into strange towns or distant highways, State Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel reminded Colorado drivers today.

Accidents in Colorado during last year, he said, involved a local resident about 66 per cent of the time. If that doesn't clinch it for you, three out of four traffic deaths nationally occur within 25 miles of home.

Carrel said he suspects the reason so many accidents occur when people are close to home has something to do with the old saying, "familiarity breeds contempt."

"People drive the same route every day, they begin to feel as tho they could negotiate it with their eyes closed; they begin to take too much for granted and that's when an accident is most likely to happen," he said.

The chief added that drivers should make it a habit to obey every stop sign or signal, even if there's no other car in sight. They should assume a train may be approaching at every grade crossing and, finally, they should remember that every caution or warning sign they encounter was placed to insure the safe and efficient movement of traffic.

First school west of the Alleghenies was opened at Schoenbrunn, Ohio, in 1773.

Britains Ask Spy Fair Play

LONDON (AP) — Britain has called for fair play in the dirty game of recruiting spies. Blackmail, the Foreign Office told Moscow, isn't cricket.

The protest announced here dealt with the case of Ivor Rowsell, 47, a British Embassy staff man who returned to England from Moscow last week.

Rowsell told British Ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan that Soviet agents approached him and tried to force him into spying by threatening to disclose incidents in his private life. The ambassador quickly sent him and his wife home.

It's happened before, said a Foreign Office spokesman. He added all Western diplomats in Iron Curtain countries run the risk of attacks on their integrity.

Combat Training Ends For Charles Stoker

Marine Private Charles E. Stoker, son of Mrs. Susie Perkins of 332 South Conejos St., completed four weeks of individual combat training, Feb. 21, with the Second Infantry Training Regiment at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The training provides newly enlisted marines with a background of experience in the field under combat conditions. Live-firing exercises are conducted, in addition to field trips and classroom lectures.

Under carefully selected instructors, marines learn to take their places in small fighting units, such as the four-man fire team and the 14-man squad.

Benny Meyer Will Tour Japan With Cowboy Band

Benny Meyer, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Meyer, 626 E. Fontanero St., will leave Abilene, Tex., Tuesday with the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy Band for Japan, for a tour that is to be a part of the Billy Graham Crusade. The band is one of 35 members that is famous for its marching and concerts. Meyer plays the clarinet.

He played in the North Junior High School and Palmer High School bands here and is a captain in the ROTC at Hardin-Simmons. He expects upon graduation to go into the intelligence service of the Army. He is a native of Stillwater, Okla., and has been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1954. He is a member of the First Southern Baptist Church.

Career Can Be Checkered In Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran television viewers with long memories may recall that a cocky, blond, smiling youngster named Doug McClure made his first big impression playing a stagecoach driver in a short-lived series called "Overland Trail."

Truth is, Doug's television debut came five years earlier. He starred in a soap commercial, playing the part of a young man sudsing himself luxuriously in a shower.

There's nothing wrong with soap commercials for a dramatic start: Grace Kelly's first television role was that of the girl lovingly washing her face with the sponsor's bar.

Doug's discreet display of muscled torso and flashing teeth landed him in "Men of Annapolis," now thoroughly forgotten, playing a midshipman. Soon, however, the movies promoted him to ensign, with a part in "The Enemy Below."

"Overland Trail" never made its first relay station in 1959, but McClure did so nicely that the next season he was one of the co-stars in "Checkmate," which lasted for two seasons.

This year, McClure accepted a supporting role in "The Virginian" NBC's outsize Wednesday night western, which might be construed as a backward step for a young performer who had had star billing.

"First, I'm under contract to Revue Studios," he explained "and it has a while longer to run. Second, I figured that if I had to go into another series, I'd like to go into a big one—and 'The Virginian' was the biggest around."

McClure, 28, seems to appeal to all the important groups that make up the mass audience. Older women want to mother him, teen-agers think he's cute and men like him for his athlete's grace, riding skill and manliness.

A Glendale boy, McClure grew up around Los Angeles and has been around horses most of his life.

The horse he rides in "The Virginian" is named "Ladigo," but Doug calls him Buck.

Doug says that Buck is smarter than some human actors.

"I can take him through his part just once, and he catches right on," he said.

Doug recently married Barbara Luna, an actress. His first marriage ended in divorce. His daughter Tane, 3, by that first marriage, recently appeared with her father in an episode of "The Virginian."

"I sure like to work—and I'd like to do characters," he concluded. "I hope to be out of TV series and into pictures before too long, and I'd like comedy parts."

Soviet Bear Hunter Claims 44 Kills

MOSCOW (AP) — In a lifetime of hunting in the Urals near Sverdlovsk, 58-year-old Leonid Borisov has killed 44 bears.

"I started hunting when I was 15," he said in an interview with a Sverdlovsk newspaper. "Since then, the taiga (dense forests) has been my second home."

Looking At Hollywood
By HEDDA HOPPER
(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

JENNIFER JONES PLANS TO STAR IN STAGE PLAY

NEW YORK.—Jennifer Jones and David Selznick have taken an apartment in the Waldorf Towers, entered their daughter, Mary Jennifer, in the Dalton school, and plan to stay for awhile. Jennifer will have a go at the stage next season in "The Shattered Glass," a novel by Jean Ariss about the conflict between a woman's love and a man's compulsion. David is having it adapted for the stage, but will not produce. They closed their California house and she has no plans to return; Selznick will be back there next summer. "Hollywood has just about touched its lowest ebb," he says, "and is now on the way back. It's the only place to make pictures."

Another resident of the towers is Richard M. Nixon, who will be on Jack Paar's show this week, and plans some speeches come fall. His appearance at the University club here—especially the question and answer session—was quite a success. When I invited him to the reception Russell Downing is giving for me in his apartment at the Radio City Music hall, Nixon accepted with, "You made many appearances for me—it's about time I did one for you."

Maureen O'Sullivan will have another year on Broadway in the hit play, "Never Too Late," and she tells me when school ends in June she'll take a house in Connecticut and bring her five children on from the coast to live with her. Already here is her 18-year-old Mia, a raving beauty who looks like a saint. She's had plenty of movie offers but listened to Maureen and turned them down until she's older. Mia is rehearsing for the title role in "Alice in Wonderland" with a young theater group. After polishing it before women's groups and at hospitals, they hope to do it off Broadway. This summer she'll do stock to get more training.

Lunched with Henry Ginsberg at the new Voison—I can still taste that almond souffle we had for dessert! Henry worked with David Selznick during "Gone with the Wind," ran Paramount studio for awhile, then became a co-producer on "Giant," which put him right of the picture business—in a nice way. He made so much money he retired. We walked down Fifth avenue and stopped in at the new all-red carpet and crystal, very plush Regency hotel and found the Charlie Berns of "21" taking a look, too.

Seems everybody's writing a book. Bea Little, the lucky lady, is getting $100,000 for her memoirs; and Helen Menken, who hasn't been very well, called me from the hospital where she's recuperating to check some facts for a book she's working on. Helen and her sister, whose parents were deaf-mutes, were two of the girls with DeWolf Hopper in "The Pied Piper," in which I had two lines. We compared memories and she reminded me that the children in the play had to live in the basement of the theater where we played in Washington, D. C., and recalled the time the time the whole company stood in the snow to watch the inauguration procession of William Howard Taft. Making contact with old friends and hearing stories you'd long ago forgotten are the things that warm a traveler's heart.

Phoned Mary Martin and learned she's still in Brazil. Mary and Richard Halliday went down to sell their house, but after replacing a window that had been smashed and cutting down the hedge that was blocking their view of the sunsets, they fell in love with the place all over again and have no idea when they'll be home. Janet Gaynor is with them. Richard's sister and her husband moved into Mary's apartment to baby sit—with her toy poodle!

Rocky Gets Gift of Lemon Sour Balls

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has received a "tongue-in-cheek" gift from California Gov. Edmund F. Brown—15 pounds of lemon sour balls in a redwood box.

Brown, a Democrat, explained in a letter to New York's top Republican that the gift was "a sort of consolation prize" because California now claims to be first in population, the place long held by New York, though the figures are in dispute.

Brown also included five pounds of candy kisses to take the sting out of the gift and wished Rockefeller "a very sweet future."

Family Car Can Be Used as Survival Kit

Your car can be converted, with a little imagination, into a disaster survival kit with nearly everything you need to withstand the rigors of cold, heat, wind or flood, according to an informative article by James Joseph in the current issue of the Allstate Insurance Co. magazine, "Home & Highway."

The article, "Your Car is a Lifesaver," refers to the average American car as a four-wheeled St. Bernard which can save lives in emergencies.

The Allstate article catalogs the many lifesaving devices found in your car: Warmth - giving tires that will burn for hours; sun visors and hubcaps that pinch hit for shovels; a radiator that becomes a thirst - quenching canteen; seats, slipcovers and floor mats that will serve as blankets or shut out the worst of winds; mirrors, chrome and headlights which, properly used, can alert search planes as far off as 30 to 50 miles; crankcase oil and grease that will salve the face against searing summer heat or protect against frostbite and windburn.

Joseph cites many graphic examples of families whose imaginative use of their car's life-saving devices has pulled them thru extreme emergencies.

He tells of one family caught in Utah's Moab Desert when the car's radiator burst. The couple and their six children first dug a sun - shaded trunch beneath the car, using the sun visors as shovels.

The father swaddled the radiator in burlap to conserve its water, and unscrewed the rear view mirror for use as a reflective signal. He stripped off the seat covers for use as blankets for the evening chill. Snug in their foxhole, they were found unharmed.

"The list of lifesavers in the average car is inexhaustible," Joseph concludes. "All you need is a little imagination."

BANKERS DEATH INSIDE

HONG KONG (AP)—Hong Kong police are investigating the death of Wang Yi-Peng, manager of the Chinese Communist Southern Film Corp., whose body was found on a second-floor ledge of the Communist Bank of China building here. He is believed to have fallen from his office on the seventh floor.

Chinese press reports said Wang recently defied a Peking order transferring him back to China.

Benny Meyer, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Meyer, 626 E. Fontanero St., will leave Abilene, Tex., Tuesday with the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy Band for Japan, for a tour that is to be a part of the Billy Graham Crusade. The band is one of 35 members that is famous for its marching and concerts. Meyer plays the clarinet.

He played in the North Junior High School and Palmer High School bands here and is a captain in the ROTC at Hardin-Simmons. He expects upon graduation to go into the intelligence service of the Army. He is a native of Stillwater, Okla., and has been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1954. He is a member of the First Southern Baptist Church.

Career Can Be Checkered In Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran television viewers with long memories may recall that a cocky, blond, smiling youngster named Doug McClure made his first big impression playing a stagecoach driver in a short-lived series called "Overland Trail."

Truth is, Doug's television debut came five years earlier. He starred in a soap commercial, playing the part of a young man sudsing himself luxuriously in a shower.

There's nothing wrong with soap commercials for a dramatic start. Grace Kelly's first television role was that of the girl lovingly washing her face with the sponsor's bar.

Doug's discreet display of muscled torso and flashing teeth landed him in "Men of Annapolis," now thoroughly forgotten, playing a midshipman. Soon, however, the movies promoted him to ensign, with a part in "The Enemy Below."

"Overland Trail" never made its first relay station in 1959, but McClure did so nicely that the next season he was one of the co-stars in "Checkmate," which lasted for two seasons.

This year, McClure accepted a supporting role in "The Virginian" NBC's outsize Wednesday night western, which might be construed as a backward step for a young performer who had had star billing.

"First, I'm under contract to Revue Studios," he explained "and it has a while longer to run. Second, I figured that if I had to go into another series, I'd like to go into a big one—and 'The Virginian' was the biggest around."

McClure, 28, seems to appeal to all the important groups that make up the mass audience. Older women want to mother him, teen-agers think he's cute and men like him for his athlete's grace, riding skill and manliness.

A Glendale boy, McClure grew up around Los Angeles and has been around horses most of his life.

The horse he rides in "The Virginian" is named "Ladigo," but Doug calls him Buck.

Doug says that Buck is smarter than some human actors.

"I can take him through his part just once, and he catches right on," he said.

Doug recently married Barbara Luna, an actress. His first marriage ended in divorce. His daughter Tane, 3, by that first marriage, recently appeared with her father in an episode of "The Virginian."

"I sure like to work—and I'd like to do characters," he concluded. "I hope to be out of TV series and into pictures before too long, and I'd like comedy parts."

Soviet Bear Hunter Claims 44 Kills

MOSCOW (AP) — In a lifetime of hunting in the Urals near Sverdlovsk, 88-year-old Leonid Borisov has killed 44 bears.

"I started hunting when I was 15," he said in an interview with a Sverdlovsk newspaper. "Since then, the taiga (dense forests) has been my second home."

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

JENNIFER JONES PLANS TO STAR IN STAGE PLAY

NEW YORK.—Jennifer Jones and David Selznick have taken an apartment in the Waldorf Towers, entered their daughter, Mary Jennifer, in the Dalton school, and plan to stay for awhile. Jennifer will have a go at the stage next season in "The Shattered Glass," a novel by Jean Ariss about the conflict between a woman's love and a man's compulsion. David is having it adapted for the stage, but will not produce. They closed their California house and she has no plans to return; Selznick will be back there next summer. "Hollywood has just about touched its lowest ebb," he says, "and is now on the way back. It's the only place to make pictures."

Another resident of the towers is Richard M. Nixon, who will be on Jack Paar's show this week, and plans some speeches come fall. His appearance at the University club here—especially the question and answer session—was quite a success. When I invited him to the reception Russell Downing is giving for me in his apartment at the Radio City Music hall, Nixon accepted with, "You made many appearances for me—it's about time I did one for you."

Maureen O'Sullivan will have another year on Broadway in the hit play, "Never Too Late," and she tells me when school ends in June she'll take a house in Connecticut and bring her five children on from the coast to live with her. Already here is her 18-year-old Mia, a raving beauty who looks like a saint. She's had plenty of movie offers but listened to Maureen and turned them down until she's older. Mia is rehearsing for the title role in "Alice in Wonderland" with a young theater group. After polishing it before women's groups and at hospitals, they hope to do it off Broadway. This summer she'll do stock to get more training.

Lunched with Henry Ginsberg at the new Voison—I can still taste that almond souffle we had for dessert! Henry worked with David Selznick during "Gone with the Wind," ran Paramount studio for awhile, then became a co-producer on "Giant," which put him right of the picture business—in a nice way. He made so much money he retired. We walked down Fifth avenue and stopped in at the new all-red carpet and crystal, very plush Regency hotel and found the Charlie Berns of "21" taking a look, too.

Seems everybody's writing a book. Bea Little, the lucky lady, is getting $100,000 for her memoirs; and Helen Menken, who hasn't been very well, called me from the hospital where she's recuperating to check some facts for a book she's working on. Helen and her sister, whose parents were deaf-mutes, were two of the girls with DeWolf Hopper in "The Pied Piper," in which I had two lines. We compared memories and she reminded me that the children in the play had to live in the basement of the theater where we played in Washington, D. C., and recalled the time the whole company stood in the snow to watch the inauguration procession of William Howard Taft. Making contact with old friends and hearing stories you'd long ago forgotten are the things that warm a traveler's heart.

Phoned Mary Martin and learned she's still in Brazil. Mary and Richard Halliday went down to sell their house, but after replacing a window that had been smashed and cutting down the hedge that was blocking their view of the sunsets, they fell in love with the place all over again and have no idea when they'll be home. Janet Gaynor is with them. Richard's sister and her husband moved into Mary's apartment to baby sit—with her toy poodle!

Rocky Gets Gift of Lemon Sour Balls

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has received a "tongue-in-cheek" gift from California Gov. Edmund F. Brown—15 pounds of lemon sour balls in a redwood box.

Brown, a Democrat, explained in a letter to New York's top Republican that the gift was "a sort of consolation prize" because California now claims to be first in population, the place long held by New York, though the figures are in dispute.

Brown also included five pounds of candy kisses to take the sting out of the gift and wished Rockefeller "a very sweet future."

Family Car Can Be Used as Survival Kit

Your car can be converted, with a little imagination, into a disaster survival kit with nearly everything you need to withstand the rigors of cold, heat, wind or flood, according to an informative article by James Joseph in the current issue of the Allstate Insurance Co. magazine, "Home & Highway."

The article, "Your Car is a Lifesaver," refers to the average American car as a four-wheeled St. Bernard which can save lives in emergencies.

The Allstate article catalogs the many lifesaving devices found in your car: Warmth - giving tires that will burn for hours; sun visors and hubcaps that pinch hit for shovels; a radiator that becomes a thirst - quenching canteen; seats, slipcovers and floor mats that will serve as blankets or shut out the worst of winds; mirrors, chrome and headlights which, properly used, can alert search planes as far off as 30 to 50 miles; crankcase oil and grease that will salve the face against searing summer heat or protect against frostbite and windburn.

Joseph cites many graphic examples of families whose imaginative use of their car's life-saving devices has pulled them thru extreme emergencies.

He tells of one family caught in Utah's Moab Desert when the car's radiator burst. The couple and their six children first dug a sun - shaded trunch beneath the car, using the sun visors as shovels.

The father swaddled the radiator in burlap to conserve its water, and unscrewed the rear view mirror for use as a reflective signal. He stripped off the seat covers for use as blankets for the evening chill. Snug in their foxhole, they were found unharmed.

Academy Advisory Group Provides Liaison Service

A multi - faceted organization at the Air Force Academy takes the place of alumni associations so important to civilian colleges and universities.

The alumni's replacement, Candidate Advisory Service, provides information on the Academy program and admission requirements to interested young men, their parents, and secondary school counselors.

Much of the primary "spade work" for CAS is done by 950 liaison officers located in all parts of the country.

The LO's, Air Force Reserve officers, now perform their duties as their sole reserve training requirement. Last year, 51 per cent of the class of 1966 were counseled by LO's. This represented an increase of 22 per cent over 1961.

Direct mailing also plays an important part in telling the academy story to interested young men. CAS yearly provides more than 50,000 kits in answer to requests for information on admissions requirements.

Personnel from CAS also attend state and national education conventions and each month present a complete academy briefing to recruiting school students at Lackland AFB, Tex.

To aid them in their important work, LO's are assigned to the academy for a two - weeks active duty tour. During the period they are thoroly briefed on academy operations.

Each LO is assigned specific high schools with the responsibility of counseling and assisting young men who show an interest in the academy.

Stalin Was Reported Afraid of People

MOSCOW (UPI) — So far as Premier Nikita Khrushchev is concerned, Josef Stalin was a man so afraid of the people he didn't dare ride openly through Moscow.

Khrushchev's opinion of Stalin was delivered at a speech he made before a Communist Party plenum last November. Here is how he put it:

"The Kremlin was closed for visitors. He was afraid to ride through town. He was afraid of the people.

"He enclosed himself in an armored box.

"What kind of a life was it without any connections with the people? Why did Stalin act that way?"

CU Engineering Enrollment Shows Increase

The University of Colorado's 1962 fall engineering enrollment was 5 per cent higher than in 1961 and was 3.4 per cent higher than national enrollment increases, Dr. Max S. Peters, dean, said.

Peters said 1,768 enrolled in the College of Engineering this fall. In the fall of 1961, there were 1,679 enrolled, not including students in architecture, which has since been established as a separate school.

Enrollment in 166 institutions with Engineers Council for Professional Development accreditation increased 1.6 per cent from 237,705 in the fall of 1961 to 241,613 in the fall of 1962.

These figures come from annual official survey of engineering enrollments and degrees conducted under the joint auspices of the American Society for Engineering Education and the U.S. Office of Education.

Total undergraduate engineering enrollment at CU last fall was up 3 per cent, while across the nation it dropped 0.1 per cent. Peters said 1,539 undergraduates enrolled in the fall of 1962 and 1,497 enrolled in the fall of 1961.

Capital Circus

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — A version of the Bay of Pigs operation that rings true is now available for the first time and clearly carries the damaging impact that the Kennedy Administration deliberately has suppressed the full story of its responsibility for the fiasco.

The account is by Albert C. Persons, a Birmingham, Ala., flier who was privately hired in January, 1961, to fly a B-26 bomber attached to Cuban invasion forces training in Guatemala.

Persons and 17 other combat experienced fliers, all American civilians were, he insists, recruited for one prime purpose. That was "to replace inexperienced Cuban crews for the all-important initial air strike against vital military targets prior to the actual landing of the invasion forces."

The most important of these strikes was on Saturday, April 15, 1961, when the invasion force was at sea. Its aim was to knock out Castro's air power! All three fields were near Havana, where the Red planes were deployed.

It needs to be recalled at this time that as this strike was only partially successful Castro was able on the following Monday and Tuesday to control the air over the beachhead and finally force surrender of the galland band of 1,400 men.

What went wrong with that Saturday bomb mission of the B-26's? Nobody in authority here in Washington has ever provided anything but fuzzy evasive replies and never even hinted at the explanation Persons has now supplied. Our guess is that he has supplied the key, even if the mystery has yet to be solved and that the investigating committees now operating in Congress should follow thru and pinpoint the culprit or culprits.

What Persons says is simply and directly in reference to the fact that the "American Force," which had readied itself for the Havana bombing mission was suddenly and unexpectedly called off.

As he puts it in an account appearing in a weekly newspaper of which he is now managing editor, the Birmingham Examiner.

"Shortly before the operation was launched, orders were received at operational headquarters in Nicaragua that the American aircrews were not to be used."

In Persons' report he said this surprise grounding caused "considerable consternation among the American pilots." He added that word was passed that the Cubans "wanted to do the job themselves and take all the glory."

But he adds "frankly we didn't believe a word of it."

Who issued that order which sent Cuban pilots and crews of highly questionable experience on a vital mission, on which the success of the beachhead invasion depended?

Who made the choice, turning down at the last minute 18 American fliers all military trained, and ready to go? Fliers hired at wages of around $2,000 a month, and with full knowledge they were to participate in a hazardous secret undertaking!

Who for that matter ever heard about this switch until Persons came up with his version, almost two years after the Bay of Pigs?

Was the denial by Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy last December that "U. S. air cover" had never been considered for the invasion forces a clever use of semantics?

Was it a deliberate and cunning "news management" effort to leave the impression that the sole question was whether our own Air Force and Navy planes had ever been promised? When the real question was whether an "American air contingent" flying B-26 bombers had been promised, both for the preliminary mission to knock out Castro's air and for beachhead cover?

As Persons goes on to amplify, it was not until Tuesday night, April 18, that the orders were changed and some Americans instead of Cubans allowed to fly B-26's over the Bay of Pigs. The four fliers whose death in the fiasco was recently revealed by Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-ILL.), were shot down that day.

Persons admits he does not know where the orders originated depriving the invasion forces of experienced American fliers. This is a task almost crying for Congress to tackle for there is a distinct aroma about the affair, especially as there has never been the slightest official suggestion that the Havana bombing mission had ever been planned other than the way it was carried out.

Persons also deserves credit for bringing out into the open another embarrassing diplomatic secret the central intelligence agency has done its best to suppress. That is that while the invasion was staged in training camps deep in Guatemala, Nicaragua was apparently also cooperating significantly with the CIA's secret military adventure.

The flight group to which Persons was attached was based he said in Nicaragua. Moreover, he added, when the Bay of Pigs invaders were bottled up on Wednesday, April 19, "somebody" in authority (he probably could be required to name him if called before a congressional committee) decided a desperate stunt was in order.

Six F-51 fighters from the Nicaraguan Air Force, Persons reported, were "hustled in." The insignia "was painted out and they were prepared to go over and give support for the beachhead — but the airstrip at the beachhead was lost before they could take off."

Then Persons tells this story, which from any other source would strain imagination, but as he relates it has the almost indelible feeling of truth in it:

He reported that when it was found the F-51's couldn't make the beachhead an American "in the operations room" proposed "by prearrangement they strafe runways and drop a few bombs inside the naval base at Guantanamo. This plan had real merit. The aircraft would carry Castro markings."

This, in Persons' opinion, would have provided "a causus belli necessary to send U.S. military forces onto Cuban soil." But he said he understood this plan was turned down — President Kennedy did so, Persons surmises—altho "I cannot confirm this."

MONTREAL (AP) — The annual chess tournament at Montreal High School is a family affair, organized by the Rubin brothers who consistently win it.

Robert and Gerry Rubin organized the tournament four years ago and one or the other has won it every year since.

The Rubins' chess careers began when their salesman father hired an instructor to teach them how to play the piano. He taught them chess instead.

Academy Advisory Group Provides Liaison Service

A multi - faceted organization at the Air Force Academy takes the place of alumni associations so important to civilian colleges and universities.

The alumni's replacement, Candidate Advisory Service, provides information on the Academy program and admission requirements to interested young men, their parents, and secondary school counselors.

Much of the primary "spade work" for CAS is done by 950 liaison officers located in all parts of the country.

The LO's, Air Force Reserve officers, now perform their duties as their sole reserve training requirement. Last year, 51 per cent of the class of 1966 were counseled by LO's. This represented an increase of 22 per cent over 1961.

Direct mailing also plays an important part in telling the academy story to interested young men. CAS yearly provides more than 50,000 kits in answer to requests for information on admissions requirements.

Personnel from CAS also attend state and national education conventions and each month present a complete academy briefing to recruiting school students at Lackland AFB, Tex.

To aid them in their important work, LO's are assigned to the academy for a two - weeks active duty tour. During the period they are thoroly briefed on academy operations.

Each LO is assigned specific high schools with the responsibility of counseling and assisting young men who show an interest in the academy.

Stalin Was Reported Afraid of People

MOSCOW (UPI) — So far as Premier Nikita Khrushchev is concerned, Josef Stalin was a man so afraid of the people he didn't dare ride openly through Moscow.

Khrushchev's opinion of Stalin was delivered at a speech he made before a Communist Party plenum last November. Here is how he put it:

"The Kremlin was closed for visitors. He was afraid to ride through town. He was afraid of the people.

"He enclosed himself in an armored box.

"What kind of a life was it without any connections with the people? Why did Stalin act that way?"

Retired Rancher Busy Volunteer for Red Cross

Lynn Grandy of 3010 Drakestone picks up the key to the Red Cross station wagon each Thursday afternoon and spends the next three or four hours taking elderly nursing home residents on a drive. First, he picks up a capacity load at the Prospect Lake Nursing Home. In an hour or two he returns them and picks up another group of passengers at the Good Samaritan Nursing Home.

One woman suggests, "Down town; let's see the store windows!"

A man says, "Let's look at the new houses." A few blocks later, he comments, "the best houses ever made were log cabins. Those were the days."

For most of the riders in Grandy's tour this is their only chance to leave the nursing home. They look forward to their turn to ride in the comfortable station wagon.

United Fund givers can look upon this service as one concrete example of their funds being used to brighten the lives of those who have too little enjoyment, according to Mrs. Joe Leferink, chairman of the Red Cross Motor Corps.

"This service is possible because of the volunteers who drive the car and the United Fund which provides the funds for its upkeep," she said.

WHEN IS A FILIPINO NOT A FILIPINO?

The former ambassador to the United States, now President of the University of the Philippines, explains the name Filipinos was given to natives brought under colonial rule by Spain.

The people of Luzon Island's rugged mountain area were not reached by the Spanish colonizers, Romulo says, so they cannot properly be called Filipinos.

Academy Scouts To Start Special Award Course

Air Force Academy Scouts and Explorers will begin a special course leading to the Protestant God and Country Award Sunday. The course will be conducted by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert E. Hendricks.

According to Chaplain Hendricks preparation for the award requires about a year of intensive study plus service in Christian living.

A total of 16 Scouts and Explorers have already registered for the course and more are expected to sign up.

There are three stages in the program with five sections in each. Among the areas covered are Christian faith, Christian witness, Christian world outreach, Christian citizenship, and Christian fellowship.

The program not only requires weekly classes and service projects, but also church and chapel activities such as Sunday School, worship service, and youth fellowship.

Funeral Services Set For Effie Atkinson

Mrs. Effie M. Atkinson, a retired seamstress, died Friday at a local hospital. She was 80 years old.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the drawing room of Law Mortuary with the Rev. Ward Hurlburt officiating. Mrs. Atkinson will be buried at the Lyons Cemetery in Lyons.

She lived at 219 N. 20th St. and had been a resident here since 1944. She worked as a seamstress for Neufeld's before her retirement.

Mrs. Atkinson was married June 12, 1905, to John Hodge Atkinson, who died in 1907.

She was a member of the Baptist Church.

Traffic Accidents Top Killer Among Children

A traffic safety warning from State Patrol Headquarters points out that traffic accidents annually kill more children 1 to 14 years of age than any single cause of death.

According to Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel, the responsibility for child safety in traffic is three-pronged — the child, his parents and the motorist must each assume his proper share.

The motorist is held responsible under the law for his actions, but there is no law that holds parents responsible for the training of their children in how to survive in traffic, and too many parents fail to recognize the need for this training until it's too late.

"The best and simplest method of building safe pedestrian habits in children," says Chief Carrel, "is for parents (and every adult) to set a good example for them.

Children form most of their habits, good or bad, through imitating their elders; and the person who jaywalks, steps into the street from between parked cars, ignores traffic lights or disregards other regulations must accept a major share of the blame when his youngster is killed or injured in a traffic mishap.

"Our schools are well aware of the magnitude of this problem, and each year devote more time and attention to its solution," Carrel pointed out, "but neither the schools nor enforcement officials can do the job alone. Parents must accept their share of this responsibility."

Retired Rancher Busy Volunteer for Red Cross

Lynn Grandy of 3010 Drakestone picks up the key to the Red Cross station wagon each Thursday afternoon and spends the next three or four hours taking elderly nursing home residents on a drive. First, he picks up a capacity load at the Prospect Lake Nursing Home. In an hour or two he returns them and picks up another group of passengers at the Good Samaritan Nursing Home.

One woman suggests, "Down town; let's see the store windows!"

A man says, "Let's look at the new houses." A few blocks later, he comments, "the best houses ever made were log cabins. Those were the days."

For most of the riders in Grandy's tour this is their only chance to leave the nursing home. They look forward to their turn to ride in the comfortable station wagon.

United Fund givers can look upon this service as one concrete example of their funds being used to brighten the lives of those who have too little enjoyment, according to Mrs. Joe Leferink, chairman of the Red Cross Motor Corps.

"This service is possible because of the volunteers who drive the car and the United Fund which provides the funds for its upkeep," she said.

WHEN IS A FILIPINO NOT A FILIPINO?

The former ambassador to the United States, now President of the University of the Philippines, explains the name Filipinos was given to natives brought under colonial rule by Spain.

The people of Luzon Island's rugged mountain area were not reached by the Spanish colonizers, Romulo says, so they cannot properly be called Filipinos.

Academy Scouts To Start Special Award Course

Air Force Academy Scouts and Explorers will begin a special course leading to the Protestant God and Country Award Sunday. The course will be conducted by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert E. Hendricks.

According to Chaplain Hendricks preparation for the award requires about a year of intensive study plus service in Christian living.

A total of 16 Scouts and Explorers have already registered for the course and more are expected to sign up.

There are three stages in the program with five sections in each. Among the areas covered are Christian faith, Christian witness, Christian world outreach, Christian citizenship, and Christian fellowship.

The program not only requires weekly classes and service projects, but also church and chapel activities such as Sunday School, worship service, and youth fellowship.

El Paso County Spelling Bee Monday, Tuesday

The annual El Paso County Spelling Bee for elementary school students will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the auditorium of the County Office Building.

Mrs. Georgianna Kettle, county superintendent of schools, said the contest is divided into two divisions because of the increasingly large number of contestants and also to keep the competition as fair as possible.

Grade school students in the first - class school districts will compete Monday. These include students from fourth thru eighth grade in the following districts: Harrison, Widefield, Fountain, Cheyenne Mountain, Manitou Springs and Air Force Academy.

Students in the rural districts will participate in the spell-down on Tuesday. The following districts are eligible to send spellers:

Monument - Palmer Lake, Calhan, Ellicott, Hanover, Wigwam, Lytle, Falcon, Peyton, Alta Vista, Miami and Edison.

Judges for this year's contest will be W. W. Bundy, superindentent of District 14; Charles Tewell, assistant superintendent of District 20; and Donald Joiner, elementary supervisor, District 3.

The contest will be divided so that fourth, fifth and sixth graders compete with one another and seventh and eighth graders will compete in one division.

The four top spellers of the seventh and eighth grade division will be eligible to enter the State Spelling Contest to be April 20 in Denver. The winner of the seventh - eighth grade division from the rural schools will also be invited to enter the state contest.

Stock Market Overcomes Lethargy, Shows Firm Gain

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week produced a surprisingly substantial gain, considering the general lethargy that prevailed most of the time.

Trading was at the dullest pace in more than four months and the market made a decisive advance on only one session, Monday. Throughout the week, however, despite cross-currents and an almost continuous irregularity, there was persistent demand for selected blue chips, the oils especially.

The result was that, even on two sessions when there was an excess of losers over gainers in the over-all list, the stock market averages edged upward steadily, thanks to advances by a number of the blue chips which compose them.

The Associated Press Average of 60 stocks showed a net gain of 3.7 at 254.8.

Had there been any degree of enthusiasm in the trading, gains of this proportion would have been highly encouraging to Wall Street. But buying demand was very inconspicuous. The quality of the stocks that rose, analysts said, seemed to reflect a persistent nibbling by institutional investors. The public remained, as it has for some time, sellers on balance.

Volume for the week sank to 16,744,920 shares from 19,057,800 the week before. This was the lightest for a full, five-day trading week since the week end last Oct. 20 when 16,682,390 shares changed hands.

The week began with a big rally by rails on Monday. Buyers were drawn to rail stocks by news that the Supreme Court had upheld a lower court ruling which permitted the rails to change work rules, in effect, allowing management the right to eliminate costly "featherbedding" practices.

At the same time, steel production advanced for the fifth straight week. The result was a sharp rise on Monday, but it was carried through on the light volume of 3.65 million shares.

The lack of enthusiasm was so caution-breeding that for the next two days more stocks declined than advanced and volume dwindled steadily.

Meanwhile, the economic background remained mixed. One disconcerting item to Wall Street was news that the unemployment rate had risen in February to 6.1 per cent, the largest proportion in 14 months.

Quiet investment demand for blue chips continued right to the end, however, and word of an agreement to end the New York City newspaper strike gave hope of livelier trading when the papers are published again.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, up 1⅛ at 88¾ on 264,800 shares; Sunray DX Oil, up 3⅛ at 32⅛; Avnet Electronics, up 2⅝ at 23⅛; General Motors, up 1¾ at 62, and Standard Oil (NJ), up 2⅛ at 61⅞.

Stockholders Get 90 Per Cent of MONY's Net Gain

Nearly 90 per cent of the $60,300,000 net gain realized last year by Mutual Of New York has been allocated to policyholders as dividends and excess interest.

That was the report issued by Leo E. Quinlan, manager of MONY's agency in Colorado Springs, based on the company's annual report to policyholders of the results of its operations in 1962. About 21,000 Colorado residents own life and health insurance policies with MONY.

The report showed that the company marked its 120th year in the personal insurance field by chalking up new records in nearly every area of its operations.

The net gain of $60,300,000 from all operations in 1962 compared with $59,900,000 the year before. The $54,200,000 allocated as dividends and excess interest compares with $51,900,000 last year. The balance of the 1962 net gain, or $6,100,000, has been added to the company's surplus, funds held for the protection of all policyholders.

Benefit payments to policyholders and their families last year totaled $261,800,000, including dividends. This was a new record high and compared with $247,400,000 paid in 1961.

Sales of new life insurance both individual and group, topped the billion dollar mark for the third time in the last four years. They totaled $1,037,000,000 in 1962, an increase of 7 per cent over 1961. About 89 per cent of the contracts the company sold last year were permanent, cash value insurance.

Compact Cars Center Dealer For Saab Line

The Saab is widely known thruout sports car circles, and for the last two years has placed first in the Monte Carlo Rally.

Saabs makes a two - door, five - passenger sedan; a station wagon, and a grande tourissimo. Compact Cars Service Center at present has only the sedan in stock but will have other models later.

The Saab has an 850 cubic centimeter engine wich develops 42 horsepower. Its a three - cylinder, two - cycle engine, and the Saab has a front-wheel drive.

The Saab comes with three - speed, four-speed or automatic clutch, and has a top speed of 85 miles an hour. Deiter Oschatz of Compact Cars Service said the Saab averages 35 miles to the gallon of gasoline, altho the mileage a ttimes is as high as 40 to the gallon.

The Saab is equipped with 15 - inch wheels, and Oschatz said it has an exceptionally good heating system and an exceptionally large trunk space. Standard equipment includes a crash bar, an ammeter, thermostatic gauge, clock, and automatic ventilation system. The car is factory undercoated.

The Saab also has a dashboard-mounted cold start control knob, which enables the driver to get a richer fuel-air mixture than normally. A preheater device heats carburetor air to prevent icing in the carburetor.

The Saab comes with a 24,000-mile, or 24-month, written warranty.

Compact Cars Service Center is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays thru Fridays.

New Firm to Make Parts for Hangars

RIFLE — A new company, F and V Manufacturing Co., has located a plant near Rifle to manufacture metal frame and skin parts for prefabricated aircraft hangars. Raw metal tubes and plates are cut, stamped and welded to form the structure.

Standard & Poor's says the current market slump is viewed as a technical correction, not the start of a major reaction. Additional buying opportunities may open shortly. S&P recommends maintaining present invested positions, but cautions not to overlook possibilities for advantageous switches.

Stillwell Promoted, Leon Givens Joins Larchmont Homes

M. J. Brock and Son of Los Angeles, builders of Larchmont Homes here, announced last week the promotion of Al Stillwell, local sales manager, to the new position of resident manager of the company's Denver operation.

Stillwell, who formerly lived in Riverside, Calif., is a graduate in urban land economics and finance from the University of Wisconsin. His wife is the former Harriet Price of Oshkosh, Wis., who is also a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. The Stillwells have two children, Jeffrey, 13, and Peggy, 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Stillwell are both private pilots and own their own plane. They celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary recently in Las Vegas, Nev., with friends from California.

William Hatch is resident manager here for the California company.

The company also announced the appointment of Leon Givens as sales manager for Larchmont Homes in Colorado Springs. He and his wife, Emma Lee, have one daughter, Louise Matheis. The family resides at 2326 N. Farragut Ave. The family came here from Texas in 1954.

Givens formerly was associated here with Century Realty Co. and with Doenges-Long Motors in the sales department. He also is a former regional sales manager here for the Stauffer Home Plan of Colorado Springs and Denver and factory representative for Vacu - Maide Inc. of Oklahoma.

Stock Market Overcomes Lethargy, Shows Firm Gain

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week produced a surprisingly substantial gain, considering the general lethargy that prevailed most of the time.

Trading was at the dullest pace in more than four months and the market made a decisive advance on only one session, Monday. Throughout the week, however, despite cross-currents and an almost continuous irregularity, there was persistent demand for selected blue chips, the oils especially.

The result was that, even on two sessions when there was an excess of losers over gainers in the over-all list, the stock market averages edged upward steadily, thanks to advances by a number of the blue chips which compose them.

The Associated Press Average of 60 stocks showed a net gain of 3.7 at 254.8.

Had there been any degree of enthusiasm in the trading, gains of this proportion would have been highly encouraging to Wall Street. But buying demand was very inconspicuous. The quality of the stocks that rose, analysts said, seemed to reflect a persistent nibbling by institutional investors. The public remained, as it has for some time, sellers on balance.

Volume for the week sank to 16,744,920 shares from 19,057,800 the week before. This was the lightest for a full, five-day trading week since the week end last Oct. 20 when 16,682,390 shares changed hands.

The week began with a big rally by rails on Monday. Buyers were drawn to rail stocks by news that the Supreme Court had upheld a lower court ruling which permitted the rails to change work rules, in effect, allowing management the right to eliminate costly "featherbedding" practices.

At the same time, steel production advanced for the fifth straight week. The result was a sharp rise on Monday, but it was carried through on the light volume of 3.65 million shares.

The lack of enthusiasm was so caution-breeding that for the next two days more stocks declined than advanced and volume dwindled steadily.

Meanwhile, the economic background remained mixed. One disconcerting item to Wall Street was news that the unemployment rate had risen in February to 6.1 per cent, the largest proportion in 14 months.

Quiet investment demand for blue chips continued right to the end, however, and word of an agreement to end the New York City newspaper strike gave hope of livelier trading when the papers are published again.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Chrysler, up 1⅛ at 88¾ on 264,800 shares; Sunray DX Oil, up 3⅛ at 32¼; Avnet Electronics, up 2⅝ at 23⅛; General Motors, up 1¾ at 62, and Standard Oil (NJ), up 2½ at 61⅞.

Stockholders Get 90 Per Cent of MONY's Net Gain

Nearly 90 per cent of the $60,300,000 net gain realized last year by Mutual Of New York has been allocated to policyholders as dividends and excess interest.

That was the report issued by Leo E. Quinlan, manager of MONY's agency in Colorado Springs, based on the company's annual report to policyholders of the results of its operations in 1962. About 21,000 Colorado residents own life and health insurance policies with MONY.

The report showed that the company marked its 120th year in the personal insurance field by chalking up new records in nearly every area of its operations.

The net gain of $60,300,000 from all operations in 1962 compared with $59,900,000 the year before. The $54,200,000 allocated as dividends and excess interest compares with $51,900,000 last year. The balance of the 1962 net gain, or $6,100,000, has been added to the company's surplus funds, held for the protection of all policyholders.

Benefit payments to policyholders and their families last year totaled $261,800,000, including dividends. This was a new record high and compared with $247,400,000 paid in 1961.

Sales of new life insurance both individual and group, topped the billion dollar mark for the third time in the last four years. They totaled $1,037,000,000 in 1962, an increase of 7 per cent over 1961. About 89 per cent of the contracts the company sold last year were permanent, cash value insurance.

Compact Cars Center Dealer For Saab Line

The Saab is widely known throughout sports car circles, and for the last two years has placed first in the Monte Carlo Rally.

Saab makes a two - door, five - passenger sedan, a station wagon, and a grande tourissimo. Compact Cars Service Center at present has only the sedan in stock but will have other models later.

The Saab has an 850 cubic centimeter engine wich develops 42 horsepower. Its a three - cylinder, two - cycle engine, and the Saab has a front-wheel drive.

The Saab comes with three - speed, four-speed or automatic clutch, and has a top speed of 85 miles an hour. Deiter Oschatz of Compact Cars Service said the Saab averages 35 miles to the gallon of gasoline, altho the mileage a ttimes is as high as 40 to the gallon.

The Saab is equipped with 15 - inch wheels, and Oschatz said it has an exceptionally good heating system and an exceptionally large trunk space. Standard equipment includes a crash bar, an ammeter, thermostatic gauge, clock, and automatic ventilation system. The car is factory undercoated.

The Saab also has a dashboard-mounted cold start control knob, which enables the driver to get a richer fuel-air mixture than normally. A preheater device heats carburetor air to prevent icing in the carburetor.

The Saab comes with a 24,000-mile, or 24-month, written warranty.

Compact Cars Service Center is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays thru Fridays.

New Firm to Make Parts for Hangars

RIFLE — A new company, F and V Manufacturing Co., has located a plant near Rifle to manufacture metal frame and skin parts for prefabricated aircraft hangars. Raw metal tubes and plates are cut, stamped and welded to form the structure.

Standard & Poor's says the current market slump is viewed as a technical correction, not the start of a major reaction. Additional buying opportunities may open shortly. S&P recommends maintaining present invested positions, but cautions not to overlook possibilities for advantageous switches.

Military Purchase Bills Face Decision in House

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bills that will let the armed services buy 60,000 missiles, 3,000 airplanes and 43 ships, and pave the way for Army induction of an estimated 90,000 men next year, face roll call votes in the House next week.

The two key defense measures—a four-year extension of the draft law and a record $15.8 billion military authorization bill — are due on the House floor Monday and Tuesday.

The House Armed Services Committee unanimously approved the draft bill, saying "its enactment is essential to our national security."

The measure also would keep in effect a 13-year-old suspension of statutory ceilings on the size of the armed services. If that expired, the services would have to cut more than 600,000 men. "It is clear that this section of the law must be extended," the committee report said.

The Army estimates it will draft about 90,000 men during each of the next four fiscal years. And the committee said that without the draft voluntary enlistments would drop far below their present levels.

The military authorization bill may stir controversy when it comes up Tuesday. That measure includes $363.7 million to step up development of the 2,000-mile-an-hour RS70 reconnaissance strike plane.

The administration wants to hold that program at its present level, which calls for construction of three of the speedy planes. The committee, headed by Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., insists five RS70s should be built.

In its report on the authorization measure, the committee contended the RS70 program should be expanded so that the value of the plane as a weapon can be proved or disproved.

But five Democratic committee members who voted against the RS70 amendment filed a minority report on the bill, arguing, "Time and technology are clearly in the process of overtaking the manned strategic bomber as the keystone of our nuclear deterrent force."

The committee also tacked an additional $134 million onto the authorization bill to build two more nuclear-powered attack submarines. That will mean construction of eight killer subs under the fiscal 1964 authorization bill.

Racial Pickets Continue at New Jersey School

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP)—The pickets march around Lincoln elementary School in protest of alleged racial segregation every morning.

Vincente Tibbs, their leader, says he'll be marching in July, or as long as it takes to break up the racial pattern at Lincoln, where 492 out of 500 pupils are Negro.

Tibbs is councilman for the predominantly Negro Fourth Ward, where the school is situated. He is one of the leaders of the two-week-old boycott of Lincoln.

Every day a sizeable group of pupils stays away from school. Their parents take them to private homes for classes with volunteer teachers, some of them white.

There is no violence, no loud voices. But the determination to remedy what the pickets call the inferior education at Lincoln School is evident in the manner of Tibbs, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Harrison, Mrs. John Wilson and other boycott leaders as they discuss their fight.

The pickets keep their signs in Billy Walker's clothing store near the school. After finishing his stint in a pouring rain one morning, Tibbs came into the store with two other pickets. None had used an umbrella, and water ran down their coats. The red paint was running on their signs which read "Desegregation Now" and "No More Broken Promises."

Mrs. Wilson's son has been absent from Lincoln since the boycott began Feb. 26.

That first day 239 children were absent. The figure has dipped below 100 now but boycott leaders say the threat of legal truancy action by school authorities is the reason.

Story on Golden Bee In Industry Magazine

"One of the most unusual and authentic cocktail lounges in the U. S.," is what the Hotel Motor Hotel Monthly calls the Golden Bee of Colorado Springs Broadmoor hotel.

Given national prominence in the February issue of the magazine for key executives of hotels and motor hotels, the idea of Broadmoor President Thayer Tutt is cited for its authentic English pub decor of the 1800s. The story tells how many of the fittings were found, dust - covered, in a warehouse in New York City.

"The carvings, in solid African mahogany," the magazine says, "are of cherubs, birds, clusters of fruit, female figures and other baroque trimmings." Eight weeks was spent restoring the fine wood and removing 15 to 20 coats of varnish.

The Broadmoor' manager, Karl E. Eitel, explains that the theme of the Golden Bee comes from this English definition: "You can tell a good pub by the way it fits around your shoulders. It is a blend of warmth and friendliness, of dark wood colors and sparkling glass, of foaming tankards and good talk."

The Golden Bee story is one of a series run by the Hotel/Motel Hotel Monthly on winners of its Golden Goblet competition for beverage merchandising.

CHANGING DIPPER

The Big Dipper today, astronomers have discovered, is a little wider at the top than on the bottom of the cup as compared to about 50,000 B.C., when the opening was narrower than the bottom. Astronomers predict that, in 50,000 A.D., it will hardly look like a dipper any more.

Military Purchase Bills Face Decision in House

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bills that will let the armed services buy 60,000 missiles, 3,000 airplanes and 43 ships, and pave the way for Army induction of an estimated 90,000 men next year, face roll call votes in the House next week.

The two key defense measures—a four-year extension of the draft law and a record $15.8 billion military authorization bill — are due on the House floor Monday and Tuesday.

The House Armed Services Committee unanimously approved the draft bill, saying "its enactment is essential to our national security."

The induction authority runs out July 1. The bill would extend it until July 1, 1967.

The measure also would keep in effect a 13-year-old suspension of statutory ceilings on the size of the armed services. If that expired, the services would have to cut more than 600,000 men. "It is clear that this section of the law must be extended," the committee report said.

The Army estimates it will draft about 90,000 men during each of the next four fiscal years. And the committee said that without the draft voluntary enlistments would drop far below their present levels.

The military authorization bill may stir controversy when it comes up Tuesday. That measure includes $363.7 million to step up development of the 2,000-mile-an-hour RS70 reconnaissance strike plane.

The administration wants to hold that program at its present level, which calls for construction of three of the speedy planes. The committee, headed by Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., insists five RS70s should be built.

In its report on the authorization measure, the committee contended the RS70 program should be expanded so that the value of the plane as a weapon can be proved or disproved.

But five Democratic committee members who voted against the RS70 amendment filed a minority report on the bill, arguing, "Time and technology are clearly in the process of overtaking the manned strategic bomber as the keystone of our nuclear deterrent force."

The committee also tacked an additional $134 million onto the authorization bill to build two more nuclear-powered attack submarines. That will mean construction of eight killer subs under the fiscal 1964 authorization bill.

Racial Pickets Continue at New Jersey School

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP)—The pickets march around Lincoln elementary School in protest of alleged racial segregation every morning.

Vincente Tibbs, their leader, says he'll be marching in July, or as long as it takes to break up the racial pattern at Lincoln, where 492 out of 500 pupils are Negro.

Tibbs is councilman for the predominantly Negro Fourth Ward, where the school is situated. He is one of the leaders of the two-week-old boycott of Lincoln.

Every day a sizeable group of pupils stays away from school. Their parents take them to private homes for classes with volunteer teachers, some of them white.

There is no violence, no loud voices. But the determination to remedy what the pickets call the inferior education at Lincoln School is evident in the manner of Tibbs, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Harrison, Mrs. John Wilson and other boycott leaders as they discuss their fight.

The pickets keep their signs in Billy Walker's clothing store near the school. After finishing his stint in a pouring rain one morning, Tibbs came into the store with two other pickets. None had used an umbrella, and water ran down their coats. The red paint was running on their signs which read "Desegregation Now" and "No More Broken Promises."

Mrs. Wilson's son has been absent from Lincoln since the boycott began Feb. 26.

That first day 239 children were absent. The figure has dipped below 100 now but boycott leaders say the threat of legal truancy action by school authorities is the reason.

Maurice Rockwell Jr Dies Here Saturday

Maurice Rockwell Jr., a manufacturing engineer with Clifton Precision Products Co., died Saturday at a local hospital at the age of 36.

He was a resident of Woodland Park, and had lived there two years.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Green Mountain Falls Congregational Church where Mr. Rockwell held membership. Burial will be in the Woodland Park Cemetery.

Mr. Rockwell was born Feb. 1, 1927, in Whitewater, Wis. He held a masters degree in music education and taught in several schools in Wisconsin. He was a member of the Musicians' Union of Elkhart, Ind., the Masonic Lodge of Wilmot, Wis., and served in the U. S. Navy during World War II.

He is survived by his widow Mrs. Margaret Rockwell; three children, Diana, Craig and Steven, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice H. Rockwell Sr., all of Woodland Park, and a sister Mrs. Christine Atwater and brother Rodney Rockwell, both of Elkhart.

Story on Golden Bee In Industry Magazine

"One of the most unusual and authentic cocktail lounges in the U. S.," is what the Hotel/Motor Hotel Monthly calls the Golden Bee of Colorado Springs Broadmoor hotel.

Given national prominence in the February issue of the magazine for key executives of hotels and motor hotels, the idea of Broadmoor President Thayer Tutt is cited for its authentic English pub decor of the 1800s. The story tells how many of the fittings were found, dust - covered, in a warehouse in New York City.

"The carvings, in solid African mahogany," the magazine says, "are of cherubs, birds, clusters of fruit, female figures and other baroque trimmings." Eight weeks was spent restoring the fine wood and removing 15 to 20 coats of varnish.

The Broadmoor' manager, Karl E. Eitel, explains that the theme of the Golden Bee comes from this English definition: "You can tell a good pub by the way it fits around your shoulders. It is a blend of warmth and friendliness, of dark wood colors and sparkling glass, of foaming tankards and good talk."

The Golden Bee story is one of a series run by the Hotel/Motel Hotel Monthly on winners of its Golden Goblet competition for beverage merchandising.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

HORMONES AFTER HEART ATTACKS

Sex plays an important role in the development of heart disease and hardening of the arteries. Women — prior to the menopause — have a built-in protection against these conditions. Thereafter, they are on their own but because of the late start in developing arteriosclerosis, seldom catch up with men of equal age.

What is this built-in protection that helps women avoid hardening of the arteries? The female sex hormones are responsible. These secretions are most abundant during the childbearing years. They tend to diminish as the glandular structures become less active during and after the change of life. This explains why heart attacks are less common among women than men before age 60, and may be one reason why women live longer.

What happens when men are given female sex hormones to prevent another heart attack or lower a high blood cholesterol level? Opinions vary because the results of studies along this line are difficult to evaluate.

Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Chicago believes this hormone prolongs the life of males recovering from a heart attack. According to his statistics, when 100 middle-aged men who recover from an uncomplicated heart attack are given a certain combination of female sex hormones, 93 can expect to live at least another five years. Without the hormone, only 83 of 100 can anticipate survival that long.

In contrast, a British group selected 100 men who had survived a single heart attack. Half were given hormones. There was no difference in the number of subsequent heart attacks or in the death rate between the two groups during the next five years. Many of those who were given female hormones developed unpleasant side effects such as femininization and loss of their sex drive.

Another interesting observation made by the British physicians was that the blood cholesterol level was decreased in the men given the hormones; it remained elevated or unchanged in the remainder. But the five year outcome in the two groups was the same, despite the change in the cholesterol level.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Neck Nodule

W. M. writes: I have a nodule on one of my neck glands. It goes down at times, then becomes noticeable again. Should it be removed by operation?

Reply

Let your physician make this decision after a thoro examination, including blood tests. Most of these nodules in the neck are harmless; or they come and go with infections in the nose, throat, or mouth. The gland need not be removed in the circumstances. But there are other causes and your physician's suggestion must be followed.

Oily Hair

L. M. writes: I wash my hair twice a week and it still is extremely oily. I don't eat chocolate or other fatty foods. What can I do now?

Reply

Shampoo your locks more often, especially if you are a teenager in the oily phase of life.

Devil's Grippe

H. B. writes: How is pleurodynia treated?

Reply

Aspirin and codeine ease the chest pain that is characteristic of the disease. This viral infection does not respond to antibiotics.

Old Superstition

J. B. writes: Does cutting a child's hair make it come in thicker?

Reply

No. This misconception comes up from time to time, more often in regard to shaving.

Inflamed Iris

W. T. writes: Is iritis an allergic disorder?

Reply

This is one theroy but the condition is more likely to be associated with other eye diseases. In some, no cause can be found. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on iritis.

How to Keep Well

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

HORMONES AFTER HEART ATTACKS

Sex plays an important role in the development of heart disease and hardening of the arteries. Women — prior to the menopause — have a built-in protection against these conditions. Thereafter, they are on their own but, because of the late start in developing arteriosclerosis, seldom catch up with men of equal age.

What is this built-in protection that helps women avoid hardening of the arteries? The female sex hormones are responsible. These secretions are most abundant during the childbearing years. They tend to diminish as the glandular structures become less active during and after the change of life. This explains why heart attacks are less common among women than men before age 60, and may be one reason why women live longer.

What happens when men are given female sex hormones to prevent another heart attack or lower a high blood cholesterol level? Opinions vary because the results of studies along this line are difficult to evaluate.

Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Chicago believes this hormone prolongs the life of males recovering from a heart attack. According to his statistics, when 100 middle-aged men who recover from an uncomplicated heart attack are given a certain combination of female sex hormones, 93 can expect to live at least another five years. Without the hormone, only 83 of 100 can anticipate survival that long.

In contrast, a British group selected 100 men who had survived a single heart attack. Half were given hormones. There was no difference in the number of subsequent heart attacks or in the death rate between the two groups during the next five years. Many of those who were given female hormones developed unpleasant side effects such as femininization and loss of their sex drive.

Another interesting observation made by the British physicians was that the blood cholesterol level was decreased in the men given the hormones; it remained elevated or unchanged in the remainder. But the five year outcome in the two groups was the same, despite the change in the cholesterol level.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Neck Nodule

W. M. writes: I have a nodule on one of my neck glands. It goes down at times, then becomes noticeable again. Should it be removed by operation?

Reply

Let your physician make this decision after a thoro examination, including blood tests. Most of these nodules in the neck are harmless; or they come and go with infections in the nose, throat, or mouth. The gland need not be removed in the circumstances. But there are other causes and your physician's suggestion must be followed.

Oily Hair

L. M. writes: I wash my hair twice a week and it still is extremely oily. I don't eat chocolate or other fatty foods. What can I do now?

Reply

Shampoo your locks more often, especially if you are a teenager in the oily phase of life.

Devil's Grippe

H. B. writes: How is pleurodynia treated?

Reply

Aspirin and codeine ease the chest pain that is characteristic of the disease. This viral infection does not respond to antibiotics.

Old Superstition

J. B. writes: Does cutting a child's hair make it come in thicker?

Reply

No. This misconception comes up from time to time, more often in regard to shaving.

Inflamed Iris

W. T. writes: Is iritis an allergic disorder?

Reply

This is one theroy but the condition is more likely to be associated with other eye diseases. In some, no cause can be found. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on iritis.

Ft. Carson Man Top Airborne Cook

Pfc. Carl Benezette, Headquarters Battery, 6th Battalion, 20th Artillery, claims to be one of the most airborne cooks in the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized). He has flown 24 different times and traveled approximately 22,000 nautical miles in military aircraft since enlisting in August, 1961.

These rides began with a flight to Columbia, South Carolina, from Philadelphia, his hometown. These flights include trips east, west, and south while going home on leave and also taking part in Exercise Swift Strike II in August, 1962.

His most memorable flight was in the presidential plane from Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland, to Kansas City, Mo., in January, 1963. President Kennedy was not aboard on this flight, however.

Benezette began his air odyssey in December, 1961, when he arrived at Ft. Carson from Ft. Lee, Virginia, and promptly received a surprise holiday leave. He flew out of Peterson Field courtesy of the U. S. Air Force and has been air hitch hiking ever since.

Trips by air have been alternated with highway travel since this easterner decided he should see the country from the ground too. One flight took him to Salt Lake City, Utah, the farthest west he has been.

Benezette didn't realize he was joining the Army to travel but he can recommend it now that he has flown with the Air Force, Navy and Marines.

The Ft. Carson soldier has a brother, Sp-4 Fred Benezette Jr. who is stationed at Davidsonville, Md., at an Army Air Defense Command installation. Fred has yet to leave the East Coast.

4-Year-Old Boy Rescued From Firey House

Roger Bower, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bower, was rescued Friday as smoke from a fire in their home at 601 Birch Dr., Security, was fast filling the house. The child was in a bedroom. Dieter Rein, 21, of 248 Davie Dr., climbed to a second story window and brought the child down safely.

"A ladder was in the back yard," he said Saturday. "With it I got up to the window, broke the glass and obtained entrance to the room."

He said the little boy had not been overcome by smoke and had suffered no ill effects from the fire.

Mrs. Valerie Bower, mother of the child, and other children who were in the house got out safely. The Security fire department was called. The rescue was made before the firemen arrived.

The fire started at 3 p.m. from an undetermined cause. A considerable amount of smoke damage was done to the house.

Three islands of the Pacific Ocean will be features of the Audubon Wildlife film to be presented by the National Audubon Society speaker, Patricia Bailey Witherspoon at 8 p.m. Monday at the Fine Arts Center.

Vatican May Seek Cardinal Safe-Conduct

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican is reportedly trying to get a safe conduct pass from Hungary for Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Hungarian Catholic primate who has said that he will never leave his country, even if staying means life in confinement.

Three weeks short of 71, Mindszenty has been given haven in the U.S. Legation in Budapest since the Russians crushed the 1956 Hungarian revolt. The government has threatened to imprison him again if he sets foot outside the legation.

NCO's Told Of Leadership At Ft. Carson

"Leadership demands much more from the leader than he can ever expect from his men," Sgt.-Major Bruce S. Shankland told graduates of the Ft. Carson Noncommissioned Officers Academy Friday.

The 5th Division sergeant-major's graduation speech was the first made by an enlisted man to an academy class. The 46 graduates were in the private to specialist fourth class-corporal pay grades.

Shankland pointed out that "leadership is becoming more challenging every day with the concept of smaller unit action--particularly counter-guerrilla warfare--where man faces man at muzzle-point range. This type of warfare demands the utmost in leadership."

"Knowing you job and doing it well is what it takes to be a leader," he continued. ". . . the American soldier is not fooled for very long and, if you use your rank to carry you along, you won't go far before you'll fall by the wayside."

The division sergeant-major listed as among the things fighting men deserve from their leaders:

"Our devotion, our attention to everything which will contribute to their health and welfare, our interest in their living conditions, both in garrison and in the field . . . our interest in their complaint and, if warranted, endeavor to get them redressed."

His closing advice was to "be the kind of leader you would be willing to follow yourself."

Audubon Society Accepts Acreage In Connecticut

NEW YORK CITY — The National Audubon Society's board of directors has acted formally to accept a bequest by the late Mrs. Emily Winthrop Miles of 600 acres of wild swamp and woodland near Sharon, Connecticut.

The bequest includes a residence and other buildings on the property and an endowment fund of $500,000 for the permanent maintenance and operation of the area as a wildlife sanctuary.

Audubon President Carl W. Buchheister said the actual transfer of title to the property will not be accomplished until after the settlement of certain other details of the Miles estate. Mrs. Miles, a sculptor, poet and ardent naturalist, has been a member of the society for a number of years prior to her death.

The area, bordered on one side by a state forest, encompasses an 18 - acre lake, a smaller pond, and about two miles of streamcourse on which there are several colonies of beaver.

Much of the area is wooded swamp. It is the kind of habitat that serves as nesting area or feeding place for numerous species of resident and migratory birds.

Mr. Buchheister said the property could serve usefully as an adjunct to the educational purposes of the nearby Sharon Audubon Center, which will continue to be used as a place where children and adult groups are given outdoor instruction in natural history and conservation.

The new sanctuary also will offer unique opportunities for scientific research in natural ecology, he said, but stressed that its greatest importance, as foreseem by Mrs. Miles, would be in the preservation of an area of wildlife habitat of a type that is becoming increasingly scarce in the Northeast.

Annual per capita consumption of shelled peanuts in the U.S. is more than 4½ pounds.

Three weeks short of 71, Mindszenty has been given haven in the U.S. Legation in Budapest since the Russians crushed the 1956 Hungarian revolt. The government has threatened to imprison him again if he sets foot outside the legation.

Sources here said Friday the Vatican is trying to get Mindszenty a safe conduct pass to Rome, where a permanent post would be provided for him.

NCO's Told Of Leadership At Ft. Carson

"Leadership demands much more from the leader than he can ever expect from his men," Sgt.-Major Bruce S. Shankland told graduates of the Ft. Carson Noncommissioned Officers Academy Friday.

The 5th Division sergeant-major's graduation speech was the first made by an enlisted man to an academy class. The 46 graduates were in the private to specialist fourth class-corporal pay grades.

Shankland pointed out that "leadership is becoming more challenging every day with the concept of smaller unit action--particularly counter-guerrilla warfare--where man faces man at muzzle-point range. This type of warfare demands the utmost in leadership."

"Knowing you job and doing it well is what it takes to be a leader," he continued. ". . . the American soldier is not fooled for very long and, if you use your rank to carry you along, you won't go far before you'll fall by the wayside."

The division sergeant-major listed as among the things fighting men deserve from their leaders:

"Our devotion, our attention to everything which will contribute to their health and welfare, our interest in their living conditions, both in garrison and in the field . . . our interest in their complaint and, if warranted, endeavor to get them redressed."

His closing advice was to "be the kind of leader you would be willing to follow yourself."

Audubon Society Accepts Acreage In Connecticut

NEW YORK CITY — The National Audubon Society's board of directors has acted formally to accept a bequest by the late Mrs. Emily Winthrop Miles of 600 acres of wild swamp and woodland near Sharon, Connecticut.

The bequest includes a residence and other buildings on the property and an endowment fund of $500,000 for the permanent maintenance and operation of the area as a wildlife sanctuary.

Audubon President Carl W. Buchheister said the actual transfer of title to the property will not be accomplished until after the settlement of certain other details of the Miles estate. Mrs. Miles, a sculptor, poet and ardent naturalist, has been a member of the society for a number of years prior to her death.

The area, bordered on one side by a state forest, encompasses an 18 - acre lake, a smaller pond, and about two miles of streamcourse on which there are several colonies of beaver.

Much of the area is wooded swamp. It is the kind of habitat that serves as nesting area or feeding place for numerous species of resident and migratory birds.

Mr. Buchheister said the property could serve usefully as an adjunct to the educational purposes of the nearby Sharon Audubon Center, which will continue to be used as a place where children and adult groups are given outdoor instruction in natural history and conservation.

The new sanctuary also will offer unique opportunities for scientific research in natural ecology, he said, but stressed that its greatest importance, as foreseem by Mrs. Miles, would be in the preservation of an area of wildlife habitat of a type that is becoming increasingly scarce in the Northeast.
